SOME $30,000 DOLLARS WILL BE SPENT ON TRENT CANAL IN THIS SECTION

According to the proposed expenditure on the Trent Valley Canal this year, a sum in the neighborhood of $30,000 will be spent in this neighborhood. Some of the repairs will be as follows:

Between Kirkfield lift lock and Lake Simcoe	$ 5,000
Sturgeon lake, Lindsay river	4,000
Rip-rapping Balsam Lake Lake Simcoe division	5,000
Duplicate lock gates	5,000
Reservoir waters Jumbo lake township of Glamorgan	9,000
Reservoir waters, Sheldon township of Lutterworth	8,000
Entrance piers at Buckhorn locks, two piers above and one below	4,000
Moving bridge at Fenelon Falls	2,000
Purchase of land, &c., filling flume and repairs to lock Bobcaygeon	15,000

LINDSAY WATERS.

Mr. Hughes—Some time ago I drew attention to the fact that in the early years the water of Hollow Lake flowed down Gull river into the Trent waters and so onwards. But years ago, the lumberers changed the flow of many of the waters in that locality. The first change was to divert them down the Black river. Later on about 1850, when the lumbering became brisk about Bracebridge, the waters were bloackaded into both the Gull river systems and scores of which are damned back.

Mr. Graham—We are considering a regulation for the Trent Canal, by which we will take these logs out, and charge the owners 50 cents each. If the owner does not want to pay, he does not get the logs.

Mr. Hughes—At Ancona, where the Canadian Pacific Railway touches Sturgeon Lake, the minister's officers are planning to build a little wharf. I presume that is included in this or some other vote?

Mr. Graham—The Public Works Department mave the grant, but they allow us to spend the money for them.

Mr. Hughes—There is an item for the repair of Fenelon Falls bridge. What is that?

Mr. Graham—It is proposed to move the present wooden bridge a sufficient distance away from the lock to prevent the operating of the locks interfering with traffic on the bridge.

Mr. Hughes—That will not meet the difficulty. The bridge now is opposite the main street running north and south, and unless you have a high protection wall there would be danger of accidents. It would be better to leave the present bridge where it is and construct another higher up. Then traffic could use either bridge and there would never be a blockade.

Mr. Grahm—That is worth looking into and we will look into it.

Mr. Hughes—The Scugog river above Lindsay is badly in need of dredging. That district is largely used as a summer resort by Toronto people, and there are many pleasure yachts on the river. There has not been very much heavy traffic there, and there, are a great many weeds in the channel and some logs. I understand that the minister's officers have a plan for cleaning out the logs and weeds below Lindsay and I would like to have them at the same time look into the conditions above Lindsay.

NOT IN FAVOR OF A UNION

An effort was made at the Mill street Presbyterian church, of Port Hope last night to formulate a basis of union between that church, and the St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

Rev. James Rollins, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, and Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville Presbyterian church, were the committee appointed to bring the union about but utterly failed. The entire vote, with two exceptions was against the union.

BOWMANVILLE TO SELL LIGHT PLANT

Bowmanville, April 4.—Voting took place on three municipal by-laws, one of which was carried and two defeated owing to a shortage of votes polled. The most important one was for the sale of the town's electric light plant and franchise to the Seymour Light & Power Company for $16,000. The vote was 345 far and 127 against a majority of 18 votes.

The second by-law was to grant a fixed assessment of $5,000 to the Seymour Light and Power Campany for ten years the vote was 188 for and 165 against, or a majority of 23. But to carry this by-law three fifths of all the qualified voters was necessary, or 326 more votes in favor of the by-law.

The third was to grant exemption of taxation except school taxes for ten years to the Durham Glove Company Limited. The vote was 288 for and 70 against. But 133 more votes are required.

GEORGE TERRY FOR SASKATOON

From Wednesday's Post.

Another of Lindsay's most popular young men has answered the call of the West, in the person of Mr. George Terry, who leaves this evening for Saskatoon, where he has accepted a splendid position with the dry goods firms of J. S. Cairns.

Mr. Terry is a young gentleman who is bound to succeed in the west. He is a young man of splendid habits and of a winning disposition which is sure to win for him many friends in Saskatoon. He was a member of the Cambridge-st. Sunday school and was a warm favorite in social circles

ANOTHER FIRE AT OAKWOOD CHURCH

Oakwood, April 4.—During the concert held on Tuesday evening the church again took fire from the other furnace, but was put out before much damage was done.

ANNUAL EXCURSION TO GUELPH

A meeting of the executive committee of the Women's and Farmers) Institutes of East Victoria, was held in D. A. Mackenzie's office on Monday.

It was decided to run the annaal excursion to Guelph on Jane 22nd, and a committee was appointed to make the necessary arrangements.

ANNUAL MEETING OF KIRKFIELD ATHLETIC CLUB

The annual meeting of the Athletic Association was held in the parlor of the Dominion hotel on Friday evening 6last, and was well attended, and considerable enthusiasm for the coming season. The report showed a small balance in treasury An effort will be made to increase the membership, in order to complete the improvements started last fall.

A motion to invite the Tennis Club to connect with the association was carried.

The election of officers for the year resulted as follows'

Pres.—Dr. J. F. Ross.
Vice Pres.—W. D. Mitchell.
Treas.—Jas. Rusland.
Secy.—H. D. McInnis.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. G. S. Staples, the retiring secretary for the interest he has taken in the Association since the inception and for the infusion into the different clubs with which he was connected, the principals of good clean sport. Mr. Staples made a suitable reply thanking the association, stating that though severing his connection with the management, still he would continue to be a member of the association.

The auction sale held in the repository on Saturday under the management of Messrs Coad and Currins was a decided success. The crowds on the streets notwithstanding the severity of the weather resembled those of a town more than a village and all seemed satisfied with the bargains secured. These sales we understand will be held monthly, and will prove a convenience to farmers and others, who wish to dispose of their surplus stock. The next sale will be held early in May, and we learn they will have considerable furniture to offer for sale.

Mr. Jas. Luke, of Oshawa the veteran horse buyer, is on his rounds again, and will no doubt meet with his usual success.

Mr. A. N. Campbell shipped a carload of stock this morning some of which was some choice beef.

An entertainment will take place in the hall under the auspices of the Athletic Association the latter part of April, of which further notice will be given.

Jottings From Busy Kirkfield

Mrs. J. J. Lee and children retuened home on Wednesday night of last week, after a visit of about three months in Hamilton.

NEW REGULATIONS IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS IMPORTANT CHANGES BEFORE SEPTEMBER

Before re-opening next September, some important changes will be made by the Department of Education in the organization of the primary and secondary schools. These changes will include:

A revision of the Public School regulations and the programmes of study.

The establishment of a senior entrance examination into the Middle school of the High and Continuation schools, to be based on the course of study of the Lower school of the High schools, and to come into operation in June, 1912. The examination may be taken only by those who have been in attendance at Public school fifth classes and at Continuation schools which have no Middle school. It is not intended as an examination for promotion of pupils from the lower to the Middle school. As heretofore, such promotion will be in the hands of the principal of the school.

Except in the case of the duly certificated pupils of schools approved under the present scheme, who now belong to the Middle or Upper school or who may be promoted thereto before next September, the teacher's certificate for the Lower schools subjects prescribed for admission to the Normal Schools and Faculties of Education will not be accepted after the present year whether the school is approved or not. All other candidates will be required to pass an examination in said Lower school subjects, which will be held at the same time as the Senior High School entrance examination.

The "approved school" scheme will be retained with whatever other modifications may appear to be desirable but the status will be recognized, not in the exemption of pupils from examination in the Lower school subjects, but in the payment of a larger share of the Legislative grant to approved than to non-approved schools.

For the present year, and in 1912 and 1913 the September examination of pupils from the non-approved schools will be held, not, as heretofore at the Normal Schools, but at local centres in the different counties at the same time as the matriculation supplemental examinations.

Although the Normal and Model schools and the Faculties of Education are together sending out each year more teachers than ever before in the history of the Province, the supply is still insufficient, owing chiefly to the prosperity of the country, the continued lowness of the salaries of the Ontario teachers in comparison with the emoluments in other fields, and the high salaries and other inducements of the Western provinces. To meet the situation, several additional Model schools will be established during the present half year.

As soon as final arrangements are made, a circular containing the regulations for Model schools will be issued. The details of the other changes affecting the schools will be published in time for the re-opening next September.

CHIEF OF POLICE VINCENT RESIGNS IS CHIEF OF SAULT STE MARIE FORCE

From Wednesday's Post.

To-day Chief Vincent, of the Lindsay Police force, handed in his resignation, to take effect as soon as possible. He has accepted the position of Chief of Police of Sault Ste Marie, Ont. Mr. Vincent has been head of the local police force for four years succeeding ex-Chief Nevison. Prior to coming to Lindsay he was connected with the force at Barrie and also held positions of prominence as a police officer in Great Britain.

During his residence in Lindsay, Chief Vincent has shown himself to be a most capable official, fearless, conscientious and upright in the discharge of his duties and gentlemanly and courteous in his bearing.

Mr. Vincent wae also prominently identified with several local fraternal organizations, and was a member of St. Paul's Anglican Church choir. He secured the appointment of Police of Sault Ste Marie in the face of keen competition on the part of a large number of applicants. He will take charge of a force of five men, and his salary, it is understood, is a splendid one.

Sault Ste Marie is a town with a population of from ten to eleven thousand, and is growing rapidly.

Chief Vincent is to be congratulated on securing such an excellent appointment, and the citizens will unite in wishing him every success.

HALL RENTALS FOR SHORT COURSES PAID OUT OF THE COUNTY GRANT

From Wednesday's Post.

Last evening at the Board af Education meeting Mr. Jackson, Chairman of the finance committee read in account from W. H. Roenigk of $125 for rental of Academy of Music for short course lectures in connection with the local Agticultural Department.

Accompanying the account was the following communication

Lindsay, March 29, '11.

Chairman Lindsay School Board:

Dear Sir.—I enclose herewith Mr. Roenigk's account for rent at the Academy of Music, this account has been refused by the Supt. of the Institute's Branch of the Department of Agriculture on the ground that as other counties having short courses pay for the rent of halls, this item should be paid from the county grant

The objections raised when this account was previously presented were that as the course was held in Lindsay it did not come within the meaning of the Act, which says that the grant may be applied for short courses outside of the centre where the office is located Anyone who is conversant with the history of the courses which have been held in Lindsay know that they have been attended by farmers. from all parts of the country, and it was the opinion of my predecessor and myself that on account of the splendid accommodation provided Lindsay was the best place to hold the course.

The other objection was the matter of precedent. It is my opinion on account of the increasing demand for courses of this kind and the fact the provincial appropriation for this work is not proportionately increased counties holding such courses must be willing to bear a considerable share of the cost. Eventually then the county grant must be applied for this purpose, and it will simply mean holding a number of short courses at several points rather than the one at Lindsay. The matter of precedent need not be considered.

Yours respectfully,
(Sgd.) D. A. McKENZIE.

The account will be paid for out of the $500 county grant for Agricultural classes, and in future if Short Course Sessions are to be held in Lindsay the Board of Education will have to settle for the rent of halls through the above grant.

SOMETHING TO CHEER FOR

Surplus for the year end ng March, $30,500,000.

Estimated revenue, $117,500,000. Estimated expenditure chargeable to consolidated fund, $87,000,000.

For the year 1909-10 the actual surplus was $22,091,963—a new record. Actual revenue for year, $101,503,710.

"'Let well enough alone,' has never been the motto of the Dominion of Canada. In all times past, even when we have had a prosperous condition of affairs, when my predecessors in office were able to make statements, perhaps hardly so rosy as that which it is my pleasure to make to-day, but nevertheless hopeful and encouraging statements—when they had that condition they were not content to let well enough alone, and why should they preach that doctrine to us to-day? If we are to adopt that policy, let us abolish our steamship lines, cut off the subsidies to them, and cease to send trade agents to foreign countries. We are seeking new markets everywhere; our steamships run to all countries, many of them heavily subsidized; we are sending our trade agents over the civilized world; we are doing everything that is inconsistent with the policy of 'let well enough alone,' for when things are going favorably there is no reason for doing nothing. It is rather a reason for being alert, to avail ourselves of other opportunities. We need new markets in all directions; need them for the surplus products of Canada as it is to-day, and we shall need them in even greater degree for the vaster surplus of Canadian products to come to us from the great west in the near future.

"For these reasons we have endeavoured to enlarge our markets in all directions and it does not seem to be wise, while we are sending agents to Africa and China and the distant parts of the world, to close our eyes to the opportunities lying near our home. Into that I do not wish to enter to-day. Every prospect for Canada to-day is bright and hopeful. With peace and prosperity at home, with the friendliest relations with the great Republic lying along side of us, with the warmest attachment to the great Empire of which we are so proud to form a part, the Canadian people can look forward to the future with every hope and every confidence."—From Hon. Mr. Fielding's Budget speech.

RECIPROCITY AND MANUFACTURE

The Montreal Herald thus refers to the speech of Hon. W. S. Fielding at Montreal in regard to the relations of the government to the manufacturing industry as associated with reciprocity:

The principal of Liberalism is trust of the people, qualified by prudence; the principal of Toryism is distrust of the people, qualified by fear. This dictum from Gladstone's famous Carlisle speech, Mr. Fielding made the text of his answer to his opponents, fear of free trade in manufactures and of annexation. He told again, as Sir Wilfrid has told a couple of weeks earlier, what there was to tell of the exclusion of manufacturers from the scope of the agreement; he repeated the assurances o, Sir Wilfrid that nothing of the kind could, or would be accomplished; he based its defence of the agreement wholly upon the statutory offers of the past as to which all parties had been agreed; he scouted the idea of political union, and recalled from his own youthful experience the warmth with which the then Prince of Wales had been received in Canada at a time when the old reciprocity treaty was in full force. Altogether, it was a first rate fighting speech, the large audience recognized the first class fighting man, and gave him, at the close, the full meed of its appreciation.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY

A pathetic case has come to light. An elderly woman, for years one of the Society ladies in a fair Canadian city, and thought to be wealthy, has through unfortunate investments fallen upon hard lines, and the sadness of her case is increased by the terrible fact that she has been stricken down by an incurable disease. During her prosperous years she thought but little of the future, and a large portion of her income was spent in "keeping up appearances." Now, penniless and homeless she must seek admission to some place of refuge; her friends of yesterday know her no more. Such cases as these should cause young wage earners to appreciate the fact that they may escape such a fate if they are but willing to take advantage of the Canadian Government Annuities scheme, for by investing with the Government but a small portion of their weekly wages, they can provide an income to begin at 55 or later that will insure them independence and happiness no matter how long they live. Give the matter your most serious consideration, and if you desire further particulars on the subject, these may be obtained on application to your post master, or to the Superintendent of Government Annuities, Ottawa, to whom all letters go free of postage.

CHILDREN ON THE STREETS

The following from the Catholic Record refers to conditions that obtains in Lindsay and which calls for serious consideration on the part of parents and guardians;

"A contemporary alludes to a civic ordinance with regard to the young on the streets at night as freak legislation. Perchance the editor, dwelling in a quiet hamlet where the lights are out at 10 o'clock, is a stranger to the ways of larger centres. But let legislation be freak or otherwise we are prepared to welcome anything that can banish the most pathetic spectacle in the city—the crowds of boys and girls who roam the streets. We have watched them and have seen them go the way of degeneracy. We have seen the mantling of modesty of girls give way to hardness and coarseness. Could it be otherwise? Taking a course in the school of the street with every loose-tongued stripling as teacher, does not make for qualities which are the glory of womanhood. The fineness goes, and the modesty of eye and bearing and the aroma of purity. We hear the bold word from the lips that were made for the music of comfort and prayer. Poor children gathering stores of decay and death. We presume that some people own these children, They have homes whither they betake themselves after the night's schooling. But their parents must be strange and uncanny specimens of human nature. The social workers should snare these curiosities and exhibit them as object lessons of all that a parent should not be. Meanwhile let us have legislation that may be a deterrent to the idiotic neglect of the parents."

MISTAKEN CONSERVATIVES

The St. John Telegraph, one of the leading newspapers in the Maritime provinces in discussing the trade agreement says that the Conservatives continually speak of their love of England and of British institutions, yet in discussing the trade agreement they refuse to follow British practice. They have rather followed a certain party in ancient Ephesus, who, seeing their privileges were in danger, began shouting for the space of 2 hours: "Great is the Imperial Goddess." Here the shout has been prolonged, not for hours but for months, in the hope that the people, weary of the outcry, will decide not to abandon this god in the hour of dire necessity.

The reason perhaps is that the opponents of this proposal can see nothing in it but an attack upon the citadel of protection. They expected an insignificant attack upon the outworks but the main citadel was undermined while they slept! It happened to them as with the unfortunate schoolboy who had made up his mind not to feel the thrashing that was in store for him. His resolution was founded on the expectation of receiving the usual kind of strokes with the usual rod on the usual spot. So the protectionists, seeing that the government proposes to decrease the amount of labor with the citizens of the country must do to secure a given amount of the rewards of labor, cannot recover from the surprise of the unexpected. They cry out that not only is their craft in danger, but that the great Imperial goddess will be despised and her magnificence destroyed.

The protective system used to claim to be a real national policy, but judging from the special local interests that are clamorously shouting against the trade agreement, it is nothing more than a large number of local interests,— a sort of parochial self-seeking. The New York Post calls it the raising of backyard views to the millionth power. The Liberal policy today is really national; it has faith in the Canadian people, and is confident that our farmers can hold their own in free competition with any market in the world. Its controlling consideration is the benefit of all the people, not the advantage or disadvantage of a few. No wonder it is attacked so violently by surprised self-seekers.

CURE FOR DRUNKARDS

(Kingston Standard).

One of the ever present problems is to find a cure for drunkenness. Of course prevention is better than cure, but this seems past the art of man to devise. We have to face the fact that drunkenness exists, and will probably continue to do so. Therefore, what can be done to cure it?

We have all heard of various cures but none of them has ever been so successful as to be regarded as positive remedies in the same way as for instance morphia is for ceasing pain. The only sure one is the man's own determination never to touch liquor but this power of will is very rarely indeed to be found; it has become weakened if not destroyed by drink.

It is more than likely that before long public opinion will demand that the state shall take this question in hand. The medical profession have studied the subject and have divided drinkers into two classes; alcoholics who drank steadily in moderation and thus kept themselves in a state of poison, who are the more incurable; and inebriates who drank at intervals to excess and resembled epileptics; this is a form of insanity and could be treated like hysteria. The treatment for both which is advised is complete separation and detachment from previous surroundings.

Sending such men to jail for so many days is of no use.

We very strongly approve of the suggestion that the only way to deal with such cases is to establish farm colonies where isolation constraint to hard work in the fields, harsh military discipline if necessary, would restore these men to useful places in the world. Those cases which could not be cured should be retained indefinitely on the farm. The details of upon whose authority men could be sent to these farms, whether not only by magistrate's orders, but on the application of the drunkard's friends to some proper authority without the necessity of publicity, is one which would have to be considered carefully The probability is that the fear of what might turn out to be hard labor for life would make many drunkards very soon lose their taste for drink.

WILL RECIPROCITY INCREASE FARM VALUES?

From the Canadian Century.

Advocates of reciprocity are making statements to the effect that the adoption of reciprocity will immediately increase the value of Canadian farm lands 25 per cent or more. Instead of making wild guesses let us get at the facts. Since the reciprocity negotiations with the United States Government has had a report prepared by experts showing the comparative value per acre of improved farm lands in 1900 and 1910 in various border states and in the Canadian provinces adjoining them. This report states that between 1900 and 1910, the value of improved farm lands in improved farm lands in 1900 and 1910 the value of improved farm lands increased 67 per cent in Maine, 37 per cent in New Hampshire, 33 per ceot in Vermont, 181 per cent in Nova Scotia 120 per cent in New Brunswick, 70 per cent in Prince Edward Island, 80 per cent in Quebec, 43 per cent in Ontario, 39 per cent in Michigan, 77 per cent in Minnesota, 123 per cent in Saskatchewan, and 185 per cent in Alberta.

The great influx of settlers in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta accounts for the rapid increase in farm land values in those provinces; but what is the explanation of the extraordinary increase in farm values in three Maritime Provinces of Canada? Why did Nova Scotia farm values increase 181 per cent, while farm values in the neighboring state of Maine only increased 67 per cent?

Undoubtedly the great increase of values in the Maritime Provinces is due to the establishment of manufacturing industries in recent years. The establishment of great iron and steel industries in Nova Scotia has revolutionized conditions throughout the three provinces. A profitable home market has been created for everything the farmers produce. These industries have been equally beneficial to the fishermen. As the steel industries are located in Nova Scotia the influence on the price of farm lands has been most marked in that Province, but Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick have been greatly benefitted. The development of St. John as a winter port has also helped to increase farm values in New Brunswick.

It will be noticed that the increase of farm values is considerably greater in Quebec than in Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont, and the improvement has been greater in Ontario than in the adjoining state of Michigan.

In the face of such facts, how foolish it is to indulge in wild dreams of of a sudden increase in Canadian values as a result of reciprocity.

THE PRICE OF BARLEY.

From October 1, 1890 to August 27, 1894 the United States customs duty on barley was 30 cents per bushel. From August 27, 1894, to July 24, 1897 the duty was 30 per cent ad valorem, equivalent to a little over 10 cents per bushel. On July 24, 1897, the specific duty of 30 cents per bushel was restored, and it has been continued ever since. Of course during a period of 21 years there would naturally be considerable variation in prices, but for purpose of comparison it will be fair to take the three years previous to the reduction of duty, the three years during which the low duty prevailed and the first three years after the duty of thirty cents per bushel was restored. According to reports of the United States Department of Agriculture, the farm prices of barley average 44.26 cents per bushel. In 1895 1896 and 1897 under a duty of about ten cents per bushel the prices averaged 34.53 while for 1898, 1899 1900 under a specific duty of thirty cents per bushel, the prices averaged 40.8 cents per bushel. Thus instead of the Canadian farmer getting an increased price for barley he sent to the United States as a result of the reduced duty the price came [illegible] than that the Canadian prices will go up.

MR. BORDEN'S TROUBLES

It would be deplorable for Canada, and a sorry loss to the Liberal-Conservative party, says the Montreal Witness, should that party be bereft of its redeeming ornament and essential head. That the retirement of Mr. Borden would bring victory to the party is the last thing to be thought of. The dethronement of the blameless chief by money influences, as is alleged, and as would be assumed, would absolve thousands in the country from an allegiance which has become irksome to them. Without him the party would be a cage of discordant creatures, each elbowing to get on top. Are Mr. Foster and Mr. Sifton going to make a span as they well might, much as they have stung each other, being rightly or wrongly in like condemnation at each other's hands and before the world? Are Col. Sam Hughes and Dr. Sproule going to be bed fellows with Mr. Monk and is Mr. Bourassa to be added? Then, when a ministry is to be formed, the party is to be saved, we are told by the princes of the provinces. One has only to contemplate the rude and motley array of vassal chieftains, beginning with Messrs Roblin and McBride, whom it is proposed to call into service when a ministry is to be formed, to realize, as many have failed to do, how absolutely essential is Mr. Borden's benign, if not very assertive, leadership. His curious mixture of Socialism with the defence of money privilege has served so far to hold the most opposed elements and classes together in one party, but who is to mix oil and water when he is gone? Not the money interests which rumor connects with yesterday's attempt to upset the cart-

MOVING HIS BILLIARD ROOMS

BABIES OWN TABLETS CURE CONSTIPATION

Few other troubles afflict the little ones as does constipation. Every change of diet seems to bring this trouble on, and baby suffers from headaches, fever, disturbed sleep and often vomiting. No baby who suffers from constipation can thrive well. Constipated babies are cross all the time and give mothers constant worry. The one sure relief for baby constipation is Baby's Own Tablets—they never fail to cure the trouble and can be given to the little one with absolute safety. Concerning them Mrs. W. S. McKenzie, Prairie Grange, Alta., writes: "I used Baby's Own Tablets for my baby who was constipated from birth and they rapidly helped her and left her bowels in a natural condition." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE LAW AND DRUNKARDS

The statement made by Mr. G. H. Hopkins, K.C., at a recent police court session regarding the intention of the License Department to insist on a strict observance of the license laws and the punishment of all offenders will be hailed with satisfaction by lovers of law and order.

The citizens are well nigh disgusted with the spectacle of so many drunken men (and many of them on the prohibited list) parading our streets during the day and night. A number of them are confirmed drunkards and it seems that liquor is being supplied them at regular intervals. No punishment is too severe for a creature who supplies a whiskey-soaked unfortunate of this kind with drink and we were pleased to see that County Police Magistrate Moore dealt severely with several men who were guilty of this offence at Fenelon Falls.

It seems a pity that drunken men who parade our streets cannot be punished for the offence. From information given by the authorities it appears that a man in drink must be either incapable or disorderly before he can be arrested. It would be of interest to know what the law really means by "incapable"

The men who stagger along the streets in a drunken stupor as they are doing every day in this town, are not only incapable, but are also a disgrace and a public nuisance. Ladies are obliged to take extra precaution in order to avoid them, and the example they set to the rising generation is far from edifying.

If the law cannot reach such characters, it should be amended as speedily as possible.

KEEPING OUR STREETS CLEAN

Mr. W. M. Robson, President of the local Horticultural Society, wrote the following communication to the Council:

"Gentlemen.—The Horticultural Society of Lindsay respectfully submits for your consideration the following objectionable practise (or habit,) which are indulged in by many citizens.

Without thinking of the detrimental effects it has on streets, and the unsightly appearance it gives to a town with the pretensions and size of Lindsay, by dumping their winter ashes on streets in mounds that are more or less offensive to the public in general, and we would humbly suggest the passing of a by-law forbidding such a practise or the issuing of an authoritative notice from Council would have the desired effect.

As it would be no individual hardship to keep the ashes in their yards till spring. At that time teamsters frequently are glad to get them for the taking away.

The Red Year

STORY OF THE INDIAN MUTINY

BY LOUIS TRACY

which should thwart his judgment.

So the clouded day broke sullenly, with gusts of warm rain and red gleams of a sun striving to disperse the mists. And the earth soaked and steamed and threw off feverish vapors as she nursed the grain to life and bade the arid plain clothe itself in summer verdure. It was a fine day to lie wounded and ill and a pitiless, and despite the cooling showers, it was a hot day to ride far and fast.

Hence it was long past noon when a cortege announced to the Residency that the mails—for thus the man described Malcolm until sharply admonished to learn the new order of speech—the Nawabs, then, was somewhat recovered from his faintness. And about the same hour, when a subaltern of the 7th Cavalry stuttered into Sir Barelly and was told that a certain Feringhi whom he sought was safely laid by the heels there, so sullery was the atmosphere that he seemed to be quite glad of the news.

"Shabash! he cried, as he dismounted. "May I never drink at the White Pool of the Prophet if that be not good hearing! So you have caught Man, brethren! Wah, wah! you have done a good thing. Ha is not killed, eh? That is well, for he is nearly wanted at Lucknow. Tie him tightly, thought. He is a fox to gallop, and might give me the slip again. May his knees bloom in an hideous gravel—I have hunted him fifty miles, yet scarce a man I met had seen him!"

CHAPTER X.

Wherein Fate Plays Tricks With Malcolm.

If it is difficult for the present generation to understand the manners and ways of its immediate forbears, how much more difficult to ask it to appreciate the extraordinary features of the siege of Lucknow? Let the reader who knows London imagine some parish in the heart of the city barricading itself behind a mud wall against its neighbors—let him garrison this flimsy fortress with sixteen hundred men and two combatants, of whom a large number were men of an inferior race and of doubtful loyalty to those for whom they were fighting, while seven of the Europeans were their compatriots; let him cram the rest of the available shelter with women and children; let him picture the network of narrow street, tall houses and a few open spaces—often separated from the enemy only by the width of a lane—as being subjected to incessant bombardment at point-blank range; and he will have a clear conception of some, at least, of the conditions which obtained in Lucknow when that gloomy July let carried on the murderous work begun on the previous evening.

The Residency itself was the only strong building in an enclosure seven hundred yards long and four hundred yards wide, though by no means so large a area as these figures suggest. The whole position was surrounded by an adobe wall and ditch, strengthened at intervals by a gate or a strong embrasure for a gun. The other structures, as the Banqueting Hall, which was converted into a hospital, the Treasury, the Brigade Mess, the Begum Kotee, the Barracks, and a few nondescript houses and offices were utterly unsuited for defense against musketry alone. As to their capacity to resist artillery fire, that was a great joke with the natives, who dreaded the fallen masonry as much as the rebel shells.

Even the Residency was forced to use the underground rooms for the protection of the greater part of the women and children, while the remaining buildings, except the Begum Kotee, which was comparatively dilettoed, [illegible] of little, or no expense to the enemy's guns that when some sort of clearance was made in October, [illegible] hundred and thirty-five cannon balls were taken out of the Brigade Mess alone.

Before the siege commenced the British also occupied a strong palace called the Muchee Bhawun, standing outside the enclosure and on the opposite side to the stone bridge across the river Goomtee. A few hours' experience revealed the deadly peril to which its small garrison was exposed, and Lawrence decided at all costs to abandon it. A rude semaphore was erected on the roof of the Residency, and by the light of signal lanterns three officers signaled to the commandant of the outlying fort, Colonel Palmer, that he was to make his guns, blow up the building and bring his men into the main position. The three did their duties under a hail of shot, but they were undeterred. Happily, the prospect of loot in the city drew off thousands of the rebels after sunset, and Colonel Palmer marched quietly at midnight. A few minutes later an appalling explosion shook every house in Lucknow. The Muchee Bhawun, with its immense stores, had been blown to the sky.

That same day Lawrence received what the Celtic orderly among his garrison regarded as a warning of his approaching end. He was working in his room with his secretary when a shell crashed through his table and burst at the feet of the two men. Neither was injured, but Captain Wilson, one of his staff officers, begged the Chief to remove his office to a less exposed place.

"Nothing of the kind," said Sir Henry, cheerfully. "The sepoys don't possess an artillery-man good enough to throw a second shell into the same spot."

"It will please all of us if you give in on this point, sir," persisted Wilson.

"Oh, well, if you put it that way, I'll turn out to-morrow," was the smiling answer.

Next morning at eight o'clock, after a round of inspection, the general, worn out by anxiety and want of sleep, threw himself on a bed in a corner of the room.

Wilson came in.

"Don't forget your promise, sir," he said.

"I have not forgotten, but I am too tired to move now. Give me another hour or two."

Lawrence went on to explain some orders to his aide. While they were in the midst, another shell crashed in, shattered a chair, exploded, and filled the air with dust and stifling fumes. Wilson's ears were stunned by the shock, but he heard the Chief say:

"Tell Harry, are you hurt?"

Lawrence murmured something, and Wilson, rushed to his side. The overlet of the bed was crimson with blood. Some part of the shell had torn a gaping wound in the head of the man he had cried their beloved leader to another room. Then a surgeon came and pronounced the wound mortal. On the morning of the 4th Lawrence died, and Wilson, conscious to the last, suppressed his final hours planning and contriving and making arrangements for the continuance of the defence.

Never surrender was the safety injunction. Shot and shell battered incessantly against the walls of Sir Fayrer's house in which he lay dying, but the sufferer never relaxed that steel heart, and he died as he lived, a splendid soldier and an officer and a gentleman, a type of all that is best and noblest in the Anglo-Saxon race.

And Death, who did not spare the Chief, claimed many victims, and the first week of the siege the average number killed daily was twenty. Even when the women began to avoid the exposed places, and began to practice the tricks and artifices that tempts an enemy to reveal his whereabouts by his ammunition, the daily death-roll was ten for more than a fortnight.

There was no real safety anywhere. Even in the Begum Kotee where Wilson fled and the other ladies of the garrison were lodged, some of them were hit. Twice era the end of July Windsor's house, in the morning, a bullet on the floor and the mortar of the wall broken within a few inches of the bed, and yet they slept soundly under such conditions is a remarkable tribute to human nature's knack of adapting itself to circumstances. After a few days of excessive nervousness the most timorous among the women were heard to complain of the monotony of existence!

And two amazing facts stand out from the record of guard-mounting, parade-marching, and drill-practice, and the rest of the every-day doings ordinarily associated with an army. Although the rebels now numbered at least twenty thousand men, including the disciplined Indian soldiers, they were long in hardening their hearts to attempt the storming of the place. Not one attempt was made during the last day of June, could scarcely have failed to be successful. They were not cowards. They gave proof of it years after, when they met fighting stamina. Yet they cringed from them when they had every regard as the dominant race. The explanation of this extraordinary state of situation was the restlessness of the African, doubtful of all the laws of war to early civilization, and the humor out of its fortem predicament, the Indian disciplined to the mechanism was the Cawnpore massacre. It was perpetrated by a leader known as Johannes' House, whence an inscription was subsequently found, "Nalier" by the wits of the 32nd picked up the phrase and made it the text of opening days of the siege. What guarantee, thought the Indian and had the with the English no one knows, but it was enough to stay the hand, to paralyze, and annoyed him by exhibiting a most disappointed energy. Nor less to say, the whites of his eyes, and his wooly hair were reproduced with marked effect, and "Bob the Nailer" gave added testimony of his skill with a rifle to protection and fear turned the dummy figure.

Malcolm had heard of this man. Once after actually saw him while she was peeping through a forbidden window, [illegible] the wholesale destruction of her "[illegible]." Malcolm, which he was credited, [illegible] had it in her heart to wish that she had's a gun at the moment, and she would, would have done her best to kill him.

"Ah, Windfred, he cried, "what were you doing there? Looking at me I am certain. Have you forgotten the punishment, and the wrong done to you when she would not obey orders?"

"I have but had a glimpse of that and Mr. Hayne could leave his post, she showed him the paper and asked if it was genuine.

He was a good Eastern scholar, but he had seen so many forgeries by every not helpful in a task always difficult in Oriental eyes. He read it over and over the script and began to decipher the cipher.

"Malcolm-sahib, the Company's Sepoys, Bengal Horse, heavy, born Princess Roshinara Begum. Where in the world did you get this, Windfred? Is it true? Is it the Begum your possession?" he said.

"Yes, it is true," Windfred's tutoress—the one you brought me today from his quarters."

"In his turbar? Do you mean that he wore it in his turbar."

"Yes, something of the kind." Hayne examined the paper again.

"That is odd," he muttered after a pause.

"But what does the writing mean? Does it mentions his name and that of the Princess Roshinara? Does it by Hass some definite significance?"

"The Chief Commissioner was busy with the effort to give each soldier a distinctive mark, and Windfred's idea of using the Princess's name for the loss of disdain in his niece's voice.

"Well, I suppose it will please you the document while he held it close to his face, and in a sort of gasp he declares that Mr Malcolm is a friend of the Begum and gives him safe conduct if he visits Delhi with his wife and family. Well, I know the name, but I cannot tell when this was given, as I do I consult a battle calendar. It is important, Windfred, that we should gather a somewhat curious thing to the Chief Commissioner, and it is that all you know of it—merely that it was given to you by the girl herself."

"This accomplished!" said Windfred, "I will tell you what I would have warned her bearer of the passion it drove to madness. Ever since I was dead to Windfred's coolness. It he was married Windfred's face, and Windfred assaed when she produced the neck lace.

He took it, appraised its value slightly, and scrutinized the workmanship of the gold links.

"Made in Delhi," he half whispered, "a wonderful piece of work, probably two lakhs of rupees or even more. It is fit old, too. The craftsmen who fashioned it are dead. Ah, they do not make it nowadays. Why, it may have been made for the Princess Roshinara herself. Its fitly pearls could supply a chapter of a romance. And you found it, to-gether with this wonderful bracelet, in your colur's turbar?"

"Yes, I have. Do you think I would speak carelessly of such a precious object? Know, my dear Windfred, a treasure it is a trait of human nature that I should be precisely the place where it came to light."

Hayne was yet too much taken up with the marvellous jewelry to pay attention to Windfred's demeanor. He remembered the extraordinary precautions taken by Roshinara to Malcolm ere she drove very little faithful, and the lavish pledging of Nejib and the plunging of his master? It occurred to him now, with a certain chilling misgiving, that he had himself broken in with a bewildered and protesting Windfred, and seemed to regard the Princess's offer of employment in her service as worthy of serious thought. There were other aspects of the affair, aspects so sinister that he almost refused to harbor them. Rather is it at time than with any definite motive, he dropped over the jewelry, meaning to read it word for word.

"Of course you have not forgotten, uncle, that Mr. Malcolm took us into

Dramatic Event At Manilla

(Special to the Post.)

The constant rumble of wheels last Friday evening, early after tea was a sure indication that something of unusual interest was about to take place in our village. The cause of so much stir and commotion was the annual concert given by the Dramatic Club in aid of the public library.

This Club through past successes, have won for themselves the reputation for putting on a first-class play, and the surrounding country look forward to this event with great pleasure,

We missed this year some of the familiar faces that have taken part in most of the plays and hope that in the future they will be back in their old places.

That amateur theatricals are decidedly mast popular was once more demonstrated for the I. O. O. F. Hall was packed to the doors, many having to stand to see the drama, Josiah's Courtship.

Mr. Andy Dixon as Josiah, took his part in his usual good style. It makes no difference which charactcr Andy takes, whether kid or old man he takes it to perfection.

Miss Jeanette Ferguson, as Priscilla the old maid, was exceptionally good and her make-up was ideal.

Miss Mary McInnes as "Birdie" the maid on her first appearance stepped right into the hearts of the audience for in both her actions and speech she was so free from the amateur restraint. Miss Emma Cockburn as Edna, was quite charming and won well merited praise.

Miss Eliza as Mrs. Black, the wronged widow never looked better in her widow's weeds and acted her part in denouncing the villian in a very creditable manner.

Mr. Hugh Grant as Mike, Josiah's first servant, brought forth peals of laughter wherever he appeared. Hugh is always a host in himself.

Mr. Lee Edwards as Sharp the detective took his part in a most business like manner and in adjusting the handcuffs he did so with such dexterity one would think it was an every day occurrence.

Mr. George Jewell as Jeff, Miss Priscilla's colored servant always popped in at any critical point in the play and was a favorite from the start. George is a clever actor and is always well received. Mr. George Douglas as Joe never acted better and the antics of him and Jeff caused much merriment.

Mr. Alex. McInnes as Tom Hart the victim of the villain was perfectly at home in the part and did splendid acting.

Mr. Clarence Steele took the rather difficult part of Dick Roland the villain very cleverly. At the close of the performance the expressions on all sides were of satisfaction and most complimentary to the performers.

Special mention must be made of the music. The Oakwood orchestra was in attendance, their music being so good that it was alone worth the price of admission. Miss Kennedy of Cresswell, sang "Sunshine and Butterflies" very sweetly, and we would be glad to have the pleasure of hearing her again. We were glad to welcome Miss Minnie Glendinning and hear again her violin, which received loud applause.

Gramaphone selections were given by Mr. Nelson Hunter, while the people were gathering. Proceeds amounted to about $53.00. ...

PURIFIED HIS BLOOD

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Healed Mr. Wilson's Sores

When the sewers of the body—bowels, kidneys and skin ducts—get clogged up, the blood quickly becomes impure and frequently sores break out over the body. The way to heal them, as Mr. Richard Wilson, who lives near London, Ont., found, is to purify the blood. He writes:

"For some time I had been in a low, depressed condition. My appetite left me and I soon began to suffer from indigestion. Quite a number of small sores and blotches formed all over my skin. I tried medicine for the blood and used many kinds of ointments, but without satisfactory results. What was wanted was a thorough cleansing of the blood, and I looked about in vain for some medicine that would accomplish this.

At last Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were brought to my notice, and they are one of the most wonderful medicines I have ever known. My blood was purified in a very short time, sores healed up, my indigestion vanished. They always have a place in my home and are looked upon as the family remedy."

Dr. Morse's Indian Roo', Pills cleanse the system thoroughly. Sold by all dealers at 25c a box. 6

CLOSING OF CAROLINE-ST. BY C. P.R. IS APPROVED OF BY TOWN COUNCIL

Mr. Duncan, Chief Engineer of the C.P.R., appeared before the Council last night re the closing of the crossing at Caroline-st., north of Colborne-st.,

Mr. Duncan said that owing to the way the grain line was entering the town, it would take all the land between the Lindsay and Bobcaygeon line and Crandell's lot. He had ascertained at the Registry office that Caroline-st., was never registered as a street north of Colborne-st. The C.P.R. wished the town to approve of the closing of this street. The grain line threw the L. & B. line into Crandell's lot and G.TR. also closed company in. The closing of Caroline-st. would not interfere with Colborne-st. The matter was urgent and he would like the Council to attend to it at once.

Mr. John O'Reilly addressed the Council and said he could present fifty affidavits to prove that this street was opened for fifty years and that the town had performed work on it for years. It was also recognized as a street by the railway company.

Mr. Wm. Flavelle asked the liberty of the Council to say a few words on a matter that came up when it was first proposed to build the grain line across the river near Carew's mill. At that time three citizens met Mr. McNicholl of the C.P.R. and pointed out to him how important it was for the town as well as the Company to have the line through the town. Mr. McNicholl stated that the Company were after a satisfactory grade. It was then suggested that the line go farther north and come into the town on a gradual grade. The deputation of citizens assured Mr. McNicholl that the mind and spirit of the citizent was such that there would be no captious opposition. This information was most gratifying to Mr. McNicholl, and as a result the line came through Lindsay.

This morning the Council, accompanied by Mr. Duncan, visited the street in question and a resolution will be passed this evening approving of the closing of Caroline-st. north of Colborne-st.

ANNUAL GRANT TO CITIZENS' BAND CONSIDERED BY COUNCIL LAST NIGHT

(From Tuesday's Evening Post.)

Mr. Jas. Boxall, Treasurer of the Lindsay Citizens Band, wrote the Council last evening asked for a grant of $300. He thanked the Council for their kindness in the past and assurred them the band would try to merit their kindness in the future.

Mr. Boxall, in addressing the Council, said it was usual for the Council to make a grant of $300, the band being under contract for that amount to give twelve concerts. Last year, however, they gave thirteen. This year they would endeavor to give the town the best music and the best band it ever had.

Mr. J. Carew said he would like to see a grant made. All loved music, and they must have a band. Last year the band had a deficit, but it was made up by citizens. Everyone should contribute to help the band. It was a good advertisement for the town, and when the Council assists the band it means that the citizens as a whole contribute. The band has been most liberal in the past and the town could not get along without the organization.

Mayor Beal—Who owns the band property?

Mr. Carew—The citizens.

Mayor Beal—Has the band got an inventory of it?

Mr. Roenigk was called upon to make a statement, and he said that a number of the instruments belonged to the members, and others were the property of the citizens, although they were bought by the band. Ten dollars a month rental was paid for the hall, and it was necessary to have private quarters, as it would be unsafe to leave music, instruments, etc., in a public hall. The expenses for heat and light amounted to about $20 and Mr. Roenigk's salary was $400. In excess of what the town gives the citizens made up from $200 to $300 by subscriptions.

In reply to a question from the Mayor Mr. Roenigk said it was impossible to give a concert or two in the winter. The members of the band were paid nothing for playing in the park and the band made nothing in playing on engagements, etc. Before Mr. Roenigk was appointed Mr. Gray was band master at a salary of $500 a year. The Council ran the band and it cost the town $800 and then it had no band. Barrie had been without a band, and now the Council of that town was asked to give a grant of $700. What the local band got in January went into the Treasury.

Regarding the band concerts in the winter, it was impossible to get a hall suitable for this purpose. Mr. Roenigk said.

Ex-Mayor James Begg said when he was in the Council he always endeavoured to economize but, in connection with grant to the band. He felt that it was money well spent. In fact, he felt the organization was deserving of more liberal assistance, and he urged the present Council to grant the request made by the band, and vote them the grant.

Mr. Richard Sylvester also urged the speedy vote of the grant as a number of new players were anxious to secure positions, and the band would be able to proceed more satisfactorily if the grant were made.

The question will be dealt with by the Finance Committee.

The measure of what we love and admire is the measure of your own worth.

ANGUS McARTHUR AND HIS TAXES

The following communication from Town Treasurer P. Kennedy was read at last night's Council meeting:

"I beg to send you herewith a letter which I received from Mr. Angus McArthur regarding the 1908 taxes on his property. You wou will notice attached thereto a letter from Mr. C. A. Plank, postmaster at Lorneville, certifying that Mr. McArthur purchased a money-order from him for twenty-one dollars, the amount of said taxes. I called on Mr. Palen, assistant postmaster at Lindsay in regard to the matter and his official files here show that the late Clerk and Treasurer duly cashed the said money order. The amount was never credited to Mr. McArthur's account on the town roll the result being that arrears of taxes to the said amount with interest are charged against him in the land book. He expects us to write these taxes off, as he deems the evidence sufficient to prevent his paying such taxes a second time.

It was referred to the Finance Committee.

New Strength In the Spring

Nature needs aid in making new health Giving Blood

In the spring the system needs toning up. To be healthy and strong you must have new blood, just as the trees must have new sap to renew their vitality. Nature demands it and without this new blood, you will feel weak and languid—you may have twinges of rheumatism or the sharp stabbing pains of neuralgia. Often there are disfiguring pimples or eruptions on the skin. In other cases there is merely a feeling of tiredness, and a variable appetite. Any of these are signs that the blood is out of order—that the indoor life of winter has lessened your vitality. What is needed to put you right is a tonic, and in all the world of medicine there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich, red blood—your greatest need in the spring. This new blood drives out disease, cleans the skin, and makes weak, easily tired men, women and children bright, active and strong. You can prove this by your neighbors, for there is not a nook or corner in this great land, where some weak, ailing man or woman has not been made well and strong by this great medicine. Mr. H Wilson, Stonewall, Man., says: "A few years ago I was run down, languid and depressed, and felt as though I was only fitted for life's scrap heap A friend who had great faith in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills gave me a box. Before they were all used I felt some better, and thus encouraged got a further supply, and it was not many weeks until I was again enjoying my former good health. I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a boon to every weak person."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams, Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NEW DIRECTORS WERE APPOINTED

At last night's Council meeting Messrs. John Carew and James Begg of the Lindsay Central Fair, appeared before the Council in reference to the Directors appointed by the Council at a recent session to represent that body on the directorate. Mr Carew pointed out that Mr. B. L. McLean had been dropped, and as he was a most successful and hard working member of the directorate he would like to see him appointed. The Council had recently appointed Messrs. Horn, Lewis and Clarke, and after this request was made Messrs. Lewis and Horn resigned.

Mr. McCrae said he was opposed to accepting a man who was turned down by the Agricultural Society. He would not accept their leavings.

Mr. Dobson—Why did Mr. Horn resign.

Mr. McCrae—Because he was kicked out,

On motion of Messrs. McClory and Smale, Mr. Geo. H. Simpson was appointed a director.

On motion of Messrs. Clarke and Dobson Mr. B. L. McLean was appointed the second director.

D. Eagleson's Account

At last night's Council meeting Mr D. Eagleson, auditor, presented the following account: To balancing general ledger and other services in connection with special audit, $131.25. Balance of 1910 salary, $41.74. Total $172.99. The account was referred to the Finance Committee.

Work Of Art

"The Coronation of King George," is the title of a beautifully gotten up and superbly illustrated booklet issued by the C.P.R. steamship lines. The cover is of dark brown photo paper, with the British coat of arms embossed thereon. The coronation ceremony, from the first preparations to the last is outlined in g very entertaining and concise manner. Beautiful photogravures of the King, the Queen, Westminster Abbey and others adorn this work of art which is indeed a credit to the Canadian Pacific Railway.

CHAS. MEEHAN GOING WEST

Mr. Chas. Meehan, one of Lindsay's best known and most popular young men, was the recipient of a pleasing presentation on Saturday by the employees of Boxall & Matthie s, where he has been employed for the past seven years. Mr. Meehan was presented with a beautiful signet ring and the following address:

To Mr. Chas. Meehan:

Dear Sir.—It is with feelings of regret that we are met to-day to say good-bye. You have been among us almost seven years. During all those years it has been a pleasure to look into your kind and genial face, and I am sure that I am voicing the wish of every member of our staff when I wish you God speed. You will no doubt make many friends in your new home. This one thing I can assure you that the warmer hearts are those that you leave behind. We would ask you to accept this signet ring as a slight token of our esteem and friendship.

Mr. Meehan intends leaving for the Saskatoon in about two weeks, and his host of friends unite in wishing him every success in the west. He is a young man of splendid character, and his departure is regretted.

MR. F. H. KIDD APPOINTED AUDITOR

At last night's council meeting Mr F. H. Kidd was appointed town auditor at a salary of $300, per year. There were three applications read,—one from Mr. Rutherford Williamson, from Mr. F. H. Kidd, and Geo. O. Merson Co., Toronto. Messrs McClory and McCrae moved that Mr. Kidd be appointed to the position.

Mr. Smale proposed Mr. Rutherford Williamson, but he received no seconder. In nominating Mr. Williamson, Mr. Smale said he felt it would be in the best interests of the town to appoint Mr. Williamson for a year at least. He had just completed a most thorough and it of the towns' accounts, and had revealed a most serious condition of affairs. He should, therefore, be felt, follow this work up by being appointed auditor, as he was in a splendid position to give most effective and satisfactory service.

Mr. McCrae said he was opposed to going outside of town for a man and believed in giving a local applicant the position. If Mr. Williamson had succeeded in getting the town's affairs in good shape it ought to be no trouble to have the auditor's work attended to in the future.

Ald. Dobson did not like the idea of boosting salaries but it was pointed out that an auditor could not be expected to give good service at a salary of $250. It required an enormous amount of hard work.

A bylaw was afterwards passed appointing Mr. Kidd auditor at a salary of $300.

Obituary

FREDERICK JEFFERY

Oakwood, April 4.—Mrs. Noble Tait received the sad news that her brother, Mr. Frederick Jeffery had died on Sunday, March 19th in Winnipeg at the early age of thirty two years. Mr. Jeffery had been ill about two years with that dreaded disease, consumption, and leaves a widow and one child. He was well-known at Little Britain, his former home.

MISS S. GUILLET.

Cobourg Sentinel Star: We copy the following from 'The Grace Church Bulletin, Winnipeg, in reference to the death of the late Miss Sarah Guillet: Miss Guillet, of McMicken-st. died quite suddenly Feb. 19th, at the home of her sisters, the Misses Scott, on Qu'Apelle Ave. Miss Guillet has been for a great many years a member of Grace and as a disciple of our Lord her life has been marked by faithfulness. She will be greatly missed from our services, of which she was a very regular attendant.

The deceased had relatives in Lindsay.

PHILIP EDWARD CROUGH

A sad death occurred on Wednesday March 29th at the residence of Philip Edward Crough, Smith.

The deceased was a bright little child of two years and five months of age. The funeral was largely attended by friends from Norwood, Lindsay, and Peterboro.

The pall bearers were Stepher, Arnold, Wilfred and Michael Crough. The sympathy of the community is extended to the parents.

WM. T. PEPPER.

Last night at 6.30 there passed away at his home, Pottinger street, Mr. Wm. T. Pepper, at the age of 55 years. Deceased was born at Wexford, Ireland, and is survived by three sons and three daughters. Mary, Kathleen Gertrude, Freeman, George and Guy. He also leaves a brother, George, in San Francisco and three sisters, Mrs I. Johnston, and Mrs. S. Holmes of Chatham and Mrs. Wm. Barry, Mildmay.

DOES ANYONE KNOW FAREWELL?

Mr. William Sproule, of Penetanguishene has written His Worship Mayor Beal asking for information concerning a man named Farewell whom, he states, had been connected with building operations here. He skipped out, he states, and if gives information as to description he might be able to locate him. Farewell was a man in Peterboro, he wrote, who had a strange appearance and who said he was a brother of Sir William Mackenzie, and he wanted to see about the electric line running to that town. He then changed his name and finally left Penetanguishene. Sproule said if he was Mr. Farewell, he would be located in a few minutes.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC REPORT READY

At last night's Council meeting Ald McCrae notified the members that the report of the Hydro-Electric commission officials on the power situation was now ready for submission to the Council and that a representative would come to Lindsay just as soon as the Council was ready to receive the report. A special meeting of the Council will likely be called for at an early date.

THE TROUSERS' SKIRT

An Attempt to Popularize it Resulted in Street Riots in Vienna

Persistent efforts on the part of French dressmaking firms to popularize the trousers skirt in Vienna have resulted in a number of street riots on a small scale. No women have yet dared to wear the offending garments in public save dressmakers' models, and these have been mobbed to such an extent by indignant street throngs that traffic has been stopped and extra detachments of police summoned to restore order. Several scenes of this character occurred in the heart of Vienna recently. In most cases the unfortunate girls sought refuge in shops, which were consequently besieged by the crowd. In one instance the occupants of a shop in which a trousers-skirted woman sought refuge tried to disperse the crowd by throwing water from the upper windows. This angered the anti-trouser-skirt gathering and they retaliated by smashing all the shop windows. It is not likely that the new garment will ever become popular in Vienna.

EFFECTIVE REMEDY

A prominent physician was recently called to his telephone by a colored woman formerly in the service of his wife. In great agitation the woman told the physician that her youngest child was in a bad way.

"What seems to be the trouble?" asked the doctor.

"Doc, she swallered a bottle of ink!"

"I'll be over there in a short while to see her," said the doctor. "Have you done anything for her?"

"I gave her three pieces of blotin' paper, Doc," said the colored woman tearfully.

SOCIALIST PROTEST

Preparations in Austria-Hungary for an Imposing Demonstration

Great preparations are being made by the Socialist parties in Austria-Hungary and Italy to ensure that their demonstration of protest against armaments on Palm Sunday shall be as imposing as possible. This demonstration promises to be on a gigantic scale. Not only will the Socialist leaders of both countries meet in Rome on April 9th to make a vigorous protest against the immense burdens laid by the military authorities upon the shoulders of the two peoples, but it is also intended to convene mass meetings and to arrange processions and other demonstrations in all the towns and industrial centres of Austria-Hungary and Italy on the same day. The Socialist argument is that armaments are superfluous, as the Austro-Hungarian and Italian peoples have no wish to make war upon each other, and are, therefore, a criminal waste of national property. The money spent on Dreadnoughts and super fortifications and guns, they declare, should be used for building more schools and hospitals and other useful social purposes.

THE ZIONIST FEDERATION

In spite of the prognostications of the pessimists, the recent Conference of the English Zionist Federation did not display as hopeless a state of affairs as was expected. A working organization has again been formed, and apart from the two great rival protagonists, Dr. Gaster and Mr. Greenberg, practically all the active leaders of Zionism in England have joined forces, all breaches are healed and all differences are adjusted, but the task before the Zionist party in England and abroad is stupendous and more difficult of accomplishment than at any time since Dr. Herzl first launched his project. To them, indeed, the future looks dark and depressing, and if the Zionist vessel is safely steered out of its present sea of trouble into the far distant, but ardently desired haven, once more will a miracle have been performed on behalf of the Children of Israel.

DRIVER WANTED AT FIRE HALL

There is another vacancy at the fire hall. Walter Magee, the second teamster, who was appointed by the council at its last meeting resigned the position some days ago, and the council was asked by Deputy-reeve Lewis to take proceedings to have the vacancy filled.

Ald. Naylor said that in his opinion the appointment of a second driver at $450 a year would always end in a failure. If the town put up the salary to $500, they would secure a capable teamster. He also referred to the unsatisfactory snow plough service given the north ward this year. He had a man in view who would fill the position satisfactorily. He understood horses thoroughly, was sober and industrious, and would give excellent satisfaction. The man in question would get up early and do the snow ploughing. It was worth the money to get a good teamster.

Deputy Reeve Lewis was instructed to advertise for a second teamster for the fire hall.

FALL WHEAT CAME THROUGH WELL

Winnipeg, Man., March 31.—Careful investigation by local grain exchange members, by mill-men and reports from Minneapolis and Chicago show most satisfactory agricultural conditions in the Canadian West to-day.

Fall wheat is reported in excellent shape in both Northern and Southern Alberta, having come through the winter well. There is considerable increase in acreage. Experiments with fall wheat in some parts of Manitoba are also promising.

The open character of last fall resulted in a big amount of fall plowing though this would have been still further increased had it not been for continued draught. But heavy and frequent snowfalls, which have had a chance to soak well in, have removed this danger

It is difficult to estimate how much new land was broken last year ready for seeding this spring, but the area must have been very considerable, especially in Saskatchewan, where entirely new districts have been brought under the plow. Estimates of increased acreage to be seeded to spring wheat are from 10 to 50 per cent.

EARLY CLOSING ON SATURDAY NIGHT

On Sunday morning the question of late shopping on Saturday was brought before the congregation of the Cambridge-st. Methodist church by its pastor, who requested his congregation to buy early, that clerks could get the full benefit of God's rest day, and would have an opportunity of attending the services on the Sabbath. He also said that in no town do the merchants so well observe the Sabbath by drawing their window blinds over their excellent display of stock as in Lindsay. He commended them for it in very kindly terms.

DETECTIVE HOGAN, HANDCUFF KING, WAS WELL KNOWN IN LINDSAY

The following from the Toronto Saturday night refers to Mr. John Hogan, well and favorably known by Lindsay citizens. He figured a few years ago on the defunct Lindsay Free Press :

"A Peterboro reader who has been interested in the skit, Sinkers Limited, was especially taken with Detective Hogan, who figured in the denouement. It reminded him of an old friend. "The rivalry of the press in the small cities of Ontario is proverbial," writes this correspondent. The liver the town the more anxious the reporter, who is usually sporting editor, city editor and proofreader also, to get ahead of the sheet across the street. The livest newspaper chap who ever struck Peterboro was a lad named Hogan. At first people were a little sly of his city manners, but he soon turned things upside down, rooted up all the items that were going, and turned everything into a source of news. He was interested in many) things and when a variety show came to town with one of those fellows who can get out of a locked and roped trunk, and to whom the tighest pair of handcuffs are no puzzle, Hagon was all excitement He was fully convinced himself that this handcuff expert had abnormal if not supernatural powers, and one night, meeting the Policeman on the street—that is to say the man who acted as watchman while the Chief was home sleeping, and turned out the lights at dawn—he told that official of the marvellous achievement of "Morunko the Lock-Defier."

"I'll bet he couldn't get out of mine," said the Police Force.

"Yes he could," said Hogan, "he could get out of anything!"

"How does he do it?" asked the Force.

"This way," said Hogan, turning his hands about as he had seen the expert do. In a second the watchman had the Darbies on Hogan's wrists.

"Now," said the Police Force," "you will have to go to the Chief's house to get them unlocked. I haven,t got the key." So Hogan had to walk from one end of Peterboro to the other and rouse the chief out of bed to free his hands. The worst of it was that the rival paper got hold of the episode and from 'that day until he sought a wider sphere of activity, he was known as "Detective Hogan, the Handcuff King."

MONTH OF MARCH WAS PECULIAR APRIL'S SALUTATION A COLD ONE

Remembering the lamb-like beginning of March, you have undoubtedly been looking for the lion-like ending. And the first glance out of th' window this morning, gave you cold chills.

WHAT WEATHER MAN SAYS

The wise Weather Man up in Toronto Observatory, the man who has hind sight as well as foresight, who is hand-in-glove with Atmospheric Pressures, Mean Temperature, Sea levels and such like, is able to tell you some interesting things about the month.

He tells you, to your surprise—for you had thought differently,—that March, 1911, has been a comparatively mild month, with an average temperature to date of 30.2 degrees which is slightly above the average of the past twenty years.—

REMEMBER THE COLD

You say, courteously, but firmly, 'I can scarcely believe it," and plaintively recall how your fingers, and toes and nose were blue with cold.

BIRDS AND FLOWERS.

But the Weather Man knows. He has the proofs just at his finger tips. So, for that matter has the man on the street with frozen extremeties.

The birds, know, too. They have been twittering outside your window in the early morning for days. It is two long weeks since the first robin appeared in the town's midst. So do the tulips know, for they have for a week been bravely lifting their heads an inch above the ground. And the crocuses, which for three weeks have flaunted their orange blossoms to the sky, without any intervening glass between.

SUNSHINY DAYS

Thinking of these things, you remember the bright sunshiny days, from the 12th to the 18th of the month of March and also how the 27th was, for a little time at least, almost up to summer heat. You forget the snow—which had fallen to an average of six inches during the month—and remember these three of four really summer-like days.

Take it altogether, this 6March which came in remarkably like a lamb, has kept the character.

BOAST OF GOOD WEATHER

It is quite probable that shades of 1911 joinging the wraiths of bygone years at midnight on the 31st of next December, will say loftily:

"My twelve children behaved in a most exemplary manner. March, especially, whom I thought, might prove a most pestilent fellow, indulged only in mild pranks, though he had, such a nervous temperament. The thirtieth day of his life was rather stormy.

RECORD OF 1910.

And the ghost of 1910 will also loftily remark:

"Really, almost as good a record as my March had. Why, one or two weeks I could have dressed that child up in his sister, June's clothes and no one would have known the difference, he was so sweet and gentle. Why, MY March's temperature was 8.6 above the average.

The triumphant tone cannot be echoed by 1909, whose third child was as much a lion as a lamb. at least in the beginning.

SOME STORMY ONES.

Nor by 1908, for that year has a distinct remembrance of a lion like March 1st.

As for the little shrivelled-up reminders of 1880, 1881, 1884, 1886, and nearly a dozen others down to the more robust 1906, they will keep far in the back-ground murmuring sadly:

"How our March's did act, just the very day they were born ! They tore and stormed and blustered, and we had no semblance of authority over them."

HIGH AND LOW TEMPERATURES.

The coldest March on record was that of 1885, when the temperature was 18.5. The warmest was in 1903 with a temperature of 39.3. The very highest ever recorded in March was 75.2, which was on the 28th, 1910. The lowest was 1.6, on the 3rd, 1868.

POWER SCHEME AT PETERBORO

Times : The question of cheap power for Peterboro is engaging the attention of the Industrial Commissioner Duggan and others. It is understood that there will be two or more alternative propositions to be consulted, viz., The Hydro-Electric power, under Government auspices, the purchase of the Lakefield dam and the purchase of power on the river Trent at Healey's Falls and other points.

The Times has been informed that Lakehurst power, which is owned by the Dickson Company, can be obtained at a reasonable price, and that about 30,000 horse power can be developed there. In the meantime there is our present unused power to consider, which is, we believe, very considerable, The whole subject is one that will require the most careful consideration when it comes before the Council, as it will in the near future.

Success is a target with a very small bull's eye.

MILITARY CANTEEN RE-ESTABLISHMENT

Rev. J. P. Wilson, in his sermon last evening referred to an item in the newspaper, which said that General Percy Lake had recommended the re-establishment of the canteen in the Military camps in Canada. The reverend gentleman said that every temperance and religious organization in the Dominion was opposed to such a move, and it meant that the parents of the young men from our High Schools and homes would be induced to not take up military duties when unnecessary temptations were placed in their way. He said he trusted the Militia Department would not consider the suggestion seriously.

No man can be greater than his wife will permit.

WORK COMMENCES AT CAREW'S MILL

The John Carew Lumber Co. will start their saw mill next week and this will be the earliest opening they have ever had. The early start has been necessary on account of a large number of special orders that are pressing for delivery The company expect to employ in the neighborhood of 100 men this season, and the season's outlook is very promising. The mill and the machinery have had an overhauling and several new machines have been added to the plant.

GOLD DISCOVERED NEAR COCHRANE

Cobalt, March, 31.—The excitement over the discovery of gold in the cement chimney of Cochrane grows, and the citizens are panning gravel on the streets since it has been discovered. It came, presumably, from the same pits as the sand used in making the chimney.

Thousands of tons of gravel have been laid on top of the snow, and speculation is rife as to who is the owner of it.

The discovery was made by an old gold prospector when cleaning up the debris on Sixth street after the fire.

There is no doubt that the speck of gold has been found in the chimney, and some more has since been found.

All gravel within miles has been staked, and considerable panning is now going on.

Men are sitting up at night watching their holdings for fear they will be jumped.

Mayor McManus was one of the first to stake out holdings.

PETERBORO AFTER ORILLIA INDUSTRY

Orillia Times : A deputation representing the Council and Board of Trade of Peterboro waited upon the management of the National Hardware Co., Limited, on Monday, and it is understood made a tempting offer for that concern to move to Peterboro. Orillia cannot afford to lose any of its industries and the Town Council should see that every legitimate inducement is made to keep the Lock Works in Orillia.

RAISING SALARY OF MINISTERS

Providing the Augmentation Committee can raise $63,000 for the work the minimum standard of stipend for ministers of the Presbyterian church fixed by the General Assembly will be paid this year. Last year $46,000 was paid out to supplement stipend. For the raising of this money the appointment of a Field Secretary by the General Assembly will be recommended.

Last year the supplemented stipend were : Ontario and Quebec, $850 and manse; $950 and manse in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta; $975 and manse in British Columbia. Nearly all congregations which had been self sustaining but had paid less than $850 with manse, were advanced to $850 or $900. Some 24 congregations were added to the list and 12 became self-sustaining.

The new schedule aimed at by the committee for the coming year is :—Ontario and Quebec $900 and manse ; Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta $1,000 and manse; British Columbia, $1100.

SERIOUS FIRE AT MINDEN SATURDAY

(Special to The Post)

Minden, April 3.—On Saturday morning at 2 o'clock the citizens of Minden were roused by the call of fire. The stables at the Ranson House were burned, very little of the stock and implements being saved.

MR. W. H. ELLIOTT IS PRESIDENT

Inspector W. H. Elliott, B.A., of the Toronto Public schools, formerly of Lindsay, was on Saturday elected President of the Toronto Teachers' Association, at the closing session of the annual meeting held in Convocation Hall of the University of Toronto. Mr. Elliott's election was by acclamation.

MORE COLD WEATHER AND RAIN IS THE PROMISED APRIL PROGRAMME

A reactionary storm period is in progress as we pass from March into April. Storms of rain, wind and thunder will culminate on and touching Sunday 2nd, winding up with possible snow in the northern extremes. Rising barometer, fair weather and frosty nights will visit most parts of the country between the 2nd and 4th. A seismic period, which is central on March 30th will reach for three or four days later into April.

A regular storm period covers the 4th to the 8th having its centre on the 6th. Falling barometer, change to much warmer, with growing cloudiness and storms will begin in the west on the 4th and 5th. During the 6th to 8th storms of rain, wind and thunder will make their transit from west to east, touching most parts of the country. These storms will be in the form of heavy April showers, breaking into severe thunder squalls and hail storms in many localities. Fair weather and cool nights, with possible frost, northward, will follow these storms.

A reactionary storm period marks the closing days of earth's vernal equinotial, central on the 11th, 12th, and 13th. Low barometer and very high temperature on and touching the 11th and 12th will bring severe thunder, rain and hail to many sections. Hot, muggy conditions, with very low barometer and angry, electrical clouds, should be admonitions of tornadoes at this period. This also is a period in which seismic disturbances will be heard from, say within three days of Thursday, the 13th.

A regular storm period extends from the 16th to the 21st. We will designate the 18th, 19th and 20th as the crisis of this period. On and touching these dates, expect many active Aprils storms and squalls, attended by hail and followed by a change to much cooler.

A reactionary storm period has its centre on the 24th and 25th. This period will, most likely, not react into high barometer, and general ill-storm conditions, but run into a series of daily April showers.

A regular storm period is central on the 29th, extending from the 26th to May 3rd. On the 28th new moon or moon's conjunction with earth and sun, is at a total solar eclipse-ode. From the date of this eclipse, of the sun, the 28th, to the end of April, there is a combination of astronomical causes which is certain to excite phenomenal disturbances in the atmosphere and in the terrestial globe. From the 25th of April to the 4th of May is one of the most positive seismic periods of the year.

NINE DIVORCES WERE GRANTED

Ottawa, March, 30.—At a meeting of the Private Bills committee of the Commons today, bills from the Senate were reported granting divorces to Geo. A. Brown, Port Hope, Gertrude Grant, Winnipeg; Mary Johnson, Toronto, Dalton Mabel Stapleton, Toronto; Lorne F. Robertson, Stratford; Cecil E. Freeman, Eglinton; Ethel Mary Howell, Toronto; Pauline Verena Meyer; Toronto; and Maggie F. Sadler, Toronto.

SYLVESTER DRILL GIVES SATISFACTION

The Sylvester drill has always, since its introduction, enjoyed the distinction among the individual farmers of the West, of being the best drill on the market. It it not always the case that an American will believe that we Canadians have anything superior to what they manufacture themselves. Mr. S. T. Detchon, of Chicago, is the owner of what is said to be the largest farm in the North west, and maintains a small army of employees, and is the owner of eighteen of the largest drills made by the Sylvester Manufacturing Co., of this town. A few days ago he ordered two more drills of the same kind, and says there is no drill made that can do its work with the satisfaction that can be had from the drill made by our local company.

MAIDEN SPEECH OF FUTURE KING

London, March 29.—The boyish Prince of Wales performed his first public act and made his maiden speech to-day at Dartmouth. The occasion was the observing of the ancient custom of presenting to the Town of Dartmouth a silver oar symbolizing its traditional guardianship of that harbor.

The chief impression left upon his huge crowd of future subjects by the Prince was the youngster's modesty, but notwithstanding his nervousness, which he showed by blushes, by biting his lip frequently, and casting frequent supplicating glances at his tutor, the Prince came through with flying colors, and the women were unanimous in pronouncing him "a dear."

His younger brother Albert, who accompanied the Prince, evidently enjoyed his own lack of responsibility, and laughed happily at the crowds.

STRICKEN DRIVING TO STATION

Port Elgin, Ont., March 29.—While Mr. C. Sparling traveller for Wilson, Lytle and Badgerow, of Toronto, was riding from the hotel to the depot today to catch the train for Southampton, he took a stroke, and was immediately taken to the hotel, but died a few hours later.

IMMIGRATION IS MUCH HEAVIER

The following from the Lethbridge Herald refers to a former Lindsay citizen: "Mr. R. G. McNeillie, C.P.R. district passenger agent, is in the city on one of his regular tours of inspection. Asked by the Herald about the passenger traffic on the companys lines this year, he said it beat all previous records. "The immigration to Western Canada this spring is heavier than ever before," said Mr. McNeillie. "Car after car of new settlers are arriving from the east every day and are being distributed to the various parts. The rush is not to any one point, either; every place on the map receives its quota. It looks to me like the biggest year in our history."

SANG IN THE AGONY OF DEATH

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 29.—With both arms and a leg burned off by electric wires and so terribly injured that his death was certain, John Grady, of Nanticoke, yesterday sang his mother's favorite song as he was carried into the house, to prevent her being suddenly shocked and alarmed by his unexpected return. It was "The Top o' the Morn," and as the aged woman came to inquire why he was returning home he told her he had been slightly burned. He saved her from a sudden shock, but died two hours later.

The young man was repairing wires when a current of 4,000 volts was accidentally turned into them. Before he could be released both arms had been burned off near the elbow and one leg near the knee. Despite his injuries he never lost courage.

"Dr. Miles' Nervine Raised Me From the Grave"—Mrs. Taylor

This is a strong statement to make, but it is exactly what Mrs. Thomas Taylor, of Blum, Texas, said in expressing her opinion of this remedy.

"Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine raised me from the grave and I have much confidence in it. I can never say enough for your grand medicines. If anyone had offered me $100.00 for the second bottle of Nervine that I used I would have said 'no indeed.'"
MRS. THOMAS TAYLOR, Blum, Tex.

Nervous exhaustion is a common occurence of modern life. The wear and tear on the nervous system is greater now than at any time since the world began. For sleeplessness, poor appetite and that "run down" feeling, nothing is so good as

Dr. Miles' Nervine

HON. A. MACKAY ON A TOUR

The leader of the Liberal Opposition in the Legislature, Hon. A. G. MacKay, will throw himself into the pro-reciprocity struggle in this Province. One week from tomorrow he will commence a series of meetings at Beaverton. These will last at least two weeks. The addresses given by Mr. MacKay in the Legislature during the debate on Sir James Whitney's resolution has attracted considerable attention and many requests have reached the central office for similar addresses.

WILL ORILLIA BE DIVISIONAL POINT

The News Letter was informed yesterday from a reliable source that the C.P.R. will, in a few weeks will start work in the yard here on the construction of a round house and a repair shop. If the report proves correct it will be a good thing for the town, as it will probably mean that this is to be a divisional point, and that a large staff of men will be employed here.

The laying of rails from Coldwater to Orillia will commence very soon. The rails from Silver Creek, to Orillia will be pushed ahead immediately, so that large construction trains can get to work hauling material to fill in the lake front, yard and other necessary places on the line in this vicinity.

ESTURION TO STEAM UP AGAIN

Times: Mr. W. T. C. Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, has disposed of the Steamer Esturion to a syndicate of gentlemen at Fenelon Falls. The steamer is a large passenger boat with a carrying capacity of about 350 passengers.

A gang of men will be put at work at once to put the steamer in first-class shape for the season's business. She will probably be put on the Lindsay-Sturgeon Point route and will also handle special excursion business between Lake Simcoe and Rice Lake. The owners will be known as the Trent Valley Navigation Co., Ltd.

Don't harp on one string until you talk with a twang.

PROPOSED REVISION OF CALENDAR

London, March 31.—The British Government is taking immediate steps to ascertain the views of the commercial community of the Kingdom on the question of revising the calendar so that a given date shall always fall on the same day of the week.

The action is taken in consequence of an invitation from the Swiss Government to take part in an international conference.

The proposals of the calendar reformers are that the first day of the year shall be a bank holiday, called, 'New Year's Day," which shall not count as a day of the week, of the month or of the quarter. This leaves for the rest of the year 364 days This number divides exactly into four equal quarters of ninety-one days each and into fifty-two weeks of seven days each. Each quarter would thus contain exactly thirteen weeks. According to the proposed scheme, it would be divided into two months of thirty days each and one month of thirty-one days.

To provide for Leap Year, a bank holiday, to be called "Leap Year Day," would in Leap Years be inserted between June 31st., and July 1st.

UNION JACK FLOATS DAILY

MR. BRADEN WILL LIVE IN LINDSAY

(Special to The Post)

Bobcaygeon, April 4.—An At Home was held in Knox Church school room here on last Thursday evening so that the members of the congregation would have a chance to spend a social evening with Mr. John Braden, who is leaving Bobcaygeon to reside with his daughter, Mrs. T. A. Fisher, of Lindsay. Tea was served and a most social evening was spent till about 9.30, when a presentation was made to Mr. Braden, accompanied by an address, which set forth the deep loss the congregation was sustaining by the removal of Mr. Braden, who has faithfully worked in every part of the life of Knox Church for half a century, on the session of the Board of Management and in the Sabbath school. After the address and presentation Mr. Braden made a touching reply, and assured the congregation that his sympathies and interest would always be with the people of Knox Church here, and in turn the members will always retain the kindest remembrance of Mr. Braden as one of the founders and oldest members of this church.

Mr. Braden's sale of household furniture took place on last Saturday, was largely attended by good buyers, so that things were sold quirkly at good prices.

INSPECTOR TILLEY'S SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Dr. W. E. Tilley, M.A., Inspector of Public Schools, is recovering nicely from his recent accident. He had gone to the kitchen for water to take upstairs. Two doors—a hall and a cellar door are in juxtra-position. Turing off the light he proceeded to the hall door, as he thought, but he opened the one leading to the cellar and fell a distance of at least 9 feet, striking on his head on the concrete floor. His head was cut so that six stitches were required and he suffered a slight concussion from which he is still suffering. The wonder is that his neck was not broken. He is still confined to his bed but is very much improved.

BABIES SORES

Every mother should realize that the skin of her baby is so tender that the secretions of the body often lead to rashes, eruptions, etc., all of which may be removed by Zam-Buk and the use of Zam-Buk Soap. Scores of restless, crying babies, upon examination, are found to be suffering from some form of skin irritation or "heat." Use Zam-Buk Soap for the bath and apply Zam-Buk Balm to the sores, and the trouble will soon vanish.

Mrs. L. Hood, of 475 Alexander Ave., Winnipeg, says: "Some nasty sores broke out around my baby's mouth, and despite all the preparations used, they refused to heal. I took him to St. Boniface Hospital and he remained there for two weeks. At the end of that time he was no better, and we again took him home. I was then advised to try Zam-Buk and obtained a supply. The effect of the first few applications was very gratifying and I continued with the use of the balm. A little perseverance resulted in a complete cure."

A DOUBLE CURE FOR DOUBLE TROUBLE

Father Morriscy's No. 26 Cures Catarrh by a Combined Treatment.

The sudden weather variations in our climate result in a great many cases of catarrh—a troublesome disease usually considered hard to cure, and one which often leads to serious pulmonary and intestinal troubles.

A neglected cold in the head weakens the nasal membranes, so that at every future exposure the trouble returns. At length these conditions are fastened onto the system, and the sufferer undergoes the annoyance and danger of chronic catarrh.

Some doctors confine themselves to prescribing external applications, and thus do not reach the seat of the trouble. Others give internal treatment exclusively, and thus do not promptly relieve the affected parts.

Father Morriscy, the skilled priest-physician, rightly regarded catarrh as a double trouble, consisting of unpleasant local effects and their fundamental causes, the latter having to do with impaired general vitality.

His famous remedy, No. 26, is a combined cure for catarrh. It consists of tablets to be taken three times a day, and an especially compounded salve.

The salve is antiseptic, and quickly heals the inflamed membranes of the nasal passages. The tablets go to the seat of the trouble and restore the system to its usual tone. Together, they cure.

Instead of neglecting a disease that is unpleasant to yourself and to others, and one which often leads to pneumonia and consumption, it is surely the part of wisdom to take timely steps to do away with the effects and at the same time remove the cause. No. 26 does just that.

A MOST COMMENDABLE ENTERPRISE BETTER GRADE OF APPLES SECURED

We were very much pleased to learn that Messrs. Flavelles Limited were showing most commendable enterprise in taking hold of a number of our depleted orchards with a view to making them produce fruit of a much better quality as well as increasing the production of same. We understand that they have already leased several orchards and are immediately putting a number of experts into same to thoroughly prune and scrape so that they may be subsequently sprayed. They have already purchased a powerful power sprayer which can be used to much better advantage, and which will take care of about 30 acres during the period when spraying is done.

Messrs Flavelles Limited felt, following the experience of the past two years in handling apples, that it was absolutely necessary for either to secure a better grade of apples or else to go out of the business and sooner than do the latter, it suggested itself to them the leasing of a number of these orchards and provide the necessary equipment for taking care of them with the idea of producing the quality of fruit which the market now demands. In some localities, where little spraying has been done, the Evaporator has its chance and takes a large portion of the fruit which is unfit for shipping. If the methods which are proposed to be employed by Flavelles Ltd. work out they figure that a very large percentage of the fruit will grade No. 1 variety and in this way will reduce the cull apples to the minimum. Something along the same line is being done in the Fruit Sections through the Fruit Growers' Association and it suggests to us that it might be a good idea for the Farmers in the locality of Scugog Lake to get in touch with Messrs. Flavelles Ltd. and see whether an Association might be formed to take care of valuable orchards in that locality. Some working arrangements might be entered into that would enable them to get the advantages of modern spraying with a power machine as they have said to us that there is no limit to the market if a high grade of fruit can only be secured.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER FOR EAST

Toronto Mail: No greater proof of the success of the Hydro-Electric scheme, and no greater tribute to the work of the Hon. Adam Beck and his associates on the Hydro-Electric Commission, could be shown by the fact that the Eastern municipalities of the Province who have followed since its inception the working out of the scheme in the western portions of the Province, will in the near future receive a supply of Hydro-Electric power at a reasonable rate and under as favorable conditions as the western municipalities now receive power from Niagara Falls. The commission yesterday received an optional contract from the New York and Ontario Power Co., of Waddington, N.Y., for the supply of 15,000 horse power, and this contract will be placed before the representatives of the eastern municipalities at a meeting to be held next week. In addition to this new branch of the Hydro-Electric system, it was decided by the Government and the commission yesterday to extend the high tension line from St. Thomas to Windsor, and a contract was made with the Simcoe Power Co. for 1,600 horse-power, sufficient to supply the Towns of Midland, Penetanguishene, and Waubaushene.

CREDITORS LOOK FOR THIS FARMER

Smith's Falls, Ont., March 31.—Something of a sensation has been created in this district by the disappearance of a well-known and highly respected farmer of this locality, leaving a large number of mourning creditors.

The man in question said he was buying horses to take West. He then called on his neighbors and asked them to back his note for various amounts. He later cashed the notes and in this way he secured upwards of $10,000. One man alone paid over $1,800. The farmer made an assignment a few days ago and immediately afterwards left this district.

BUILDING DAM AT HEALEY'S FALLS

Cobourg, March, 30.—Healey's Falls, the historic water fall in the northeast part of Northumberland County, about which there was such a keen contest among rival electric power companies, is becoming the scene of much activity and next month a very large force of men are expected to be at work there. A new concrete dam and three locks are required to overcome the drop of 76 feet, and the work necessitates a big amount of rock cutting. Messrs Haney, Quinlan and Robertson have the contract. When the work is finished boats will be able to go within about a mile of Campbellford.

Let Wife Remain But Got Children

Detroit, Mich., March 29.—A case with many Enoch Arden-like ramifications, and in which William H. Iden, of Winnipeg, and his two pretty daughters, now 16 and 10 years old respectively, play the principal parts, has just come to light here. Iden, who has lived in Winnipeg for the past few years, was deserted by his wife some eight years ago and until a month ago he could get no trace of her or his two young daughters, who went with their mother.

Recently he learned that Mrs. Iden was living in Rochester, Mich., some thirty miles from Detroit and he went in search of her. He found that she had removed to Pontiac and become the wife of William Finn, and had given birth to another daughter, now three years old. Iden took the matter philosophically and let his wife remain where she is, but when he returned to Winnipeg yesterday his two young daughters accompanied him.

WHO WILL SUCCEED REID?

The question of a successor to Ambassador Whitelaw Reid has long been exercising the minds of Americans in London and the members of the Diplomatic Corps. Some of these latter profess to see in the selection of John Hays Hammond as United States representative at the Coronation more than a hint of who the next Ambassador will be.

Instructions For Entrance Exams

This year the entrance examinations will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 26th, 27th and 28th commencing at 1.15 p.m. This is a change from previous years and allows the High School to complete the week which formerly was broken by the examination. The examination of entrance to model schools will be held on the same dates as instruction have been issued to that effect. In order to prevent overcrowding of high schools by the admission of ill-prepared pupils, the Chairman of Entrance Boards are instructed to follow exactly the ruling of the Department, 40 per cent on each subject and a 60 per cent total for examination. The Education Department has issued a circular to the chairmen of the H. S. Entrance Boards, calling for a more rigid marking of the answer papers, and complaining that in the past, both public and high schools have been demoralized by the passing of students quite unfit for advanced work. The report of the next examination is not to be published until the Department revises the finding of the examiners and no students below the required standard are to be passed on trial except with the approval of the department.

ARE THE COLONIES ARROGANT?

Hon. George E. Foster, speaking at the Sons of England banquet, Toronto, expressed the view that the colonies are becoming too arrogant. He did not think the overseas dominions should have the power to make international treaties. Such power would certainly tend towards selfishness. Mr. Foster said the spirit of loyalty to the Empire and the glory of the old flag must be inculcated in the minds of our youth.

LORD'S PRAYER IN POEM

(The following verses, contributed by Rev. George Thomas Lawton, of Minneapolis, Minn., to the Living Church, were found in manuscript on the body of a soldier on the battlefield of Charleston, S. C, after the Civil War. They were picked up by some stranger who never found who the writer was. It will be noted that the concluding phrases of the second line in each couplet, when put together, form the Lord's Prayer, according to the prayer book version. There is no title to the poem.)

"Thou at the mercy seat our soul
doth gather,
To do all duty unto Thee—our Father
To whom all honor, all praise, should be given;
For Thou are the great God who art in heaven
Thou, by Thy wisdom, rulest the world's whole fame.
Forever, therefore, hallowed be Thy name,
Let nevermore delay divide us from
Thy glorious face, but let Thy kingdom come, Let Thy commands opposed be by none,
Let Thy good pleasure and Thy will be done,
And let our promptness to obey be even,
The very same on earth as it is in heaven,
Then for our souls, O Lord, we also pray,
Thou wouldst be pleased to give us
this day,
The food of life wherewith our souls
are fed,
Sufficient raiment and our daily bread
With every needful thing do Thou relieve us,
And of Thy pity, and forgive us,
All our misdeeds, for him who Thou didst please,
To make an offering for our trespasses,
And forasmuch O Lord, as we believe,
That Thou wilt pardon us, as we f give,
Let that love teach, wherewith Thou
didst acquaint us,
To pardon all those who trespass
ainst us,
And though sometimes Thou find
we have forgot,
This love for Thee, yet help, and l us not,
Through our soul or body's want

Last evening in St. Andrew's church a mixed choir of forty-five voices delighted a large audience of Lindsay's best citizens by furnishing a programme of both sacred and secular numbers, the excellence of which has probably never been surpassed in this town or has a chorus ever achieved a more distinct triumph.

The concert was under the auspices of the church choir, and the practises which have been carried on assiduously for this event, culminated magnificently last evening. The work of the choir is a distinct tribute not only to the members, but particularly to their talented conductor, Mr. Peter Wilson, choirmaster of St. Andrew's church. It was an ambitious as well forth a volume of harmonious melody that was truly inspiring.

The chorus was assisted by two artists who have already achieved more than a Provincial reputation—Miss Helen Davies of Peterboro and Mr. Russel G. McLean of Toronto, Both were in excellent voice last evening, and they won fresh laurels by their artistic rendition of the numbers assigned to them.

Miss Davies possesses a magnificent soprano voice of wonderful range and purity. Her rendition of Hayden's "With Verdure Clad," was a triumph for this child of song, and she very gracefully responded to the hearty recall tendered her with another vocal number. Rarely indeed has an opportunity been presented our town of hearing such a gifted vocalist as Miss Davies. Her work in the chorus "With Sheathed Swords" and in the quartette was particularly fine.

Russell G. McLean was in fine form and his magnificent baritone voice exactly suited the numbers assigned him. His solo, "It is Enough" from Mendelssohn's Elijah, was a magnificent effort, and the rapturous applause which greeted the singer at the close was followed by another delightful number, "Mother of Mine" Mr. McLean also rendered the solo in "Hail to the Chief," giving this martial number a magnificent interpretation, in which his enunciation as well as his vocal powers were admirably displayed.

The programme opened with a brilliantly rendered instrumental number "Christians be Joyful," from Bach's Christmas oratorio. This was arranged for organ and piano by Mr. Hamilton, and was played by Mr. Hamilton and Misses Jackson and Roenigk. Haydn's "The Heavens are Telling," was the next number, and its rendition was a musical triumph. The trio by Miss Davies, Mr. McDonald and Mr. McLean was a most pleasing number. Turner's "O Clap your hands Together" was another gem, with a sweetly rendered solo by Miss Davies. "And the Glory of the Lord" from Handel's Messiah gave splendid scope for the chorus. It proved equal to the occasion, and rendered this number magnificently.

Schnecker's "My Faith Looks up to Thee," was an exquisite number, the solos by Miss Davies, Miss Skinner, and Mr. McLean being rendered with excellent taste and expression.

Adamson's "Praise ye the Lord," was a number in which the different sections united in a burst of harmonious melody which entranced the audience.

Mr. Hamilton, organist, and Miss Roenigk, pianiste, were the recipients of a very flattering ovation on the occasion of their rendition of the fantasia of British National Airs, arranged by Mr. Hamilton. They executed the number in a faultless manner and well deserved the hearty recall.

"Voices of the Woods," — a quartette by Miss Davies, Mrs. (Dr.) Nesbitt, Mr, Coulter and Mr. McLean, was a pleasing number, the popular selection being very capably handled by the singers.

Two of the most popular numbers of the evening were the part song, "Annie Laurie," and the chorus and baritone solo, "Hail to the Chief.," The solo and chorus, "Saviour, when night involves the sky," with solo by Mr. McLean was faultlessly rendered.

The rendition of Thompson's beautiful "Good Night, Gentle Folks," as a part song, was a fitting finale to a delightful evening of song. This number abounds in beautiful melody and it was delightfully rendered by the chorus unaccompanied.

At the conclusion of the concert luncheon was served the chorus in the Sunday School room by the Talent Workers of the church.

Mr. James P. Donald presided, and in a few well chosen words congratulated the chorus on the triumph achieved, and paid a warm tribute to the talented conductor, Mr. Peter Wilson.

Mr. Donald also took occasion to thank the members of the different local church choirs for their assistance and paid a tribute to the artistic work of Mr. H. C. Hamilton.

The following comprised the chorus:

Sopranos — Mrs. McLennan, Mrs. Cathro, Miss Gray, Miss Cullon, Miss Smith, Miss Florence Jackson, Miss Brown, Miss Sullivan, Miss Lamb, Mrs. McIntyre, Mrs. Moynes, Mrs McMillan, Miss Whyte, Miss Thorburn, Miss Ross, Miss Anderson, Miss Wilkinson.

Altos—Miss Skinner, Miss Seaton, Miss Hoadley, Mrs. Nesbitt, Mrs. Kelly, Miss Whitney.

Tenors—Messrs. R. Gray, A. L. McKendrie, C. A. McDonald, R. C. Vincent, Geo. Donaldson, J. E Coulter, Philip Morgan, H. S. Paton, E. J. Johnston, Walter Sullivan.

Basses — Messrs. J. J. McCullough Frank Chapman, W. Turner, Ford Moynes, Mel. Moynes, Sidney Johnston, G. Adams, G. Hood, Alex. Clarke, Mel. Robinson.

The Soloists—Miss Helen Davies, Soprano soloist St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterboro. Mr. Russell G. McLean, Baritone, soloist Metropolitan Church, Toronto. And several members of the choir.

Instrumentalists—Mr. H. C. Hamilton, organist ; Miss Florence Jackson, pianist : Miss Dora Roenigk, Pianist.

Conductor—Mr. Peter Wilson.

The excellent work of the instrumentalists, Mr. H. C. Hamilton, organist, Miss Florence Jackson, pianiste and Miss Dora Roenigk, pianiste, was a feature of the evening's entertainment.

It seems a pity that such a magnificent musical success should last but one evening. This chorus should not disband but should endeavour to win fresh laurels by not only repeating last evening's programme, but also in the preparation of some other musical undertaking. A permanent musical organization should be the result of last night's achievement. Other towns which do not possess musical talent such as is found here, have their choral clubs, and why not Lindsay ?

The programme prepared for last evening's concert came in for considerable comment. It was original in design and contained information which was greatly appreciated by the audience. The programme was the work of Mr. Peter Wilson, of The Post staff.

SMALLPOX CASES AT PETERBORO

Review: There are two cases of smallpox in the city, but prompt action and the necessary precautions have been taken and there appears to be no cause for alarm.

One patient is a traveller who came from Norwood, and the other a Roman Catholic clergyman from North Bay.

Dr. McPherson, Medical Health officer has the cases in hand, and reported to that effect at a special meeting of the Board of Health, yesterday afternoon.

CANADIAN CHOSEN SOCIALIST MAYOR

The following despatch refers to a gentleman who lectured in Lindsay on different occasions:

Berkley, California, April 2.— For the first time in the history of California a Socialist was elected Mayor of a city in this State, when J. Stitt Wilson today defeated Beverly Hodghead, the Republican incumbent, for Mayor of Berkley, who was supported in a speech by Theodore Roosevelt.

Wilson was a Social candidat for Governor last November. He was born at Auburn, Ontario, in 1868, and after completing a grammar school course in Canada,1 went to the Northwestern University at Evanston, near Chicago. He entered the Methodist ministry and was married in Wingham, Ontario. He resigned his pulpit in Chicag in 1897, and has since devoted himself to what he calls Evangelical Socialism.

Borden Will not Resign

Ottawa, March 29.—To-day confusion, uncertainty and chaos reign in the Tory camp. Some of the scoffers who came to oust Mr. Borden from the leadership remain to pray. He has shown an entire willingness, and, indeed a determination to resign the leadership with its constant worries and bickerings with disgruntled and self-seeking factions within the party. He wishes to retire to private life again, resume the practise of law and look after his large financial interests and have some leisure hours, free from the incessant strain of seeking to please everybody, reconcile divergent interests and shape political compromises to cover all wings of the party. This attitude he made very clear to the insurgents last night and this morning.

SCURRY TO COVER

At a result there has been a great scurry to cover. The great majority of his followers realize that there is no one to fill his shoes, and that if he resigns the last condition of the party will be worse than the first. Consequently a round robin was gotten up, praying Mr. Borden to remain at the head of the party, and assuring him of cordial support, sympathy and allegiance of his followers.

ROUND ROBIN SIGNED BY MANY.

This was signed by all the Conservative members now in Ottawa, with the exception of Messrs. Price and Forget, M.P.'s for Quebec West and Charlevoix, respectively, who, backed by the other Quebec Tory capitalists and party managers headed the present insurrection, and with the exception of Messrs. Northrup, Owen, Schaffner, Barnard, Dr. Reid of Grenville, and E. N. Rhodes and possibly a few recalcitrants who still declare themselves in favor of a change.

BORDEN WILL STAY.

Yielding to the urgent request of a large majority of his followers, Mr. Borden has, for the present, consented to withold his resignation pending some effort to again secure at least a semblance of harmony and united united support.

The insurrection is recognized as premature, since no provision was first made for a successor, and as a result Mr. Borden has now the whip hand. If he consents to continue as leader it will be only because of his party loyalty, and on the express stipulation that faction fights and caballing against him must cease.

McBRIDE UNWILLING

It is understood that Mr. Borden himself has been in communication with Premier McBride of British Columbia with reference to the succession to the Opposition leadership at Ottawa and has found that Mr. McBride is unwilling to come east, at present, at any rate. Either Premier Roblin or Mr. Rogers would be willing to take the Opposition leadership but the Western Conservative members think that they are very well placed, and as Dr. Roche, of Marquette has aspirations, and he is not alone in this respect, the Manitoba Ministers would not be welcomed at Ottawa.

TORIES FEAR AAN ELECTION

The Opposition members fear that, if Mr. Borden retired to private life at this juncture Sir Wilfrid would bring on an election and the result would be the annihilation of the Conservative party in Canada, and its relegation to Opposition for years to come. There is no doubt of the fact that Mr. Borden is tired of Opposition leadership. He has been bothered to distraction by dissatisfied members of the Conservative party in Parliament and out.

Means Increased License Revenue

The Ontario Government will, commencing May 1, receive about $150,000 additional revenue annually from the hotels of the province under the provisions of the amendments made to the Ontario liquor license act at the last session of the Legislature. This is the estimate made by the hotelmen after enquiries made in all parts of the Province. The information required by the Government was gathered by the license inspectors and it is estimated that of the total Toronto will contribute $82,000. A large number of places will not be affected by the new Government law, the hotelmen in the cities and towns being the most vitally interested. The hotelmen will watch the operation of the new law between now and the next session of the Legislature and bring forward suggestions for the fixing of a highler license fee instead of the percentage basis recently enacted. The closing of the Legislature prevented the Government from giving consideration to the hotelmen's requests at the session closed a week ago.

"It will be pay for what you get," after May 1 in the hotels. This is the English system, and the ideal one now, according to the hotelmen who are affected by the change in the law. All the hotels are expected to be run on the European plan after May 1, and in some instances will mean a distinct advance in rates.

Soda and all other things which have been handed out freely to customers in bars who asked for them will now have to be paid for at fixed prices.

Shiloh's Cure quickly stops coughs, cures colds, heals the throat and lungs. . . . 25 cents

C. P. R. And Navigation Co.

Orillia News Letter : Mr. Robert Pinchin, Manager of the Peterboro and Lake Simcoe Navigation Company, accompanied by Mr. Cavendish, of Toronto, were in town last week in connection with the Company's business. The company have an option on the Steamer Geneva, which falls due next week, and in all probability the deal will go through. It is proposed to take the Geneva from here to Rice Lake and bring the Otonabee, the largest steamer in the company's fleet to ply on Simcoe and Couchiching.

Starting in July a regular daily service from Orillia, Barrie and Jackson's point, through the Trent canal, and chain of lakes to Lindsay and Peterboro will be inaugurated. The route covers lakes Couchiching, Simcoe, Scugog, Sturgeon, Cameron, Balsam, Pigeon, Bald, Sandy, Buckhorn, Chemong, Deer, Lovesick, Stony, Clear, Katchewanooka.—to which might be added Rice Lake, twenty miles down the Otonabee River from Peterboro. This chain of lakes aggregates over one hundred and fifty miles and is situated in Central Ontario, within less than three hours. ride from Toronto and seven from Buffalo The company have several steamers to cover this route. The altitude of these famous lakes lends to them additional charm to the tourist and pleasure seeker, being 830 feet above the sea level, over 600 feet higher than Georgian Bay. This magnificent waterway, which is perhaps one of the most beautiful on the continent, will thus be thrown open to tourists much the same as the Muskoka lakes and will enhance the summer tourist business in all the towns along these waterways.

It is not officially given out what interests are behind the Peterboro and Lake Simcoe Navigation Company, the latest marine undertaking on the local waters, but it is pretty generally hinted that the C.P.R. is closely identified with the proposition. It is said the C.P.R. will eventually make this section as popular, or even more so, than Muskoka.

Special Fund for Missions

Probably one of the most unique and successful meetings for the advancement of the cause of missions was held at the home of Mr. J. D. Flavelle last evening when twenty-five Methodist business men of the town were invited by Mr. Flavelle to discuss the general cause of missions of the Methodist church and to devise some scheme whereby the present very extraordinary requirements of the mission cause could be relieved.

A very sumptuous supper was served in the spacious dining room, at which the whole company were able to sit down, after which Mr. Flavelle explained that his object in calling a few of his friends together was not to hold them up for a subscription, to this special appeal that is being made, but to lay matter before them he saw it, and if they wished to assist in the work he would be doubly pleased.

Mr, Flavelle said that the matter had been put before him so forcibly both in Winnipeg and Toronto that he had decided to contribute $2,500 as a special subscription within the next five years, over and above his ordinary contributions towards the missionary cause. In an excellent speech he put forth the claims of the missionary cause from a business standpoint, looking at it from an economical and religious and business viewpoint that were very convincing.

Almost every gentleman present expressed their sympathy and interest in the movement, and a number of subscriptions were volunteered that will bring the Lindsay business men's contributions up to a respectable sum and when all who are considering the matter are heard from the prospects are that the sum will reach at least $10,000.

The evening was a most enjoyable and profitable one and the speeches delivered and the heart to heart talk that took place will be long remembered by those present.

A most cordial resolution of thanks and appreciation was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Flavelle for their kindness and hospitality.

COL. HUGHES HAD ANOTHER ATTACK MADE HIMSELF RIDICULOUS AT OTTAWA

Col. Hughes, in the House of Commons yesterday, had another bad wind-jamming attack. The Globe says:

"Col. Hughes characterized the Grain-Growers as the blackmith-shop statesmen, whose wives are left to clean out the cow stables while they are around the blacksmith shop' and then turned his attention to Dr. Macdonald, of the Globe, who, he said, had declared against the closer union of Canada and the motherland, but had not announced any opposition to closer union between Canada and the United States. He still maintained that Dr. Macdonald, who was the paid agent of the Peace Society, so-called, went to Albany either on his own responsibility or as an agent of the Government. Dr. Macdonald had tried to evade the charges by denials which did not touch the point at issue, and by epithets. 'The meanest kind of a liar is the equivocator,' he declared, 'and the poorest kind of creature is that which dodges the truth. I put Dr. Macdonald in that category, and I'll tell him so to his face. So this editor of the Globe went down and was introduced to President Taft by the British ambassador. What authority, demanded the Colonel, had Ambassador Bryce to introduce this man to the President of the United States? He doesn't introduce every Tom, Dick and Harry who comes along with a bee in his bonnet and a cause for the limelight.'

Then the Colonel passed from the arts of war to those of peace. Canada was a fair mark with an immense natural dowry. She wanted to be wooed and won. She wanted to have her hand sought in a fair field. She did not want 'two dear old aunts and gentlemen to do her courting for her.'

He charged that the Grain-Growers organization was a gang of 'hamboozling buccaneers,' who wanted to corner the grain market, and alleged that the Government had been stampeded into reciprocity by a gang of windbags from the west.

BEATTIE NESBITT IS IN DETROIT

Toronto, April 11.—Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, who is wanted in Toronto, on several charges, including one of forgery and of making false returns to the government in connection with the Farmers' Bank, was seen a short time ago in Detroit, and spoken to by an acquaintance who met him there.

This information was given by a lawyer. The doctor did not appear to be worrying over the attempts of the Crown to secure his arrest, and the impression seemed to be that he would not be molested if he remained abroad.

TWO HOLIDAYS DECLARED IN JUNE

Ottawa, April 11.—June 3rd, the birthday of His Majesty King George and June 22, Coronation Day, will be proclaimed as statutory or legal holidays in Canada. Some time ago his Majesty instructed through the Colonial office that he would prefer to have his birthday celebrated on the actual anniversary of his birth, instead of adhering to the precedent of the late Sovereign King Edward, whose birthday was actually celebrated on Victoria Day, instead of on November 9th. Good Friday, Easter Monday, Victoria Day and Dominion Day are now statutory holidays and with June 3 added as a fixed holiday, and June 22 and Coronation Day made an extra holiday this year, the dominion will be well served with public holidays during the coming eleven weeks.

His Honor Judge Barron, The Conciliator Life Sketch of Former Lindsay Man

(The Globe.)

"Judge Barron? Why, of course I know what he looks like," said the Depot Master at the Union Station, in answer to a query. "Most every railroad man knows the Judge by this time. He's just got aboard the Hamilton train. You'll find him alright. He's not very tall, and is dressed swell, with a silk hat and a cutaway coat; has light hair and wears glasses."

With this brief description I was easily able to locate the Judge, and possibly the same account of this appearance will serve to introduce him to those readers of The Globe to whom he as yet may be unknown personally.

There is about this vigorous gentleman, who has done so much to settle labor difficulties in Canada, that judicial dignity of bearing and precision of utterance which one usually associates with an occupant of the Bench, and yet, though sixty years of age, he possesses a lyrical appearance and manner and a vivacity of expression and movement that differentiates him from the judges of his colleagues. Fond of athletics, both as participant and spectator, and interested in the pursuits of his fellows, he exhibits a warmth, geniality and sympathy of disposition, which renders him exceedingly popular among his wide circle of acquaintances.

In few judges of County Courts is there a certain prominence such as Judge Barron has done, outside the limits of their own authority. By virtue of his work on various boards of arbitration in different parts of Canada and his deep interest in the naval question, his name has become familiarly known to the readers of newspapers all over the country, and in consequence any study of his career and personality is assured a wide spread interest.

Judge Barron is a son of the late F. W. Barron, M. A., Principal of Upper Canada College. The story is told by Colonel George T. Denison that on the occasion of his birth in 1851 it was agreed by the seventh form boys, who resided in the Principal's house, that if the newcomer were a boy a barrel of treacle would be suspended from an upper window to inform the students in the other houses that a son was born. Were it a girl, a nightgown was to be displayed. As it turned out, it was the treacle that were requisitioned. Thus heralded, the future judge came to the County of Perth came into the world, and as address of congratulation to Principal Barron was read on the following morning by the boys of the college, and, better than all, they were granted a holiday in honor of the event.

Three Ontario towns are particularly associated with Judge Barron and work of Judge Barron. These are Cobourg, where he was taken by his father as a small boy, when Principal Barron became head of the Cobourg Grammar School; Lindsay, where he practised law and engaged in three Parliamentary campaigns, and Stratford, his present residence, where he has lived since his appointments to the Bench, in 1907.

Thanks to the encouragement of his father, Judge Barron took an early interest in writing, and from the time he was a very small boy down to the present day he has always devoted some of his time to literary work. Anyone with sufficient curiosity to look up the files of the Cobourg Sentinel for the early sixties, would probably come across an account of a fashionable society wedding in the town, which was so well described it read like a fashion plate, or page of repeated entries of the issue of the following week. This highly successful sketch came from the department of society journalism was Judge Barron's first work for the press. He was at that time only about thirteen years of age.

Three years later, when he was barely sixteen years of age, the Fenian invaders threatened Canada. Judge Barron was sent to the front by his father, accompanied by the lad himself, facetiously: "My gallantry on that occasion and the experience gained thereby were not entirely wasted, were they not so amusing. When her Majesty, the late Queen Victoria, was told of it, I was at once sent a medal."

In spite of his fondness for writing the law early claimed Judge Barron's allegiance. He went through the usual routine in Toronto necessary to qualify him for the profession, and being called to the Bar in 1873, moved to the town of Lindsay to practise. In 1891 he was created a Queens counsel. He is author of three or four law books one of which, "On Bills and Mortgages," is regarded as a standard work.

His next achievement was the reporting for the Globe of the campaign in the Northwest in 1885. He was instructed by the Government to raise a mounted force among the hardy hunters and trappers of the Haliburton district, but as the last moment it was decided not to send this contingent to the front. Mr. Barron, however, was sufficiently interested in the fighting to be eager to go himself. Being in Toronto, he suggested to Avern Pardoe, at the time news Editor of the Globe, that that it might be advantageous to that newspaper if he were appointed a special correspondent. Mr. Pardoe agreed, and the young lawyer went West as a reporter of the Globe. It is his account of the Battle of Batoche occupying an entire front page of the Globe of that day, which forms one of the very best descriptions of that decisive engagement. And yet, he is humble and humorous; he was at the time of the fight forty miles away from the scene of conflict.

Judge Barron relates many interesting incidents of his adventures in the Northwest campaign. He tells with personal interest the way in which

GOLDEN WEDDING OF MARIPOSA COUPLE HONORED AND RESPECTED IN DISTRICT

The cut in this article o Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rich was taken at their home near Mariposa station on the occasion of the celebration of their golden wedding, on March 25th last. They are among the oldest of the pioneers of the township. Mr. Rich was born at Chudsleigh, in County Devon, England, in the year 1840, while Mrs. Rich was born a year previous at Brentor, County Devon, England.

Mr. Rich has crossed the Atlantic nine times. He first left Plymouth Harbour in 1857, sailing as his first sailing ship Gypsy Queen. The trip lasted six weeks and three days when he landed in Quebec. This is the year he was in this country he worked the entire year for $80. He then returned to England, where he married his present wife, and in 1861 he returned set self for Canada, having left his wife and four children in England. Arriving in Toronto he plodded from Mr. Rich in those days, but Mr. Jos. Mark, of this township, proved a most valuable friend, loaning him $160, which he sent home to pay the passage money for his wife and family, who joined him the same year.

Mr. Mark engaged Mr. Rich for a year. His wages were to be the same as any other man in Mariposa, which proved to be $112 for the year. After some time spent with Mr. Mark, Mr. Rich started on his own responsibility, on the old Silver farm, on the 10th con. 0, Mariposa, which he rented for $150 per year. They set to work to fell the farm known as the Brown farm, owned by Mr. A. Laidley, which he leased for 10 years at $100 a year. This was where Mr. Rich made his first strike, and from that day to this he has made rapid progress. After he had the fall timber done, Mr. Laidley gave him a chance to sell his farm, and Mr. Rich received $700 to cancel the lease. He then rented the Mr. Laidley farm, on the 7th concession and with the assistance of the above mentioned friend, things began coming his way. He remained on this place seven years and was most successful. He then bought his present Mariposa station farm for $13,000, then sold adjoining 50 acres for $3500 and the Pedlar place of 60 acres for $3500 making in all 200 acres of the finest land in the township, and Mr. Rich takes pride in the fact that to-day there is not a dollar against any of it.

The family consisted of eight boys and one girl, all of whom are living except one.

Mr. and Mrs. Rich are prominent representatives of the splendid type of hardy, progressive pioneers, who have materially aided in the development of this country, and their numerous friends wish them many years prolonged life to further enjoy the fruits of their endeavours.

MR. and MRS. R. RICH.

A MOCK TRIAL IN REAL LIFE

Goderich, Ont., April 11.—Away back in the early seventies, in Goderich grammar school, a mock trial was held, with various scholars of the school as make-believe officers, and court officials. A prisoner was on trial for murder, George Tate Blackstock was the prosecuting attorney, his eloquence being already famous at that time. The acting sheriff of the affair was H. G. Reynolds, and the counsel for the accused prisoner was M. G. Cameron. A coincidence will present itself this week, when George Van Stone stands his trial for the brutal murder of his little six-year-old son Freddie.

George Tate Blackstock, now K.C. will prosecute; M. G. Cameron is the prisoner's counsel, and Mr. H.G. Reynolds is now sheriff.

PRACTICAL POINTERS TO OUR FARMERS CONCERNING THE CARE OF ORCHARDS

Care of the orchard is an unusual thing for the average farmer to think of. He, or perhaps his father planted some trees, immediately seed the land to orchard to grass, and thus it has remained to the present time.

Yes, they got crops of apples and they never thought of spraying or cultivating. Why should they do dirty what we apparently cannot do now? There are many reasons. The land had been cropped very little, and contained most of its virgin fertility, consequently artificial fertilizing was not needed. Apple growing in Ontario was in its infancy at that time and insect and fungus pests had not found their way to our orchards. On that account spraying was not necessary.

But now things have changed, by the importation of nursery stock from Europe, insects and fungus diseases have been brought to our orchards. We now have the codling worm, the various insects, the plant lice, the scale insects and a host of other bugs and grubs as well as the fungus, the fungus blight, and the canker all greedily demanding their share of the orchard products.

Where does the farmer come in on this deal? What is his part in it? He surely should have something for the use of his land, and for whatever labor he bestows on it. All that usually goes to him is a little fire-wood and a few bags of wormy and scabby, twisted apples which pigs will scarcely eat.

But, the farmers ask, what are we to do? The bugs and diseases will not stay away because we grumble, and if the farmers are ashamed of what are we to remedy it. Just four things are necessary, pruning, spraying, cultivating, and fertilizing. But you ask, will it pay to all the labor and expenses involved in these operations? Yes—a well cared for orchard will give you much better returns than even the much talked of alfalfa. There are hundreds of well kept orchards in Ontario, which are netting their owners from 75 to 100 dollars per acre every year. Compare that with the paltry few pags of wormy and scabby apples, which so many farmers are getting from their orchards.

Now you say, we do not know how to prune, spray and cultivate our orchards. We have never done these things, and have never seen any single one do them. Come to the Department of Agriculture and we will tell you, we'll not only tell you, but we will go to your farm and show you how to do these things. All you have to do is ask, and we'll willingly help you.

During the coming spring and summer we intend to conduct a number of spraying demonstrations at different parts of the country. If you have an orchard of an area of more, which you think is not yielding the best returns, (and it is not unless you are spraying and cultivating) tell us about it and we'll be ready to help you put it on a paying basis.

STUMP PULLERS FOR EDMONTON

From Wednesday's Post.

Yesterday Canadian Swensone Ltd. shipped a car containing thirty of their stump machines to their distributing agents, Messrs Beale, Head and Deale, at Edmonton, and they have sufficient orders for stump pullers to complete a car for their Winnipeg Distributing agents, which will be shipped before the end of month. This will be the largest carload of stump pullers shipped this spring. Orders for stump machines have been coming in freely during the past few weeks, the day last week, eight mail orders were received from Alberta and Saskatchewan alone.

THUMB CRUSHED IN THE GEARING

Peniel, April, 12.—Mr. G. W. Harding was the victim of a painful accident on Monday of this week, when, while oiling his windmill he had the misfortune to have his thumb badly crushed in the gearing. Dr. McPhail, of Manilla, dressed the wound, putting in several stitches. It is hoped that before long, Mr. Hardy will have the use of his hand.

From Wednesday's Post.

The local G.T.R. auxiliary crew was called out at 4 o'clock this morning to a wreck near Hastings. Three cars of grain on a double header which left here at 10 last night jumped the track near that village. The cause of the accident was a broken rail.

Y.M.C.A. CAMPAIGNS ARE SUCCESSFUL

From Wednesday's Post.

Guelph yesterday closed its Y.M.C.A. campaign, having $46,334 reported. Five subscriptions of five thousand dollars were contributed by Lord Strathcona, W. E. Burningham, father of the movement, J. W. Lyon, Miss Forbes, and A. W. Cutten, the former Guelph man, who has made a fortune in the West, and who gave three thousand, with the promise of an additional two thousand if required. Lord Strathcona also has contributed $10,000 to the Halifax Y.M.C.A. on condition that the rest of the one hundred and fifty thousand dollars be raised. Brantford has made a fund of one hundred thousand dollars for the same purpose.

PRISON FOR DEATH OF HER INFANT

Berlin, Ont., April 11.—Miss Sarah of Collingwood Harris, charged with the death of her infant, child, pleaded guilty to manslaughter, and accepted the sentence of two years imprisonment by Mr. Justice Teetzel this afternoon.

Through her counsel, Col. Bowlby, the young woman pleaded not guilty to the charge of murder and the Crown proceeded with the prosecution for manslaughter. Miss Harris in the same as was subjected at the inquest.

A conference of Counsel followed, and the indictment was reduced from murder to manslaughter and the prisoner pleaded guilty to the latter charge.

In pleading for leniency, Col. Bowlby stated that the woman did not intend to abandon the child, but had left it where she thought it would be picked up by two men who were approaching. Returning later to recover it, she believed she had left the child, she failed to find it, and concluded that it had been taken away by someone.

DR. BEATTIE NESBITT

Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, says the Stratford Beacon, the man, next to Manager Travers, who knows most about the wrecking of the Farmers Bank, is still at large. It is not creditable to the prosecuting officials that this man was permitted to escape. The public cannot help suspecting that he would have been the first man jailed after Traver's arrest had it not been for the fear of the exposures he might make. Dr. Beattie Nesbitt is not without political power in Toronto.

SEVENTY-FIVE PER CENT IN FAVOR

We commend this to the consideration of the Warder and Mr. Shepherd, of Borden, Sask.

Northwest Farmer—It is true that the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, the Manitoba Legislature, and a few other interests have succeeded in passing resolutions condemning it but it is a pretty safe guess that at least seventy-five per cent of people of Canada west of the great lakes are in favor of its being passed. The trouble is that the elements up against the agreement are practically all in our towns and cities, and therefore, find it easy to give their views expression, while the scattered farmers of the plains are not so well situated in this respect. The principal fault we have to find with the agreement is that it does not go far enough.

WOULD BE CRUEL

(Brantford Expositor)

Hugh Guthrie, M.P., states that the next Dominion elections are not likely to take place before the fall of 1912. The only thing to be gained by bringing them on at an earlier date would be to take advantage of the disorganized condition of the Conservative party.

NOT ALL GOOD

(Guelph Herald)

There is a great deal being said nowadays about immorality in the schools. No one need get angry over the accusations being made. It is just as impossible to secure only good children for the schools as it is to have the churches comprised only of good people; vice is unfortunately rampant in every walk of life.

LIVE IN GLASS HOUSES

(Sentinel-Review.)

The speech of a Conservative member at Ottawa on the Reciprocity question, in which he credited with describing President Taft as holding a club over the heads of the Canadian Ministers and warning them it would go off if they did not come down, was in every way worthy of the occasion and cause. A good many of the opponents of reciprocity have been doing the very thing charged against President Taft. They have been wielding a club and threatening that it would go off.

GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION

"Like wildfire," is an accepted phrase for the way the commission plan of government is spreading among American cities not of the very highest rank, says Harper's Weekly. We don't know much about wildfire or how fast it spreads, but if it spreads as fast as this idea does there is nothing slow about it. All parts of the U. S. show rapid gains for the scheme of centralizing municipal power in the hands of two or three well-paid commissioners, i in. stead of distributing it among aldermen, councilmen and a mayor. But for the moment the south is in the lead. In Alabama the three principal cities—Birmingham, Mobile and Montgomery—have all got authority from the legislature to make the change. In North Carolina, Greensboro has just gone over to the new order by a big majority. Asheville is about to follow; the other day Wilmington — the old Conservative Wilmington — put the question to a vote, and out of a total of twelve hundred votes cast there were just twenty-two nays In the face of such eagerness to try a promising experiment, it can hardly be contended that our cities don't was better government. The plan itself is a hopeful one, highly commended by the experience of such cities as have already tried it. But still more hopeful is the keenness of the interest it arouses, the civic awakening of which its popularity is a sign.

HOME TRAINING

The Campbellford Herald has some sensible remarks to make about this question of home training that we cannot forbear quoting

"Prominent educationists now say that to public school children, no home work should be given. We have no fault to find with this dictum, as we think that after a child returns from school, and until he returns to school next morning he is being, or should be, educated in the home. Nowadays because educationists decry homework many parents, and nearly all pupils think the suggestion is children should have a do-nothing life at home or roam about the streets. In reality that is far from the point. The duties of the home call for a variety of interests and activities which develop the child's powers, and it remains for parents to nurture those qualities of mind and heart in the child, which tends towards his own betterment, and the consequent uplifting of the race,

"But generally speaking, home training seems rather to be declining than advancing. Our streets are filled with youths of both sexes, and our places of amusement are thronged with children long after the hour, when the laws of health require the children to be in bed.. Children will learn, and if their minds are not occupied with pure, wholesome thoughts, such as any parent would be glad to have them possess, then these active, ever-busy brains will be filled with whatever thoughts, they may chance to stumble upon.

"Better have a child do a little homework than be parading streets But better still, let them enjoy all the pleasures of a home made attractive by good books, interesting pictures, pleasant companions, enticing games, and where he is under the surveillance of kind affectionate parents, whose real interests are coincident with his. Under such conditions, we would soon observe more politeness, better morals, and higher intellectual and spiritual quality in the young and rising generation. Parents you are dealing with the most important thing in the world. You are the chief factors in the formation of the characters of your little ones. Are you sowing to the wind? Will you reap the whirlwind?

WHERE THE WEAKNESS IS

The Peterboro Examiner says: As giving a pretty reliable idea of the chaotic character of the Conservative parliamentary party and incidentally the causes, the remarks of a Conservative and an independent journal respectfully may be quoted. The Ottawa, Citizen, Conservative, thus deals with the relatians of the party, as emphasized by recent developments, to its leader, Mr. Borden. It says:

"What influence may be at work "to undermine Mr. Borden's prestige "within his own following cannot be "animated by the desire to further "the interests of the Dominion or of "the Conservative party. Rather are "they conceived in an entirely different spirit. To a sensitive, high-spirited man such intrigues must prove "particularly discouraging, but the "respected leader of the Conservative "party must feel that he has behind "him the esteem and confidence of the "great mass of those who consitute "the strength and hope of the party"

In similar tenor the Montreal Witness, Independent Liberal, thus discourses:

"It would be deplorable for Canada "and particularly for the 'Liberal-Conservative' party should the party be bereft of its redeeming ornament and essential head. That the "retirement of Mr. Borden would "bring victory to the party is the "last thing to be thought of. The "dethronement of the blameless chief "by money influences, as is alleged, "would absolve thousands in the "country from an allegiance which "has become irksome to them. Without him the party would be a cage "of discordant creatures, each elbowing to get on top."

When we can find a Liberal newspaper and an independent Conservative journal saying such things, of the Liberal leader and his following, we Liberals, as a party, can say goodbye to power and self-respect. If the Conservative party is doomed to the glacial umbrage of Opposition interminably they have only themselves to blame. Shakespeare hits the white thus:

Men at some time are masters of their fates;
The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars,
But in ourselves, that we are underlings.

WILL RECIPROCITY INCREASE FARM VALUES

Advocates of reciprocity are making statements that reciprocity will immediately increase the value of Canadian farm lands 25 per cent or more. Instead of making wild guesses let uset at the facts. Since the reciprocity negotiations began the United States Government has made a report prepared by experts showing the comparitide value per acre of improved lands in 1900 and 1910 in various border States and in the Canadian provinces adjoining them. This report states that between 1900 and 1910 the value of improved lands increased 67 per cent, in Maine 37 per cent, in New Hampshire, 33 per cent in Vermont 181 per cent, in Nova Scotia, 120 per cent in New Brunswick 70 per cent, in Prince Edward Island, 80 per cent, in Quebec 43 per cent, in Ontario, 39 per cent in Michigan, 77 per cent in Minnesota, 123 per cent in Manitoba, 201 per cent in Saskatchewan and 158 per cent in Alberta.

The great influx of settlers in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta accounts for the rapid increase in farm values in those provinces; but what in the explanation of the extraordinary increase in farm values in the three Maritime Province of Canada?? Why did Nova Scotia farm values increase 181 per cent while farm values in the neighboring state of Maine only increased 67 per cent.

Undoubtedly the great increase of values in the Maritime Provinces is due to the establishment of manufacturing industries in recent years. The establishment of great iron and steel industries has revolutionized conditions throughout the these Provinces. A profitable home market has been created for everything the farmers produce. These industries have been equally beneficial to the fishermen. As the steel industries are located in Nova Scotia, the influence on the price of farm lands has been most marked in that Province, but Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick have been greatly benefited. The development of St. John as a winter port has also helped to increase the farm values in New Brunswick.

It will be noted that the increase of farm values is considerably greater in Quebec than in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, and the improvement has been greater in Ontario than in the adjoining state of Michigan.

In the face of such facts how foolish it is to indulge in wild dreams of a sudden increase in Canadian farm values as a result of reciprocity.

THE PRICE OF BARLEY

From October 1, 1890 to August 27, 1894, the United States customs duty on barley was 30 cents per bushel. From August 27, 1894 to July 24, 1897 the duty was 30 per cent ad valorem, equivalent to a little over ten cents per bushel. On July 24, 1897, the specific duty of thirty cents per bushel was restored, and it has been continued ever since. Of course during a period of 21 years there would naturally considerable variation in prices, but for purposes of comparison it will be fair to take the three years previous to the reduction of the duty, the three years during which the low duty prevailed and the first three years after the duty of thirty cents per bushel was restored. According to reports of the United States Department of Agriculture the farm prices of barley averaged 44.26 cents per bushe, during 1892, 1893 and 1894 under a specific duty of thirty cents per bushel. In 1895, 1896 and 1897, under a duty of about ten cents per bushel the farm prices averaged 34.53, while for 1898, 1899 and 1900 under a specific duty of thirty cents per bushel the prices averaged 40.8 cents per bushel. Thus, instead of the Canadian farmer getting an increased price for the barley he sent to the United States as a result of the reduced duty, the price came down in the United States.

It is reasonable to draw the conclusion that if as a result of reciprocity large quantities of Canadian barley, wheat and oats go into the United States, it is more probable that the American prices will come down than that the Canadian prices will go up.

Note.—Anyone who would like to procure the series of articles concerning reciprocity which have appeared in this paper should send his name and address to the chief editor of the Canadian Century Magazine, Montreal and a pamphlet containing these articles and other valuable information will be mailed free of charge.

A SITUATION NOT WORTH HUMOR

(Stratford Beacon.)

It is common rumor at Ottawa that Mr. Borden had a speech ready in condemnation of Hon. Mr. Fielding's report, because of his anticipated lack of success in getting a treaty such he really had secured. As the details of the achievement of Messrs. Fielding and Patterson were revealed the opposition repeatedly cheered the free list and Mr. Borden carefully folded his little speech and stowed it away in his desk. At the conclusion of the finance minister's speech, Mr. Borden asked for an adjournment to consider its details and Sir Wilfrid Laurier generously granted a week's time, Meanwhile the opposition went into caucus on the subject and adjourned on two occasions without deciding on a policy. Then the anti-reciprocity league, of Montreal, and Toronto millionaires was formed, with a large bank account, and that settled the question. The opposition could not resist the bank account and cut they came against the agreement.

PROHIBITING SALE OF LIQUOR TO INEBRIATES

A great many people seem to labor under the impression that a license inspector has the power to restrict the sale of liquor to inebriates, or in other words, place them upon the Indian list. Such is not the case however, as the following clause of the Liquor License act will explain.

"The husband, wife, parent, child of twenty years or upwards, brother sister, master, guardian, or employer of any person, who has the habit of drinking liquor to excess—or the parent, brother or sister of the husband or wife of such person,—or the guardian of any child or children of such person may give notice in writing, signed by him, or may require the inspector to give notice to any person licensed to sell, or who sells, or is reputed to sell, liquor of any kind, nor to deliver liquor to any person having such a habit.

Another clause of the act referring to the power of magistrates reads as follows;

"Where it is made to appear in open court sittings in the county in which he resides, that any person summoned before such court, by excessive drinking of liquor, misspends wastes or lessens his estate or great ly injures his health, or endangers or interrupts the peace and happiness of the family, the police, magistrate or justices holding such court, shall, by writing under the hand of such police magistrate, or under the hands of two of such justices, forbid any licensed person to sell to him any liquor for the space of one year, and such police magistrate, justices or any other two justices of the county in which said person resides may, or the same or any other time, in like manner forbid the selling of any such liquor to the said person, by any licensed person of any other city, town or district to which he resorts or may be likely to resort for the same."

CHEAP POWER ON THE FARM

Speaking before the Middlesex Council in London on Friday night, Hon. Adam Beck announced that the Hydro-Electric Power Commission would send two or three engineers to Europe at the end of the present month to study electrical services there. With them, he said, would go an expert from the Ontario Agricultural College, whose mission would be to learn as much as possible about the application of electricity to work done on the farm.

As is pointed out in the admirable report of the Minister of Agriculture for this Province, electricity is widely utilised in the villages and rural districts of European countries, especially in Germany. The following extract from the report will be of great interest to farmers:

"The farm houses are wired for light and power, and thousands of small motors are employed in driving all kinds of machinery. Then, too portable transformers with motors are taken out to the fields, and hooked up to the nearest terminal posts and power is thus made available for driving plows, threshing machines, etc. One portable transformer motor set may be used by the whole community. I believe all these facts have an important interest to the farmers of Ontario at the present time. It is yet too soon to say how far electricity may be economically and successfully applied to the problems of the Ontario farm, but the extent to which invention has already revolutionized farm life gives a basis for the most enthusiastic expectations. In the meantime, I merely wish to add that this department in conjunction with Hydro-Electric Commission, is anxious to render any assistance possible in placing the advantages of cheap electricity at the disposal of the farmers of the Province.'—Mail and Empire.

PREMIER WHITNEY AND TAX REFORM

Sir James Whitney in opposing Mr. A. E. Tripp's measure in the local legislature, calling or amendments to the Assessment act, providing for a lower tax on improvements than on land, made the curious assertion that there was practically no demand for such legislation, because no public meetings to support it had been called, nor was any conversation heard on the subject.

As regards the significance of public meetings and general conversation there may, of course, be differences of opinion, but the provincial premier must surely be aware that there has been a quite general demand for the amendments proposed by Ottawa's Conservative member in the provincial House. And the demand has come from the very backbone of the community, from the wage earners and workmen of the province. Disregarding the fact that 170 newspapers throughout the country have joined in the advancement of the movement for tax reform, and that some 250 municipalities have asked for the privilege of adopting the measure if the ratepayers should ask for it, the further significant fact remains that over 200 labour unions have passed resolutions favoring such legislation The most important trade association in Canada, the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, at its last convention at Port Arthur endorsed the reform and sent a petition along these lines to the premier himself.

Nor is the agitation for tax reform any new development in this province. The Citizen of March, 2, 1891, editorially refers to a similar effort of that period in language which exactly fits conditions today. Says The Citizen:

"There is a great deal of justice in the petitions now being presented to the Ontario Legislature, praying that all land held for speculative purposes be taxeid to its full value. It is held by the petitioners, and with great justice on their side, that land in and around cities is made abnormally dear by parties, who have no use for it, purchasing and holding it for fancy prices. The result of this is the crowding of the poorer classes into unhealthy buildings, the great expansion of the area of cities, while large blocks remain unoccupied, and the enormously increased expense of lighting, draining, paving and policing a city so extended. The petitioners also urge that were all the vacant lands and lots taxed to the full value for which they are held by the owners sales would soon lessen the number of unimproved city lots, while uncultivated sites in the vicinity of cities would be brought into cultivation. There is a good the petitioners, and one does not deal of truth in the allegations of want to go outside the city of Ottawa to see the evil effects of the systemof holding land for a rise. Ottawa has suffered much and is still suffering from large blocks of land falling into the hands of parties who can afford to hold on to themfor speculative purposes, and although the assessors have in some cases done their duty fairly well in keeping up the value of vacant lots, still, there is altogether too much undervaluation of unimproved property. Ottawa is now pledged to grant very valuable privileges for getting an electric street railway to accommodate the outlying portions of the city, while there is not a street even in the heart of lots held for fancy prices. Almost every city in Canada is suffering in the same way, and it would be well if the local legislatore would take this matter into serious consideration."

It is unfortunate that Premier Whitney has not seen fit to meet the wishes of a large number of ratepayers in the province in this matter. The advocates of tax reform, however, are not discouraged and convinced of the ultimate triumph of the system proposed, will keep up the work of educating the people to demand an obvious measure of justice. In the support of many members of the legislature, including Hon. A. G. McKay, who gave the bill a thoughtful endorsement, it is clear that much progress has already been made and that the demand in the provinces generally for such legislation must eventually impress itself upon the government of the day.

Mr. Thornbury Takes Action

From Tuesday's Post.

A Post reporter interviewed License Inspector Thornbury today re the drunken Italians on Sunday.

The Inspector stated that he was around on Sunday, and made a careful inspection of the hotels during the day, and saw nothing to arouse suspicions. Everything appeared to be quiet. Mr. Thornbury suggests that when incidents of this nature come under the notice of citizens, it would be better if people would telephone his residence, and prompt action would be taken. The Italians, in question, no doubt got in a supply of liquor during the week, as is the custom..

Mr. Thornbury further stated that he had interviewed the officials on the contract south of the town, and was informed that the interpreter on the northern contract would be interviewed with instructions to warn the Italians against such actions in the future.

STORY OF THE INDIAN MUTINY

BY LOUIS TRACY

must have fallen ere the present hour."

The moulvie's wicked eyes sparkled.

"Praise be to Allah and his Prophet forever!" he cried. "How came this thing to pass?"

"My regiment took the lead," said the rissaldar, proudly. "We had long chafed under the commands of the huzoors. At last we rose and made short work of our officers. You see here—" and he touched a rent in his right side, "where one of them tried to stop the thrust that ended him. But I clave him to the chin, the swine-eater, and when Larrence-sahib attacked us at Chinhut we chased him over the Canal and through the streets."

"Wao! wao! This is good hearing! Wast thou sent by some of the faithful to summon me, brother?"

"To summon thee and all true believers to the green standard. Yet had I one other object in riding to Rai Bareilly. A certain Nazarene, Malcolm by name, an officer of the 3rd Cavalry, was bidden by Larrence to make for Allahabad and seek help. The story runs that the Nazarenes are mustering there for a last stand ere we drive them into the sea. This Malcolm-sahib—"

"Enough!" said the moulvie, fiercely, for his self-love was wounded at learning that the rebel messenger classed him with the mob. "We have him here. He is in safe keeping when he is in the hands of Ahmed Ullah!"

"What!" exclaimed the newcomer with a mighty oath. "Are you the saintly Moulvie of Fyzabad?"

"Whom else, then, did you expect to find?"

"You, indeed, O revered one. But not here. My orders were, once I had secured the Nazarene, to send urgently to Fyzabad and bid you hurry to Lucknow with all speed."

"Ha! Says't thou, friend. Who gave thee this message?"

"One whom thou wilt surely listen to. Yet these things are not for every man to hear. We must speak of them apart."

The moulvie was appeased. Nay, more, his ambition was fired.

"Come with me into the house. You are in need of food and rest. Come! We can talk while you eat."

He drew nearer, but a woman's voice was raised from behind a screen in one of the rooms.

"Tarry yet a minute, friend. I would learn more of events in Lucknow. Tell us more fully what has taken place there."

"The Begum of Oudh must be obeyed," said Ahmed Ullah with a warning glance at the other. He was met with a villainous and intriguing look that would have satsfied Machiavelli, but the officer bowed low before the screen.

"I am, indeed, honored to be the bearer of good tidings to royal ears," said he. "Doubtless I should have been entrusted with letters for your highness were not the city in some confusion owing to the fighting."

"Who commands our troops?" came the sharp demand.

"At present, your highness, the Nawab of Rampur represents the King of Oudh."

"The Nawab of Rampur! That cannot be tolerated. Ahmed Ullah!"

"I am here," growled the moulvie, smiling sourly.

"We must depart within the hour. Let my litter be prepared, and send men on horseback to provide relays of carriers every ten miles. Delay not. The matter presses."

There could be no mistaking the agitation of the hidden speaker. That an admitted rival of her father's dynasty should be even the nominal leader of the revolt was not to be endured. The mere suggestion of such a thing was gall and wormwood. None realized better than this arch-priestess of cabal that a predominating influence gained at the outset of a new regime might never be weakened by those who were shut out by circumstances from a share in the control of events. Even the fanatical moulvie gasped at this intelligence, though his shrewd wit taught him that the rissaldar had not exchanged glances with him without good reason.

"Come, then," said he, "and eat. I have much occupation, and it will free thy hands if I see to the hanging of the Feringhi forthwith."

"Nay, that cannot be," was the cool reply, as the two entered the building. "I would not have ridden so hard through the night for the mere stringing up of one Nazarene. By the holy Kaaba, we gave dozens of them a speedier death yesterday."

"What other errand hast thou? The matter touches only the Nazarene's attempt to reach Allahabad, I suppose?"

"That is a small thing. Our brothers at Cawnpore may have secured Allahabad and other towns in the Doab long ere to-day. This Frank comes back with me to Lucknow. If I bring him alive I earn a jaghir, if dead, only a few golden mohurs."

"Thy words are strange, brother."

"Not so strange as the need that this Feringhi should live till he reaches Lucknow. He hath in his keeping certain papers that concern the Roshinara Begum of Delhi, and he must be made to confess their whereabouts. So far as that goes, what is the difference between a tree in Rai Bareilly and a tree in Lucknow?"

"True, if the affair presses. Nevertheless, to those who follow me, I may have the bestowing of many jaghirs."

"I will follow thee with all haste, O holy one," was the answer, "but a field in a known village is larger than a township in an unknown kingdom. Let me secure this jaghir first, O worthy of honor, and I shall come quickly to thee for the others."

"How came it that Nawab of Rampur assumed the leadership?" inquired Ahmed Ullah, his mind reverting to the graver topic of the rebellion.

The other scowled sarcastically.

"He is of no account," he muttered. "Was I mistaken in thinking that thou didst not want all my budget opened for a woman? He who gave me a message for thee was the moullah who dwells near the Imambara. [illegible] not know him? Ghazi-ud-din. He sent me. 'Tell the Moulvie of Fyzabad that he is wanted—he will understand,' said he. And now, when I have eaten, lead me to the Feringhi. Leave him to me. Within two days I shall have more news for thee."

The name of Ghazi-ud-din, a firebrand of the front rank in Lucknow, proved to Ahmed Ullah that his opportunity had come. He gave orders that the wants of the cavalry officer and his horse were to be attended to, while he himself bustled off to prepare for an immediate journey.

When the Begum and the moulvie departed for Lucknow they were accompanied by nearly the whole of their retinue. Two men were left to assist the rissaldar in taking care of the prisoner, and these two vowed by the Prophet that they never met such a swashbuckler as the stranger, for he used strange oaths that delighted them and told stories of the sacking of Lucknow that made them tingle with envy.

Oddly enough, he was very anxious that the Nazarene's horse should be recovered, and was so pleased to hear that Nejdi was caught in a field on the outskirts of the town and brought in during the afternoon that he promised his assistants a handful of gold mohurs apiece—when they reached Lucknow.

Once, ere sunset, he visited the prisoner and cursed him with a fluency that caused all listeners to own that the warriors of the 7th Cavalry must, indeed, be fine fellows.

At last, when Frank was led forth and helped into the saddle, his guardian's flow of humorous invective reached heights that pleased the villagers immensely. The Nazarene's hands were tied behind him, and the gallant rissaldar, holding the Arab's reins, rode by his side. The moulvie's men followed, and in this guise the quartette quitted Rai Bareilly for the north.

They were about a mile on their way and the sun was nearing the horizon, when the native officers bade his escort halt.

"Bones of Mahommet!" he cried, "what am I thinking of? My horse has done fifty miles in twenty-four hours, and the Feringhi's probably more than that. Hath not the moulvie friends in Rai Bareilly who will lend us a spare pair?'

Ahmed Ullah's retainers hazarded the opinion that their master's presence might be necessary ere friendship stood such a strain.

"Then why not make the Nazarene pay for his journey?" said the rissaldar with grim humor.

He showed skill as a cut-purse in going straight to an inner pocket where Malcolm carried some small store of money. Taking ten gold mohurs, he told the men to hasten back to the village and purchase a couple of strong ponies.

"Nay," said he, when they made to ride off. "You must go afoot, else I may never again see you or the tats. I will abide here till you return. See that you lose no time, but if darkness falls speedily I will await you in the next village."

Not daring to argue with this truculent-looking bravo, the men obeyed. Already it was dusk and daylight would soon fail. No sooner had they disappeared round the first bend in the road than the rissaldar, unfastening Malcolm's bonds the while, said with a strange humility:

"It was easier done than I expected, sahib, but I guessed that my story about the Nawab of Rampur would send Moulvie and Begum packing. Now we are free, and we have four horses. Whither shall we go? But, if it be north, south, east, or west, let us leave the main road, for messengers may meet the moulvie and that would make him suspicious."

"Thy counsel is better than mine, good friend," was Frank's answer. "I am yet dazed with thy success, and my only word is—to Allahabad."

CHAPTER XI.

A Day's Adventures

Though his arm was stiff and painful, the rough bandaging it had received and the coarse food given him in sufficient quantity at Rai Bareilly, had partly restored Malcolm's strength.. Nevertheless, he thought his mind was failing when, in the dim light of the inner room in which he was confined, he saw Chumru standing before him.

His servant's warlike attire was sufficiently bewildering, and the sonorous objurgations with which he was greeted were not calculated to dispel the cloud over his wits, but a whispered sentence gave hope, and hope is a wonderful restorative.

"Pretend not to know me, sahib, and all will be well," said his unexpected ally, and, from that instant until they stood together on the Lucknow road, Malcolm had guarded tongue and eye in the firm faith that Chumru would save him.

He was not mistaken. The adroit Mohammedan knew better than to trust his sahib and himself too long on the highway.

"They will surely make search for us, huzoor," he said as they headed across country towards a distant ridge, thickly coated with trees. "The Begum and Ahmed Ullah met here for a purpose, and their friends will not fail to tell them of the trouble in Lucknow. I have been shaking in my boots all day, for 'tis ill resting in the jungle when tigers are loose, but I knew you could not ride in the sun, and I saw no other way of getting rid of the moulvie's men than that of sending them back in the dark."

"It seems to me," said Malcolm, with a weak laugh, "that you would not have scrupled to knock both of them on the head if necessary."

"No, sahib, they are my kin. He who wore this uniform was a Brahmin, and that makes all the difference. Brother does not slay brother unless there be a woman in dispute."

"When did you leave the Residency?"

"At nine o'clock last night, sahib."

"Did you see the miss-sahib before you came away?"

"It was she who told me whither you had gone, sahib."

"Ah, she knew, then? Did she say aught—send any message?"

"Only that you would be certain to need my help, sahib."

That puzzled Frank. Winifred, of course, had said nothing of the kind, but Chumru assumed that she understood him, so his misrepresentation was quite honest.

A level path now enabled them to canter, and they reached the first belt of trees ten minutes after the moulvie's men set out for Rai Bareilly. Luck, which was befriending Chumru that day, must have made possible that burst of speed at the right moment. They were discussing their plans in the gloom of a grove of giant pipals when the clatter of horses hard ridden came from the road they had just quitted.

There could be no doubting the errand that brought a cavalcade thus furiously from the direction of Lucknow. It was so near a thing that for a little while they could not be certain they had escaped unseen. But the riders whirled along towards Rai Bareilly, and in another quarter of an hour the night would be their best guardian.

"That settles it," said Malcolm, in whose veins the blood was now coursing with its normal vitality, though, for the same reason, his right forearm ached abominably. "It would be folly to attempt the road again. Let us make for the river. We must find a boat there, and get men to take us to Allahabad, either by hire or force."

"How far is it to the river, sahib?"

"About twenty-five miles.'

"Praise be to Allah! That is better than seventy, for my feet are weary of that accursed Brahmin's boots."

They stumbled on, leading the horses, until the first dark hour made progress impossible. Then, when the evening mists melted and the stars gave a faint light, they resumed the march, for every mile gained now was worth five at dawn if perchance their hunters thought of making a circular sweep of the country in the neighborhood of Rai Bareilly.

It was a glorious night. The rain of the preceding day had freshened the air, and towards midnight the moon sailed into the blue arc overhead, so they were able to mount again and travel at a faster pace. Twice they were warned by the barking of dogs of the proximity of small villages. They gave these places a wide berth, since there was no knowing what hap might bring a ryot who had seen them into communication with the moulvie's followers.

Each hamlet marked the centre of a cultivated area. They could distinguish the jungle from the arable land almost by the animals they disturbed. A gray wolf, skulking through the sparsely wooded waste, would be succeeded by a herd of timid deer. Then a sounder of pigs, headed by a ten-inch tusker, would scamper out of the border crop, while a pack of jackals, rending the calm night with their maniac yelping, would start every dog within a mile into a frenzy of hoarse barking. Sometimes a fox slunk across their path. Out of many a tuft they drove a startled hare. In the dense undergrowth hummed and rustled a hidden life of greater mystery.

Where water lodged after the rain there were countless millions of frogs, croaking in harsh chorus, and being ceaselessly hunted by the snakes which the monsoon had driven from their nooks and crannies in the rocks. On such a night all India seems to be dead as a land but tremendously alive as a storehouse of insects, animals, and reptiles. Even the air has its strange denizens in the guise of huge beetles and vampire-winged flying foxes. And that is why men call it the unchanging East. Civilization has made but few marks on its far-flung plains. Its peoples are either nomads or dwell in huts of mud and straw and scratch the earth to grow their crops as their forbears have done since the dawn of history.

When the amber and rose tints of dawn gave distance to the horizon, the fugitives estimated thatt hey had traversed some fifteen miles. Malcolm was ready to drop with fatigue. He was wounded; he had not slept during two nights; he had fought in a lost battle and ridden sixty-five miles, without counting his exertions before going to the field of Chinhut. Nejdi and the horse which brought Chumru from Lucknow were nearly exhausted. Even the hardy Mohammedan was haggard and spent, and his oblique eyes glowed like the red embers of a dying fire.

"Sahib," he said, when they came upon a villager and his wife scraping opium from unripe poppy-heads in a field, "unless we rest and eat we shall find no boat on Ganga to-day."

This was so undeniable that Malcolm did not hesitate to ask the ryot for milk and eggs. The man was civil. Indeed, he thought the Englishman was some important official, and took Chumru for his native deputy. He threw down the scoop, handed to his wife an earthen vessel half full of the milky sap gathered from the plants, and led the "huzoors" at once to his shieling. Here he produced some ghee and chupatties, and half a dozen raw eggs. The feast might not tempt an epicure, but its components were excellent, and Frank was well aware that the ghee was exceedingly nutritious, though nauseating to European taste, being practically rancid butter made from buffalo milk.

There was plenty of fodder for the horses, too, and they showed their good condition by eating freely. The ryot eyed Chumru doubtingly when Malcolm gave him five rupees. Under ordinary conditions, the sahib's native assistant would demand the return of the money at the first convenient moment, and, indeed, Chumru himself was in the habit of exacting a stiff commission on his master's disbursements. Frank smiled at the man's embarrassed air.

"The money is thine, friend," said he, quietly, "and there is more to be earned if thou art so minded."

"I am but a poor man—" began the ryot.

"Just so. Not every day canst thou obtain good payment for a few hours' work. Now, listen. How far is the Ganges from here?"

"Less than three hours, sahib."

"What for, horses?"

"Not so, sahib. A horse can cover the distance in an hour—if he be not weary."

The peasant could use his eyes, it seemed, but Malcolm passed the phrase without comment.

"We have lost our way," he said. "We want to reach the river and take boat speedily to Allahabad. If one like thyself were willing to ride with us to the nearest village on the bank where boats can be obtained, we would give him ten rupees, and, moreover, let him keep the horse that carried him."

The ryot was delighted with his good fortune.

"Blessed be Kali!" he cried. "I saw five female ghosts with goats' heads in a tree last night, and my wife said it betokened a journey and wealth. Not only can I bring you by the shortest road, huzoor, but my brother has a budgerow moored at the ghat, meaning to carry my castor-oil seeds to Mirzapur. I am not ready for him yet for three weeks or more, and he will ask no better occupation than to drop down stream with you and your camp."

"I have no camp," said Malcolm, "but I pay the same rates for the boat."

"The sahib means that his camp marches by road,' put in Chumru, severely. "Didst not hear him say that we have mislaid the track?"

The ryot apologized for his stupidity, and Frank recognized that his retainer disapproved very strongly of such strict adherence to the truth. On the plea that they must hasten if the midday heat were to be avoided, they cut short the halt to less than an hour. When they came to tighten the girths again they found that Chumru's horse had fallen lame. As Nejdi, too, was showing signs of stiffness, Malcolm mounted one of the spare animals and led the Arab. Chumru and the ryot bestrode the third horse, and, under the guidance of one who knew every path, they set out for the Ganges.

There are few features of the landscape so complex in their windings as the foot-paths of India. Owing to the immense distances between towns—the fertile and densly populated Doab offers no standard of comparison for the remainder of a vast continent—roads were scarce and far between in Mutiny days. The Grand Trunk Road and the rivers Ganges and Jumna were the main arteries of traffic. For the rest, men marched across country, and the narrow ribands of field tracks meandered through plowed land and jungle, traversed nullah and hill and wood, and intersected each other in a tangle that was wholly inextricab'e unless one traveled by the compass or by well-known landmarks, where such were visible.

The ryot, of course, familiar with each yard of the route, practically followed a straight line. After a steady jog of an hour and a half they saw the silver thread of the Ganges from the crest of a small ridge that ran north and south. The river was then about three miles distant, and they were hurrying down the descent when they came upon an ekka, a little native two-wheeled cart, without springs, and drawn by a diminutive pony. Alone among wheeled conveyances, the ekka can leave the main roads in fairly level country, and this one had evidently brought a zemindar from a riverside village.

The man himself, a portly, full-bearded Mohammedan, was examining a growing crop, and his behavior, no less than the furtive looks cast at the newcomers by his driver, warned Malcolm that here, for a certainty, the Mutiny was a known thing. The zemindar's face assumed a bronze-green tint when he saw the European officer, and the sulky-looking native perched behind the shafts of the ekka growled something in the local patois that caused the ryot sitting behind Chumru to squirm uneasily.

The other glanced hastily around, as though he hoped to find assistance near, and Chumru muttered to his master:

"Have a care, sahib, else we may hop on to a limed twig."

The boldest course was the best one. Malcolm rode up to the zemindar, who was separated some forty paces from the ekka.

"I come from Lucknow," he said. "What news is there from Fattehpore and Allahabad?"

The man hesitated. He was so completely taken aback by the sight of an armed officer riding towards him in broad daylight—for Malcolm having lost his own sword had taken Chumru's—that he was hardly prepared to meet the emergency.

"There is little news," he said, at last, and it was not lost on his questioner that the customary phrases of respect were omitted, though he spoke civilly enough.

"Nevertheless what is it?" demanded Frank. "Has the Mutiny spread thus far, or is it confined to Cawnpore?"

"I know not what you mean," was the self-contained answer. "In this district we are peacable people. We look after our crops, even as I am engaged at this moment, and have no concern with what goes on elsewhere."

"A most worthy and honorable sentiment, and I trust it will avail you when we have hanged all these rebels and we come to inquire into the conduct of your village. I want you to accompany me now and place my orderly and myself on board a boat for Allahabad."

"That is impossible—sahib—" and the words came reluctantly—"there are no boats on the river these days."

"Why not?"

"They are all away, carrying grain and hay."

"What then, are your crops so forward? This one will not be ready for harvesting ere another month."

"You will not find a budgerow on this side. Perchance they will ferry you across at the village in a small boat, and you will have better accommodation at Fattehpore."

"Are we opposite Fattehpore?"

"Yes—sahib."

All the while the zemindar's eyes were looking furtively from Frank to the lower ground. It was a puzzling situation. The man was not actively hostile, yet his manner betrayed an undercurrent of fear and dislike that could only be accounted for by the downfall of British power in the locality. Thinking Chumru could deal better with his fellow-countryman, Malcolm called him, breaking in on a lively conversation that was going on between his servant and the ekka-wallah.

Chumru, who had told the ryot to dismount, came at once.

"Our friend here says that things are quiet on the river, but there are no boats to be had," explained Malcolm. Chumru grinned, and the zemindar regarded him with troubled eyes.

"Excellent," he said. "We shall go to his house and wait while his servants look for a boat?"

This suggestion seemed to please the other man.

"I will go on in front in the ekka," he agreed, "and lead you to my dwelling speedily."

Chumru edged nearer his master while their new acquaintance walked towards the ekka.

"Jump down and tie both when I give the word, sahib," he whispered. "There has been murder done here."

Malcolm understood instantly that his native companion had found the ekka-wallah more communicative. In fact, Chumru had fooled the man by pretending a willingness to slay the Feringhi forthwith, and the sheep-like ryot was now livid with terror at the prospect of witnessing an immediate killing.

When the zemindar was close to the ekka, Chumru whipped out one of the Brahmin's cavalry pistols.

"Now, sahib!" he cried. Malcolm drew his sword and sprang down. The zemindar fell on his knees.

"Spare my life, huzoor, and I will tell thee everything," he roared.

Were he not so worn with fatigue, and were not the issues depending on the man's revelations so important, Malcolm would have laughed at this remarkable change of tone. The flabby, well-fed rascal squealed like a pig when the point of the sword touched his skin, and the Englishman was forced to scowl fiercely to hide a smile.

UPHILL

(Special to The Post)

Sleighing is all gone some time, but it is still bleak, cold and frosty.

No appearance of spring yet, no bull frog's song, nor have we heard of any ground hogs being seen yet.

Percy Teel has been around here for some time past thrashing clover and cutting wood.

Some of the young men around here have gone to the West, which I think was a Rise move on their part. Three of the Foley boys have gone to Willow Bunch, Sask., and Aleck Miur and David Martin have gone to the Peace River country. Mr. Muir has been all over the West for the past theee years, and has made this part his choice.

The whole of the estate of the late Joseph McCaughey of this place will be offered for sale by auction shortly as nis sons, I hear, are intending to move to the West.

Mr. Wm. Maxwell of Uphill, former of Head Lake, and for a long time Tp. Clerk, has been very ill lately. The doctor attending had little hope for his recovery, but I am pleased to say that he is better. Mr. Maxwell is a very old man, and his death would not have surprised any one, he being in his 97th year. There are few who reach that age.

I have to record the death of Mrs. James Wetherup, of Dalton, on Sunday night, 2nd inst. She was also a very old lady, over 80 years. I hear pneumonia was the agency by which she was removed.. Her husband predeceased her many years ago.

It has been very quiet around Uphill this winter. Everyone seemed to take things easy, and although I never saw roads better than they were this past winter, I never saw so little doing in the line of taking out saw logs.

QUALITY IS OUR WATCHWORD

Judge Barron, The Conciliator

General Middleton favored the correspondents of English newspapers at the expense of the Canadian correspondents. He describes with much realism the 140-mile drive he took to the front on the top of a medical supply waggon. And he has also an interesting description to give of the capture of White Cap, a bloodless affair in which he personally took part under Lieut.-Col. Hamilton Merritt.

In 1887 Judge Barron entered politics, in the riding of North Victoria, having as his opponent the then sitting member, the late Mr. Hector Cameron, Owing partly, it is said to the tactics of the latter gentleman, who treated the young lawyer with considerable disdain, regarding him as merely a boy, having known him as a child, Mr. Barron succeeded in winning the seat. His work at Ottawa as a member of the Opposition was most effective, particularly in the matter of charges against Mr. Cochrane, member for East Northumberland. His speech on this occasion was most favorably commented upon by Parliamentarians and journalists.

At the next election Mr. Barron was opposed by Col. Sam Hughes, the present member for Victoria. He succeeded in holding the seat, but his election was protested and he was unseated. At the subsequent bye-election, fought on the same voters' lists, he went down to defeat, and thus ended his political career.

Of the days when he was at Ottawa he looks back with particular interest to the time when he was a member of the Rebel Hockey team, and when, in company with two sons of His Excellency, Lord Stanley, one of whom is the present Earl of Derby, two of the aides at Government House, the Hon. Sydney Fisher, M.P and H. A. Ward, M.P., he went to various points in Western Ontario, and played several games, in order, at the request of Lord Stanley, to introduce the sport into this Province.

In his modesty, Judge Barron sees no particular reason why he should have been chosen as a member of a board of conciliation. His first appointment of this nature was in connection with the discharge, some two years ago, of some two hundred and fifty employees of the Intercolonial Railway. He took up this work with interest and carried it through to a successful conclusion, but, as he insists, that result was due to his colleagues who made the reward, he having only to sign it. Then a little later, as Torontonians know so well, he was made Chairman of the board of conciliation appointed to try and adjust the difference between the Toronto Street Railway Company and its employees. Because of his determination in this case to hold out against the making of anything but an unanimous award, he succeeded in preventing a strike. Lately he has been occupied in adjusting labor grievances on the Intercolonial, and he is at the present writing engaged in examining into the claims of the striking Grand Trunk conductors and trainmen who have not been reinstated in their positions.

* * * * *

One naturally wonders how Judge Barron can find time to engage in so many pursuits and attend to so many duties. "If this is so," he said "it is because I work quickly, work hard, and never let up." His explanation is probably a correct one. It is at any rate surprising that a Judge who is kept plentifully supplied with work at home by the litigious but excellent Bar, should be able to accomplish so much.

The marriage of Miss Grace Old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Old, of Toronto to Dr. Osman Amos Pogue, of Minden, only son of Mr. R. A. Pogue, Lindsay, took place quietly on Wednesday afternoon, at the residence of the bride's father, Dunvegan Road. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jos. Odery, in the drawing room, which was decorated with pink roses and carnations. Miss Doherty played the wedding marches and Miss Mabel Doherty sang, "Beacuse.": The bride, who was given away by her father She wore a travelling suit of blue cloth with a large blue hat, and carried white roses. Later in the afternoon, Dr. and Mrs. Pogue left for a honeymoon trip to Buffalo, and New York. On their return they will reside in Minden.

A very destructive fire took place on Saturday morning last, by which the barns and driving sheds of the Ranson House, together with their contents, including horses, cattle, grain, implements, etc., were burned. The fire was first discovered about two o'clock in the morning, and had made such headway in the hay loft that the roof was beginning to burn through. Miss K. Ranson was awakened by the roaring of the flames, and at once aroused the inmates of the house. A quick response was given, and a rush made for the stables, which were so filled with smoke, that the cattle were suffocating, and could not be gotten out, although several of them were loosened. The fire had already broke out in the horse stable, and an attempt was made to rescue the animals, but very little could be done. One mare burned on the neck, and carrying a burning blanket, walked out after her halter had been cut., while the men made a rush for the open air.

The loss is a heavy one to Mr. Ranson, consisting of a fine two year o'd colt, one young mare, seven milch cows, one fat cow, one heifer, two calves, brood sow, 250 bushels of grain, fourteen tons of hay, waggon, sleigh, horse rake, five sets of harness and a lot of other tools. Soon a small army of men and women were carrying, drawing handing water to those engaged in a desperate fight to save the dwelling and wing attached to it. The heat was so intense, and the wind carried the sparks directly over them, but with true fire fighter courage, the flames were confined to the barn and sheds. There was no insurance on the contents of the buildings. The cause of the fire is still a mystery. By the closing of a door during the fire, Mr. J. E. Shier, our popular stage driver was nearly trapped in one of the burning buildings. He had his face and one hand burned.

POWLES COREER.

(Special to The Post)

Two young men arrived here Monday the 2nd from Ireland. One of them is a nephew of Mr. John Moore and both have secured good positions one with Mr. J. H. Straud and the other with Mr. John S. Brown. Both of these young men are smart and intelligent, and at no distant day they will win a name for themselves that will startle some of our young Canadians.

The farmers in Fenelon and adjacent townships are about eight or ten years behind the times, when you make a comparison with some of the Western Ontario townships. regarding the Grange organizations and the telephone in farm houses.

The beef ring will be in operation again this season, Mr. E. Kendall will kill and dress and Mr J B Powles will deliver. The first beef will be dressed about the first week in May, and for 20 weeks the beef cattle must all be young and to dress about 400 pounds.

As a general thing our merchants don't like to hear of farmers or anyone else patronizing the T. Eaton Co or the Robt. Simpson Co. Merchants buy in the cheapest markets and why can't everyone have the same privilege? In a hardware store in Fenelon Falls a certain article was marked at $8; the same article exactly in Eaton's catalogue is marked at $5.00. What right have we to pay such a large profit to a local merchant for dry goods, hardware, stoves and tinware ?

INTERESTING LIQUOR CASE DISPOSED OF AT POLICE COURT THIS MORNING

From Tuesday's Post.

This morning at the police court Mr. Burgess, proprietor of the Benson House was fined five dollars and costs, $8.95 in all for allowing liquor to be sold on the premises to a prohibited man, one, J. Thornhill.

Mr. L. V. O'Connor appeared for accused, while Mr. G. H. Hopkins, K C., acted in the interests of the license department.

It will be remembered that in the charge against Mr. F. Oliver, bartender, last week, the evidence went to show that both the accused and and Coatsworth, another bartender, did not know Thornhill until after he had been given drink, and as soon as they learned trat he was a lister, he was ordered out of the hotel bar, and Inspector Thornbury was notified that Thornhill had been served. Both bartenders swore that they had been warned by Mr. Burgess to be on the look-out for "Indians." This, Mr. O'Connor contended, was sufficient evidence to prove that every precaution had been taken with a view to the strict observance of the law had been violated.

Mr. Hopkins quoted the section of the Liquor License Act covering the case in question, and pointed out that in the action of the bartenders in furnishing Thornhill liquor, the clause had been violated.

Police Magistrate Jackson concurred in his contention, and imposed a nominal fine of $5 and costs.

The clause in the Act is as follows:

"If any person so notified not to deliver liquor as aforesaid within twelve months after such notice, either himself, or by his clerk, servant or agent, otherwise than in terms of a special requisition for medicinal purposes signed by a duly qualified medicinal practitioner, delivers, or, in or from any building, booth, or place occupied by him, and wherein and wherefrom any such liquor is sold suffers to be delivered, any such liquor to the person having such habit, he shall incur upon conviction a penalty not exceeding $50, and the person giving or requiring the notice to be given may, in an action as for personal wrong, (if brought within six months thereafter, but not otherwise) recover from the person notified such sum, not less than $20 nor more than $500, as may be assessed by the Court or jury as damages; and any married woman may bring such action in her own name without authorization by her husband; and all damages recovered by her shall in that case go to her separate use; and in case of the death of either party, the action and right of action given by this section shall survive to or against his legal representatives, but the defendant shall not be liable for both penalties for the same offence."

OLD MAN'S BRIDE TELLS OF COURTING

Expert evidence was submitted concerning the sanity of Michael Fraser, by Dr. William P. Caven and Dr. R. W. Bruce Smith before the Divisional Court on Saturday afternoon.

According to Dr. Caven he had examined Mr. Fraser on Friday and found him in a good physical condition and perfectly sane. Mr. Fraser answered clearly all questions put to him by the doctor with the exception of the year he was married, saying it was either 1910 or 1911. He said he was greatly in love with his wife. He remarked that in his opinion the reason the McCormicks were trying to pronounce him insane was so they could get his money. He thought a trip to Toronto would be very dangerous due to hardening of the arteries which might result in the bursting of a blood vessel.

SENILE DETERIORATION.

Dr. Bruce Smith stated that he had twice visited Fraser in Midland last June. On the first visit he had found him very confused, being in a state known to the profession as senile deterioration. Eleven days later a second examination showed him to be much brighter mentally. Dr. Smith answering a question regarding the sanity of Fraser at the time of his marriage, said:

"Fraser was over eighty years old, He was aroused suddenly from his sleep. His tendency was to confuse ideas and I do not believe it would be safe to say that he was fully aware of what he was doing."

THE BRIDE'S EVIDENCE.

Mrs. Michael Fraser was in the witness box for over two hours, standing the whole time. She gave her age as 32. When questioned by Mr. A. E. H. Creswicke, K.C., she said she first saw her husband in July, 1909. She did not meet him till September. She had heard Fraser had lots of money. She admitted she knew of written instructions having been given to Fraser to keep her off the place, "but I believe they were got unduly, probably when he was intoxicated." She said Mrs. Weston had always acted as chaperone when she visited Fraser Mrs. Weston, according to Mrs. Fraser, was present at the betrothal.

HER OWN COURTING

The proposal had been made in Fraser's house.

"You were then doing your own courting," commented the judge.

"A few days before he told me that he intended to ask me to marry him but that he wanted me to consider it well before he asked me," answered the witness. She did not know whether she had told her father or not that the old man's estate was worth from $100,000 to $150,000.

The hearing adjourned late Saturday afternoon and will re-open at 11 o'clock Thursday morning.

OMEMEE.

(Special to the Post.)

The Misses Nichols are home from Peterboro Normal School.

Miss Getrude Grandy returned to her home last week, after spending a couple of months in Sudbury, the guest of her sister, Mrs. Dr. Cook.

Miss Florence Fearman was in Lindsay on Monday.

The pie social given by the L. S. Class of the Methodist Sunday school last Tuesday evening, was a decided success, considering the unfavorable weather. A good program was given, which was much enjoyed by those present. The net proceeds amounted to nearly eleven dollars.

Mr. R. J. Mulligan was in Peterboro on Sunday.

Miss Hazel Adams, spent Sunday, at her home in Lindsay.

Mrs. Graham of Mount Pleasant, spent a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Herbert Shields.

The Omemee Christian Brotherhood of the Methodist church held an open meeting on Friday evening, when Mr. T. W. McLean, of $the Public school staff gave a very interesting and instructive lecture on the Life and Work of Charles Dickens. The speaker said that the subject should be of special interest to the O.C.B. Since Dickens laid the foundation of a brotherhood, that has promoted the celebration of the Birth of the King of Christendom. Charles Dickens was the power that popularized our modern Xmas.

This English novelist was born Feb. 7th, 1812, and died on June 4, 1870. He was the son of humble, and poor parents, but received a good training from his mother. At nine years of age he was placed in a blocking ware-house, where he got six shillings a week. Here he remained for two years, and his life among the people of the factory was in part his apprenticeship to fame. Some of the immortal characters in his novels are drawn from persons he met in these gloomy days.

His father having become a reporter for the Morning Chronicle, the son took up the same calling. After having mastered the art of short hand, he continued to advance step by step to fame and renowb as a writer and an author.

Mr. McLean gave with pleasing effect, selections from Sam Weller's Valentine, which portrayed the comic side of Dickens. The more serious, and pathetic style of the author, was shown in a few lines from the Death of Little Nell. Then followed Dickens immortal, Christmas Carol.

Mr. McLean closed with a review of some of the criticisms offered for and against the works of Chas. Dickens, showing that there is an element of truth in all the criticism, yet it remains that Dickens stands as a great power, a tremendous force in modern life. The world today is more cheerful, kind and sympathetic, because of the loving presence of this great and noble novelist.

THE ANGEL'S GIFT

A Legend of Gethsemane

Dark is the night, not a star looks down,
On the silent garden and sleeping town,
Sad as a dirge is the funeral moan,
Of the angel cohorts before the throne
As they list to the God-man's cry of pain,
As he wars alone with the weight of sin,
Worn and wearied the watchers sleep
Whilst Heaven and Hell their vigils keep.

Dread is the vision before Him laid,
Despised by millions, by His own betrayed,
And red is the ground with the crimson rain,
But the tempter whispers, "'tis all in vain—
The Scourge and the Nails, the Crown and the Cross,
And the Narrow Way—men count it a loss,"
And the demon laughed, "Be wise," quoth he,
"And leave this ungrateful race to me."

High in the heavens before the throne
The angels cease their funeral moan,
And deep in the abysmal pit of hell,
The demons list for a sign to tell,
What the choice will be in this conflict dread,
With sin, bereft of all succor and aid,
And the tempter smiled, the angel wept,
As Heaven and Hell their vigil kept.

Down through the night comes an angel fair,
She bears in her bosom a vessel rare
"See Master, the sighs and the tears of men,
Through the ages long, who have wept for sin."
And the Tempter laughed. "What is this," quoth he,
"But as summer rain to the boundless sea!
Ah! fool, to die for a traitor race,
That exults in sin and its own disgrace."

Paler the face of the Master now,
And redder the rain on His crimson brow,
Dread is the conflict that rages within,
And He sinless, wars with the weight of sin,
And up from the town comes the savage cry,
Of the fiendish crowd that would see Him die.
"Father," He whispers, "Thy will be done,"

LINDSAY BOY SAYS TOURIST SPORTSMAN IS EXCELLENT MEANS OF PUBLICITY

In an interesting article on the value of the tourist sportsman as a means for publicity, for undeveloped country, Mr. W. T. Robson, advertising agent of the C.P.R., and son of Mr. W. M. Robson, Lindsay, in the current issue of Rod and Gun, says that this individual has so many good qualities that he is a general favorite wherever the vagaries of his fancy may direct his wanderings. Notwithstanding his preference for the silent places of the universe, he is a convivial soul to meet, either around the camp fire or at the metropolitan banquet table. He is usually law-abiding, a man of means, leisure and education, and consequently trained observer who loves to visit the geme of our forests in their native haunts. Rarely, indeed, is he a wanton slayer of game, reserving his amunition for the record head and legitimate sport, and looking for the unusual and picturesque to relate to his fellow men and club members at home, or to the readers of his favorite sporting journal. There is also another type of tourist sportsmen and their numbers are constantly increasing, and they are business men, who find their greatest pleasure, relaxation and physical benefit from a trip into the wilds and away from the distracting cares and worries of city life. These men are quick to discern the commercial value of water powers, timber and minerals, and very frequently a pleasure trip results in a large investment in the country visited. Reference might be made to hundreds of cases, but a few only will suffice.

FOUND IRON DEPOSITS.

Dr. Robert T. Morris, of New York a very famous surgeon and naturalist and Charles Wake, the manager of the Equitable Insurance Company, made a canoe trip from Wakimi to Hudson Bay and back. They discovered large iron deposits, in the Metagami and the result was the staking of hundreds of claims, also extensive gypsum deposits which will be a source of revenue to the country. Near Moose Factory, Dr. Morris said, he found the best poplar forest he had ever seen, and this discovery in this region came as a surprise to every body. His contributions to the press on the country visited have done much to awaken public interest in this country.

A Chicago broker, Mr. J. A. Scudder, went to Northern Ontario and became so enanomored with the country that he invested largely in timber limits and spent thousands of dollars in building houses, docks, etc., and scores of people, as a direct result of his trip, became interested in the district he visited.

J. K. Hackett, the well-known actor had a sporting vacation in Canada, and as a result invested largely in iron mines, and induced a number of his friends to take a similar trip.

FOLLOWED ROOSEVELT

Ex-President Roosevelt recently took a sporting trip to Africa, and as a direct result of this trip, and to the publicity given to that undeveloped country, it is stated that over two thousand people, with cameras, newspaper connections, and an ambition to kill big game, have visited the same district as this notiable sportsman.

Many pulp mills, mining enterprises and innumerable summer houses in this district owe their origin to the visit of the tourist sportsman, and the investment of many thousands of dollars in the various enterprises of this country is due to the publicity given both in the press and on the lecture platform by the men, who in search of health and enjoyment, thus discovered profitable business possibilities.

BEST ADVERTISER

Our immense resources, our unrivalled scenery, and our delightful summer climate are best advertised by the tourist sportsman.

The incentive to visit many undeveloped regions somes from the fish and game attractions which induce the wealthy, cultured classes of other countries to visit us and thus familiarize themselves with what we have to offer to the world in our undeveloped resources. Is is an old commercial truism that a satisfied customer is ever the best advertiser, and so long as he can offer the tourist sportsman the possibilities of legitimate sport, he in turn will give to the public the results of his vacation and to the country that offers commercial possibilities, his capital.

Calumet Goes To Hastings

Hastings Star—Messrs Ed. Lynch, and Ben Gibson, of Hastings, have purchased from Mr. Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, his handsome private boat, The Calumet. Mostly everyone familiar with the boats on the Trent Canal knows the Calumet. It is a splendid craft of 60 ft. and in excellent condition. Messrs Lynch and Gibson intend putting the boat to general use towing or any other work by wgich they can make money out of her. She will be brought to Hastings just as soon as it is possible to get through the locks.

Nailed Girl To a Chair

New York, April. 10.—Joseph Eddings, the odd jobs man, of Prospect Park Borough, N.J., is awaiting trial on a charge of assault and battery, but it is such an unusual kind of assault and battery that his fame in that section will not be dimmed for many a day.

Miss Barbara Batchtold, Edding's sister-in-law is only fifteen years of age, but she talks twice too much for a girl of her age, according to Edding's, and he deposited her in a pine kitchen chair and drove nails through her pre-Easter frock, until she was surrounded by tenpenny wires and securely held to the chair where her mother found her.

House Burned In Fenelon

(Special to the Post.)

Fenelon Falls, April, 11.—A frame dwelling house of Mr. D. Brokenshire in the township of Fenelon, on the shore of Cameron Lake was burned to the ground early on Monday afternoon.

Most of the clothing and furs belonging to the family were also destroyed by fire. The furniture, and a fine,) new piano, was saved, but in a badly scorched condition. The neighbors turned out with a will, and formed a bucket brigade which accomplished excellent work. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a spark from a chimney, igniting the roof. There was an insurance of $400. It is Mr. Brokenshire's intention to build immediately.

Fiance Stole The Girl's Heart

Geneva, April, 10.—A terrible tragedy has occurred at the village of Croscio, on the Swiss-Italian frontier, between Locarno and Lugano.

A pretty girl, aged 20 years, was engaged to a young and well-to-do Italian, named Consonai, but suddenly fell ill and died fifteen days later, her body being buried in the village churchyard. Visiting the grave later, the guardian was horrified to find the grave and the coffin open, and the heart of the girl cut out and missing.

Her fiance, Consonni, was arrested and accused, and he confessed to the act, stating that the heart of the dead girl was his and nobody would take it from him.

Bonsonni, who was a good character, will be tried for sacrilege, and probably receive only a nominal sentence if any.

Gamblers Were Heavily Fined

Examiner—Two local men, who appeared in Court a few days ago, charges with being frequenters of a gambling house, also the two young men, who were accused of keeping the said house, came up for sentence this afternoon at two o'clock. The six frequenters were fined $50 each, and the keepers were fined $100, and $200 respectively. Those who were fined $50, were given ten days to pay the fine and in default of which they will spend 60 days on the hill. The evidence in the case had been previously taken, and the men all pleaded guilty.

Wes Pollard's Painful Accident

From Tuesday's Post.

On Monday Mr. Wes Pollard, who is employed in Carew's box factory, and planing mill, was the victim of a painful accident.

He was working around the sticker when the wrench which he was using to tighten a nut slipped and his hand came in contact with the blade of the sticker, cutting the thumb of his left hand badly. The injury is a very painful one, and it is not known as yet whether Mr. Pollard will be deprived of the use of the digit.

About two years ago Mr. Pollard suffered a similar accident, the same thumb coming in contact with the knife on the stitcher.

He Sent His "Best" Remedy

The young daughter of Mrs. T. S. Dougall, 623 Flara Avenue, Winnipeg, was arranging some of her doll's washing on a clothes rack, beside the stove when she fell and her hand came in contact with the hot stove. She sustained a serious burn and her screams brought her mother quickly to the spot.

"I sent to the druggists for the best remedy he had for burns" she says. "and he sent back a box of Zam Buk. He said that there was nothing to equal it. I applied this and it soothed the pain so quickly that the child laughed through her tears. I bound up the hand in Zam-Buk, and each day applied Zam-Buk frequently and liberally, until the burn was quite cured.

The little one then was soon able to go on with her play, and we had no trouble with her during the time the burn was being healed.

Zam-Buk soap should always be used by all mothers for baby's bath and for skin troubles rashes, pimples etc.

All drugists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c. a box; and soap at 25c. tablet. Post free from Zam-Buk Co. Toronto for price. Refuse harmful imitations.

CAPTURED AS A POACHER.

KINGSVILLE, Ont. April 10.—The fishing tug Eagle, or Lorain, Ohio, was captured on Lake Erie this afternoon as a poacher in Canadian waters, and the vessel, with a crew of six men. The capture was made by Victor Cheveau, the fish and game warden, and Captain Dunn, in the tug McCarthy, which is doing patrol duty pending the fitting out for the season of the cruiser Vigilant.

The Eagle had on board 3,000 pounds of fish and thirty boxes of net twine. All of this, with the tug, has been confiscated, and will be held, pending a settlement in court. The crew is here.

PAY BILLS FIRST SAYS CLERGYMAN

Kingston, Ont., April 10.—Rev. Fr. Darling, Toronto, preacher at early mass in St. Mary's cathedral gave a stirring appeal on the sin of enjoying pleasure and allowing the accounts to go unpaid. People who take in all the excursions in summer and allowed the butcher, baker, grocer and other tradesmen to go unpaid were given hard raps on the knuckles. In the winter theatres, and five cent shows received a great part of the money, which should find its way into the merchants' hands. Pleasure was all right, but it should not be taken when there are bills to be paid.

Presbyterian Cemetery Funds

Woodville, April 11.—The appeal made to plot owners by the committee appointed to have it put into a creditable condition is meeting with a very hearty response. A large percentage of the contributors are remitting double the amount asked for, besides signifying their readiness to add to their contribution if necessary later on.

People interested are now fully realizing the credit to civilization, to have a cemetery in which the remains of many of the old pioneers, are laid to rest, neglected for so many years past.

While the interest manifested at present is creditable to many of those concerned, it is especially so to many widows who are in the majority. With early contributions and some of them like the highly commended two mites of old, sent in the specified amount called for.

Until Henry Sturmer, of Beaverton, deposits $200 as additional security for costs, further proceedings to quash the Beaverton bylaw will be stayed as an alternative. Mr. J. Middleton in a judgment as Osgoode Hall today allows the inclusion of the "real parties" behind the action.

"It is here shown that this proceeding is not, in truth, taken by the applicant, but he is put forward by the real actors.. The court has inherent jurisdiction to prevent abuse of the process, and as part of the jurisdiction will stay proceedings against good faith when a man of straw is put forward by those really litigating, until they either give adequate security or consent to be added as parties so that an order for costs be made against them in event of ...

HOW TO MAKE HOT CROSS BUNS

For two dozen buns scald one cupful of milk, add one tablespoonful of butter, a quarter of a cupful of sugar and a saltspoonful of salt. When cooled to just lukewarm add half a compressed yeast cake, softened in a little water, and a pint of flour. This should be done early in the evening. Beat well, and let the batter rise until foaming and about double in bulk.

Then add one-half cupful of sugar a quarter teaspoonful of mixed cinnamon, nutmeg and mace, half a cupful of currants thoroughly washed, and dried, a teaspoonful of finely shredded candied lemon peel, and enough flour to make a dough that can be kneaded.

Knead well, cover and set in a warm place over night. In the morning divide into pieces weighing just about three ounces each.

Pat them out round, let them stand a few moments, then roll into oblong shapes, lay in a greased dripping pan; let rise again from half to three quarters of an hour. Bake in the hot oven.

As soon as they are done, rub over with a syrup made by dissolving a tablespoonful of sugar in two of water and return to the oven a moment to dry and glaze.—Philadelphia Times.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

TUBERCULOSIS CAR CALLLD IN

Toronto, April 20.—Canada's only travelling "tuberculosis exhibit" has been called in by the Provincial health authorities.

"When the general public understand," said Dr. McCullough, chief health office of the Province, "that tuberculosis is a communicable disease, that it is not dangerous to have consumptives about if proper precautions (which we try to teach), are observed, that drugs especially patent medicines, are not the essentials of cure, they will have begun to appreciate the value of our educational campaign."

The death rate of tuberculosis has in the last ten years materially decreased in the province. In 1909 there were 2,511 deaths in an estimated population of 2,333,864. The total death were 32,636, or one death from tuberculosis in every 13.

SUDDEN DEATH OF THOMAS BROAD FELL FROM A LADDER IN WINNIPEG

Winnipeg Free Press: Thomas Broad, of 123 Furby Street, retired civil servant, was stricken with heart failure at 7.30 on Saturday evening at his home, while engaged removing storm windows from the building, and died almost immediately. He was on the ladder at the time of his seizure and fell a distance of 15 feet, alighting on his head. He was taken into the residence of Dr. Burridge, next door, but when the doctor exemined him life was extinct. It is held that he might have died before his bady touched the ground.

Until Saturday the late Mr Broad had been in splendid health and his death came as a great surprise to his many friends and acquaintances. The deceased was not connected with any order or fraternal society in the city and for the last six years had lived more or less retired. Previous to that and for 16 years he was in the government service, and had worked in the Winnipeg post office. Since then although not actively engaged in business, he has been interested more or less in real estate in this city. He was an adherent of Young Methodist church.

The late Mr. Broad was well known and highly esteemed in the city and had a host of friends. Rev. G. K. B. Adams, at Young Church yesterday made a touching reference to the fatality, and sincere sympathy is felt for the family, comprising a widow, one son, Lloyd, and three daughters, Eva, Lena and Edith Broad. He had also two brothers, R. L. Broad, at Wolseley, Sask., and D. Broad, at Douglas, Man., and two sisters, Mrs. G. C. Brown and Miss Carrie Broad, at Wolesley. Previous to his coming to Winnipeg the late Mr. Broad lived in Lindsay, Ont.

The remains are at the undertaking rooms of Clark Bros. & Hughes, Funeral arrangements have not as yet been completed, although it is expected that the burial will take place tomorrow. Rev. G. K. B. Adams, pastor of the Young Methodist church, will conduct the funeral services.

VICTORIA COUNTY CONSERVATIVES WHO APPROVES OF RECIPROCITY COMPACT

The following appeared in the last issue of the Farmers' Sun.

To the Editor of the Sun'

I admire your paper. It shines brighter and brighter and I should like to see it brighten the home of every farmer in the Dominion.

I have read items for and against the reciprocity agreement, and I thought I would contribute a few lines for publication. I have always voted Conservative except on one occasion when I voted for a particular friend. I was a volunteer about the time of the Mason and Slidell accident. I love my King and country. But I am in favor of the reciprocity agreement, also free trade with England. I have spoken to a number of farmers in this riding of Victoria, both Conservative and Reform and they are of the same opinion as myself. We have been told that we are prosperous enough Are we such an inferior class of beings as only fit to be led by those superior things called banners, merchants and manufacturers, and to be made hewers of wood and drawers of water? The Canadian Banks have $84 000,000 invested in the States, for speculation purposes. Merchants use the American lines for the conveyance of their goods during the winter season, but because we want free trade with our neighbors they sgriek "annexation," "disloyalty," "patriotism." One writer has said that patriotism is the best refuge of a scoundrel; if so, it is very much in evinence at the present timel When we had the old reciprocity treaty there was not a word about annexation. We were prosperous, and contented getting $1.25 a bushel for barley and 40 cents per pound for wool.

We have also been told by one gentleman who has made 120 per cent profit out of hog packing that we should work harder, produce more and sell cheaper and leave the market end of the business to him. in order, I suppose that he and his family should live in a grand mansion, drive an auto, sail in steam boat and take a trip to Europe. Are they afraid they will lose their grip on the farmers if we get our just demands that they shout so loudly about annexation?

Who are the disloyal? Is it the farmer who, by hard toil, privation and suffering has transformed this country from a forest and wilderl ness into cnltivated fields, gardens and orchards, or is it not the one, who has exacted heavy toll from his labor and would take his last dollar if it were possible? If we are disloyal, then we are in in very good company for not only our own government, but the British government, and if even England is disloyal to herself because she is a free trade country.

Farmers and fellow workmen, arise in your might. Let us be united as one man and throw off this curse of protection and monopoly and be free to buy and sell in the markets we please.

H. FOWLER.
Linden Valley. Victoria County.

MR. FIELDING'S REPLY TO CRITICS INTERRUPTERS WERE SPEEDILY SILENCED

Ottawa, April 6.—It was one of the finest exhibitions of argumentative mastery that Parliament has heard this session—clear cut, logical, inspiring and unanswered—the Minister of Finance at his best. Hon. Mr. Fielding was drawn into the firing line uning was drawn into the firing line unextected this afternoon, when the Opposition precipitated the result of their caucus earlier in the day in the shape of an amendment calling for detailed comparative statistics in prices and cost of production in Canada the United States and the twelve countries affected by the favored nations treaty. The amendment was moved by Mr. Perley, who incidentally took a round of the The Globe. Then came Mr. Fielding.

INTERRUPTIONS WERE ANSWERED.

It looked like organized interruption—a plan to disconcert the Minister of Finance. If so, the would-be hecklers reckoned without their host. Time and again the energetic, clear-visioned Nova Scotian had to wave his enthusiastic supporters into silence, when they sought to roar down the unseemly interrupters.

But Mr. Fielding would have none of that. Each questioner must be heard and answered. And each was so effectually that the Government desks were kept perpetually rattling delighted approval. And within twenty minutes the skirmish was fought and won. The Opposition was tired precipitately and in confusion and the Minister finished uninterruptedly.

AMENDMENT DEFEATED.

The vote was taken shortly before 11 o'clock, after Messrs. Sproule Reid and Lafortune had also spoken The amendment was defeated by a vote of 98 to 64. Hon. Mr. Sifton and Mr. Gilbert voted with the Opposition, and Messrs. German and Harris absented themselves.

The Divisional Court at the conclusion of the argument of Miss McCormick's appeal from the decision of Mr. Justice Britton, declaring the old man perfectly sane, decided to send Dr. Caven to Midland to interview the old man and report to the Court whether it would be dangerous to bring him to Toronto to be examined in court Dr. Caven will appear in court at 7.30 today to receive his instructions from the judges. In addition the Court has decided to practically reopen the whole case and fifteen witnesses who were not heard before will be heard at the trial Friday morning. Mr. Robertson; Mrs. Robertson, Mrs. Lean Frazer McNichol, Mrs. Weston, Mrs. Johnston, Dr. Bruce Smith, Mr. William Robertson, Mr. R. T. McNichol, Mr. G. F. Grimshaw, Mr. Cline and Mr. W. J. Meldrum.

SOCIAL WORK IN TOWN OF OSHAWA

When Oshawa decided to retain its Chief Constable, Mr. A. F. Hind, in spite of Hamilton's tempting offer as Deputy-Chief, it showed in a practical way the appreciation of a good public servant. Mr. Hind is not merely a policeman. He is a social worker and an enthusiast for the best kind of community life. Although an honorary officer he gives a great deal of his time and effort as agent of the Children's Aid Society and is at present conducting a campaign to secure a Children's Shelter for Oshawa and the County of Ontario generally. On Sunday last Mr. Kelso spoke on this subject at several gatherings in Oshawa, and all the ministers advocated the claims of the Society. The sum of $1600 has already been subscribed to this worthy object.

FREIGHT CAR MYSTERY SOLVED

Philadelphia, April 6.—The mystery of the missing freight car and of the "abducted" Rogers boy, has been solved and the police and railroad officials of Philadelphia are to-day advocates of corporal punishment for precocious children. After telegraphing all over the United States in search of the box car in which young Bernard Rogers was supposed to have been locked to starve to death in revenge because his uncle, Assistant District Attorney Rogers, successfully prosecuted a criminal, the boy was located in Atlantic City. He had run away from home to "make his fortune" and was working in the coast resort.

The police are still trying to locate the writer of the postal card which put them to so much trouble.

WILL NOT BE SO MANY REMANDS

Peterboro Review: Prisoners arrested in the city and sent to the county jail on remand, must be paid for by the county or the city. Recently the jailers of the province received orders to the effect that the maintenance of all prisoners while in jail was to be charged up to the city or county until they were sentenced. This means prisoners who are up on indictable offences and the city or county always paid, the maintenance of prisoners up for other offences. Prior to the new order if a man was given a hearing and then remanded to jail the province paid for his keep from then on. Now the city or county pay it till he has been sentenced.

The Post made enquiries to-day from the local county officials, and was informed that such orders had not been received as yet; but they were expected.

CIGARETTES SAP LIFE OF LONDON BOY STOMACH FULL OF LIQUID NICOTINE

London, Ont., March 4.—A case of nicotine poisoning in the death of a young man was brought to light several days ago. Physicians who were in attendance upon the case stated that the results of the abnormal use of tobacco have not been more strikingly demonstrated in their experience.

The young man referred to had been seriously ill for some time, but until a few days before his death it was expected he would recover. Towards the end he was seized with violent stomach attacks and became helpless.

Usually persons who think they understand the seductive cigarette are prone to announce that it is the forerunner of lung trouble. While cigarette smoking may produce a weakened condition, which is followed by a tubercular attack such as might result from any weakening influence, physicians will tell one that lung trouble is rare among smokers. Heart and stomach ailments are much more frequent, at any rate.

SMOKES 5,000 IN FEW WEEKS

When it is stated that within a few weeks the young man who died, inhaled the smoke of close to 5,000 cigarettes, even those classed as 'heavy smokers' did not wonder that he might have paid for the ildulgence with his life.

Some months ago the young man is known to have secured 500 packages of cigarettes. That all of them were gone in two or three weeks is stated. Some of the packages were given to friends, but more than 90 per cent were smoked by the young amn.

A similar indulgence in anything else eatable, drinkable or smokable, would probably have had the same effect, a physician stated.

At one sitting he is said to have consumed seven packages (70 cigarettes) His appetite for them had grew in a few years, and he apparently was not impaired, either physically or mentally until the attack which ended his life came. Then his brain became numbed and he lost the use of his muscles.

NICOTINE IN STOMACH

Before he died quantities of liquid which on examination proved to be practically liquid nicotine, were taken from his stomach. And it was not until then that the real cause of his death was actually known.

To his parents and friends his death came as a staggering blow. They had regarded his smoking as a diversion no more serious than is practised by scores of men and boys. The enormous number of cigarettes he used alarmed them somewhat, but after the manner of inhaling smokers their beloved boy easily stayed their their fears, by pointing out the apparent absence of bodily or mentally impairment. He himself had no idea of the subtlety with which the venomous poison was working. But as the temperance papers may be apt to put it, that's a way cigarettes and serpents have.

NEW PAVEMENT STOOD THE TEST

The new pavement on William-st seems to have stood the heavy frost of the past winter quite satisfactorily, as an inspection of it reveals the fact that not even one block has been forced out of position as was predicted by some citizens.

The past winter was severe enough for the purpose of testing the merits of asphalt block when it is pitted against heavy frost, and the fact that the stretch of pavement has shown no ill effects is a very strong tribute to its durability and general efficiency as a road material.

It would be a good idea if the town would flush the pavement and clear it of the surplus mud etc., which has gathered on its surface.

ASPHALT BLOCK FOR OSHAWA

Oshawa is going in for paved streets Tenders were called for the work and the tender of the Ontario Asphalt Block Clock Paving Company was accepted at the price of $2.49 per sq. yd. of pavement, according to Engineer's Specifications, complete from curb to curb, the extra work required to be done under the railroad track, together with the curb, gutter and sidewalk, widening to be done where called for at the prices submitted schedule.

BELLEVILLE LAD SHOT COMPANION

Belleville, April 9.—An unfortunate affair resulting in the immediate death of Russel Vickers, a lad of fourteen years of age occurred in this city on Saturday afternoon. The victim, with a companion named Arthur Plumton, also of this city, was playing at war and both had guns which were supposed to be unloaded. There wsa a shell in the gun handled by Plumton, and he discharged it at short range at Vickers who received the contents in the chest, which made a gaping wound and caused instant death. The shell had been placed in the gun by Vickers, who did not tell his playmate that he had done so. Dr. Yoeman, Coroner, on the advice of th County Attorney will conduct an inquest.

LOCKED CHILD IN BOX CAR

(Special to The Post)

Philadelphia, Pa., April 11.—Frantic messages are being rushed to every railroad centre in the United States and Canada to-day, and tracers are being sent out to locate car No. 59,496 of the Lehigh Valley Railway. In that car, it is feared, is the body of 12-year-old Bernard Rogers, victim of one of the most diabolical schemes of revenge ever attempted. He is believed if a postal card received by his uncle, Assistant District Attorney Cornelius F. Rogers, is true, to have passed miserably away of hunger and thirst, but this cannot be determined until the car is located.

The boy disappeared on Monday of last week. All efforts to trace him failed until yesterday when his uncle received the card. It is said that the writer had been sent to prison by Rogers for a four-year term, and that to carry out a vow of vengeance he had decoyed the 12-year-old boy to the railroad yards and locked him in the car, which was then on a siding waiting to be attached to a through train.

Rogers and all the railroad officials here to-day are systematically searching for the missing car. This is a difficult task, because of the enormous number of cars that are cleared from the transfer junctions here daily While the local records are being searched the big railway chiefs along the lines have issued orders to have the yards examined, and if the missing car is found to have it opened at once. The police say there is no doubt that the card was penned by a convict, because of the numerals attached to the signature, as only a person familiar with prison routine would have used them.

Bowmanville Got Wind of Visit

From Monday's Post.

Bowmanville will not part with Chief of Police Jarvis. The citizens of that town heard of the Chief's visit to Lindsay on Wednesday evening, and came to the conclusion that he was after the position rendered vacant by the resignation of Chief Vincent.

They lost no time in getting together, and as a result word was sent to Lindsay to the effect that Bowmanville knew a good thing, when they had it.

Nature makes the cures after all.

THEIR DUTIES

The commissioner of public affairs appoints and supervises the city engineer, corporation counsel and inspection of weights and measures; the commissioner of finance controls the books and offices of the city treasurer and auditor; the commissioner of public utilities has charge of the city water works and power plant, street railway, telephone and allied affairs; the commissioner of public safety controls the police and firemen. The commissioners also look after the ramifications of their various duties and may change and alter these by agreement.

Three civil service commissioners to be appointed to serve without pay demand the merit system, examinations, probations, investigations and removals on charges. The purpose is to make permanent all municipal appointments, calling for special fitness so that a faithful public official may plan a career and fit himself accordingly, without fear of displacement by disfavor.

Another feature of the charter is the provision for publicity. All the meetings are open to the public, and all ordinances and other notices must be published in the Official Gazette, which is distributed free of charge. The mayor has no veto power.

The charter provides for the initiative and referendum and the recall. Fifteen per cent of the vote is required to recall any commissioner who has been remiss or unsatisfactory in his duty.

HOW VOTED FOR.

The system of voting for the commissioners is ingenious. Twenty-five electors may nominate a candidate by taking an oath that he is qualified and a desirable man and that they desire to vote for him.

The ballot contains the names of all the candidates in alphabetic order followed by spaces marked for first, second and third choice. The voters mark 15 crosses on the ballot, voting for five men as first choice, five others as second choice, and five as third choice. However, they may vote for third choice the entire list after eliminating the first and second choice.

The majority of all votes cast elects on the first choice. Then the votes for the candidates, who are unsuccessful in the first choice column and in the second choice column are counted to select the rest. If five candidates having a majority of first and second choice votes are not elected the votes of the third choice are counted, with the stragglers of the other two and the third choice selections fill out the five. The third choice men are elected by a simple majority.

The Spokane plan varies from all others by making the contest a free-for-all and not designating the office sought. There were ninety-seven candidates at the recent campaign. Three declined to make the race, and two withdrew just before the election. It provides that candidates must not spend more than $250 during the campaign also making it compulsory to submit an itemized statement of expenditures and no paid workers, carriages or other conveyances are permitted on election day.

Party lines are absolutely obliterated and personalities are eliminated The candidate must take an oath that he represents no political party in the election nor any special interests.

INSTITUTED WITH DIFFICULTY

Spokane did not win its new government without a series of stubbornly-fought battles. Late last fall Mayor Pratt, Democrat, working with a Republican council composed of legislative and administrative branches, informally appointed a committee of business men to prepare a charter under the commission form. The draft was presented to the City Council three months afterwards but the ten representatives paid little or no attention to it.

A petition signed by more than 30 per cent of the voters was then submitted to the Council. This urged the appointment of fifteen free-holders to formulate a charter. The council granted the request after some delay and eight business men, five representatives of union labor and two lawyers were selected. This committee embodied in its charter some of the best features of 100 plans in operation in the United States, and submitted its work to the people, who adopted it by an overwhelming vote at an election on December 27, 1910.

Proceedings for injunction were instituted in the Spokane county superior court afterward, The people were sustained, but that did not clear the field. An appeal was taken to the supreme court of Washington, the six judges of which handed down a joint opinion, upholding the legality of the charter election.

METHODISTS OPPOSE MILITARY CANTEEN

The canteen at the new navy headquarters at Halifax is bitterly opposed by the Methodist church. At a meeting of the General Conference Special Committee Friday, a resolution was passed expressing profound regret at the action of the Dominion Government in permitting the existence of a canteen at the new navy headquarters. They direct the department of temperance and moral reform to present the protest and entreaty to the Government, arranging for the co-operation of similar departments and organizations in other churches.

A petition will be sent to the Imperial Government endorsing the desires of the Chinese Government in reference to the suppression and sale of opium.

Used Her Flesh For Fish Bait

Vancouver, B. C., April, 7.—Fish dealers confirm a story that an Indian woman living on a small island north of here cut a piece of flesh from her body in an effort to procure food for her children when they were starving.

The woman and children were in desperate straits. The last scrap of food had been eaten the day before, and there was no game, although the women searched until her great strength gave out.

In this condition she cut a strip of flesh from her body. The flesh was used as bait to catch fish and thus sustained life until aid arrived.

Bridal Party Had Jimmy

Toronto, April, 8.—Sensational evidence was given at the new trial of the case of relatives of the wealthy Michael Fraser, to set aside his marriage to Miss Margaret Robertson, nurse. A witness testified that he was hired with other stalwarts to go with the bride's wedding party. They had in their possession a pair of handcuffs, a burglars' jimmy and other weapons of attack. They managed to get passed the local men, who were guarding the house. They had offered resistance, but the sight of the handcuffs quieted them.

The witness said he was unable to tell what transpired during the next half hour, but when he entered the house he heard Mr. Fraser introduce the former Miss Robertson, as "my wife."

The family solicitor said that Mr. Fraser a month or so later, handed over about twenty-five thousand dollars in land and debentures to Mrs. Fraser.

CLANBRASSIE, ONT.

"Two years ago, the doctor made forty-four calls on me, and then said he had done all he could for me. I was suffering with intense Kidney Trouble and Inflammation had set in. Two other doctors were consulted and agreed that nothing could be done to help me.

TRADE AGREEMENT IS ENDORSED.

Washington, April 5.—Two endorsements of President Taft's proposed reciprocity agreement with Canada reached the White House today. The first came from W. F. Knox, Chairman of the Michigan Republican State Central Committee, and the other from Woodlawn Grange, of Portland, Oregon.

Mr. Knox wired the President as follows: "In yesterday's spring election the entire Republican State ticket was successful by a normal Republican majority. This I regard as significant in view of the declaration made in some quarters that the reciprocity programme of the administration would disrupt the party in the strong Republican border states. I regard the outcome as a strong endorsement in Michigan of your reciprocity program."

MINING LEAD IN GALWAY TOWNSHIP

Peterboro Times—Mr. J. S. Waldron, manager of the Milling Company, Limited, was in town yesterday, and leaves for Buffalo this morning, where he expects to purchase a 15-ton smelter. The Company's property is situated in Galway, about 12 miles north of Bobcaygeon. The Company was formed to develop a lead proposition, and after sinking a shaft down about 100 feet, they came across large deposits of barrium, which is valuable as a paint, being much like white lead.

The lead showing ranges all the way from 20 per cent to 80 per cent pure white lead and is therefore very rich and valuable. Mr. Waldron has had 8 to 10 men at work for about a year, and expects to have the mine a splendid dividend payer in about a year.

NORTH ONTARIO FOR RECIPROCITY
BEAVERTON MEETING ENDORSES PACT

"We are emphatically of the opinion that the reciprocity agreement will be of great direct benefit to the agriculturists of the Dominion, and that indirectly it will undoubtedly be beneficial to all Canada."

Beaverton, April 9.—One lonely individual responded to a request for the "opposed" to the foregoing resolution, introduced at the close of a public meeting held in Alexander Hall here Saturday afternoon. He got up rather hesitatingly after more than two hundred farmers of the district had pledged their hearty support of the reciprocity agreement. Four other men in the hall remained in their seats when the supporters of the resolution jumped up, but they modestly refrained from open opposition when given the opportunity.

POLITICS MUST KEEP OUT

North Ontario leans toward the Conservative side of politics, sending Conservatives to both Local and Dominion Houses, but the farmers of this section, in common with the rest of the Dominion, showed on Saturday that they are not going to allow the reciprocity agreement to be sacrificed upon the altar of party; that reciprocity is a business proposition and entitled to be treated as such strictly upon its merits.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the North Ontario Liberal Association in order to hear Hon. A. G. McKay and Mr. H. Mowatt, K.C. explain what the agreement means to the farmer and to the country at large. It was not a partisan meeting in any sense, and many well-known Conservatives were present. The farmers came to hear reciprocity discussed on its merits. They wanted facts—and got them. The Liberal leader was in splendid fighting trim, answering conclusively the serious objections made to the agreement, but he was unsparing in his ridicule of the side issues that had been introduced.

CHIEF OF POLICE IS ARRESTED

Arnprior, Ont. April, 3.—Charged with theft of $11,216 of the funds of the town of Arnprior, Chief of Police John Mattson, was arrested Saturday afternoon arraigned before Magistrate Burwash and committed for trial. He was committed to the county jail at Pembroke on Saturday night by Constable Cousineau to await trial. The chief did not plead, the commitment being made by agreement between counsels representing the prosecution and his solicitor.

The warrant for the Chief's arrest had been made out for several days and the prosecution were only waiting his recovery from his illness before taking action. Shortly afternoon on Saturday Constable Cousineau served the paper on the chief, who accompanied him down to the court house. There Magistrate Burwash, the lawyers for both sides, Mayor McLachlan, and a few of the town councillor's were waiting. The charge was read, and the necessary formalities gone through as speedy as possible. Everything had been arranged before hand to expedite matters, and the whole proceedings lasted not more than five minutes. The chief was represented by R. J. Slattery, while Mr. J. E. Thompson town solicitor appeared for the corporation.

Spring's Approach

Spring seems to be approaching this year in much the same way the snail in the old school problem that climbed to the top of the pole. He used to climb up two inches in the day time and slip back two in the night. Every appearance of spring is followed by an immediate relapse and, on several occasions it seemed to advance only one inch in the day time and then slip back six inches at night. But it is certainly coming although those who have made a study of weather conditions tell us we will not have fine weather until after Easter.

ADVERTISE IN THE POST.

WELLAND
YESTERDAY TODAY... TO-MORROW

Five years ago the town of Welland contained 1800 people, whose chief topic of interest was market day and market valuation of farm products. Welland was then a rural town with rural ideas and with rural ambitions. About that time electric power generated from the great white coal of both Niagara and Decew Falls, was offered for sale on the market, and it was then that the real Welland spirit long lying dormant, asserted itself, and arose to the occasion when opportunity tapped at her door.

An organized "still hunt" for industries was put into motion, and the greatest combination of natural and acquired advantages to be found in the entire Dominion of Canada, was presented to manufacturing interests at home and abroad, with the result that 24 manufacturing industries have been located there.

This is an average of one new industry every 90 days for 5 succeeding years, and Welland has been transformed from an agricultural centre into a great manufacturing district No oth r place in Canada can equal this record.

The population of greater Welland is now estimated at 6000 people, an increase of about 400 per cent for the first 5 years of industrial progress.

Sixteen of the factories are now under operation, and employing about 2000 men, paying a weekly wage roll, of $20000. The other eight plants have closed all negotiations with the municipality and will erect their buildings in the year 1911. The last 8 concerns will employ twice the number of men the first 16 factories now employ.

If 2,000 workmen will create a population of 6000 people, how much population will Welland have when her employees number 6000 men. The answer is as plain as day, 18,000 people of course.

In August last the Toronto World predicted that Welland's population would reach 20,000 in 1915.

I predict that when the Deere Plow Works, and the new Steel Company, Automobile Works, Chemical Works, etc., complete their proposed plans of construction that Welland has the basis for a population of 15000 people. This means a flood of human beings Wellandward. It means busy days for Welland. It means more building operations in one year than in any 3 years previous, because 2000 families require 2000 homes, and they must be erected and ready for use before they can harbor the people going there. 2000 houses require 2000 lots. This means a house on every vacant lot in Welland.

On top of this further industrial development is in view. This will make the house problem in Welland acute.

B. J. McComick, Industrial Commissioner, says, "I appeal to you for "action in building workmen's homes "and to offer the... either for sale or "for rental at fair values to the new "citizens of Welland. The element of "risk is entirely eliminated."

Your correspondent spent several hours on the ground last week and took time to verify the above recited facts. Much of this has been accomplished by reason of a "live wire" in the real estate business, to wit, the present Industrial Commissioner of Welland, Mr. B J McCormick, but his efforts would have availed little if not seconded by an untiring and energetic Board of Trade.

When one is told by "the man on the street" that there is no necessity for a Board of Trade in Lindsay, or that if we had one that some few would run it, let us pause and consider what has been accomplished in a town of less than our own size, and when the Board of Trade of Lindsay arises "Phoenix-like from her ashes," become a booster for Lindsay by seeking membership therein.

The Secretary and President of the Lindsay Board of Trade are too modest. They ought to tell the citizens of Lindsay that they are still in office and will be glad to welcome all members and to give careful attention to suggestions for the upbuilding of our town, and that the Secretary will write in his little receipt book an acknowledgment of the annual fee from any one paying the same.

Yours, etc.,
F. H. KIDD.

OBSERVANCE OF THE JEWISH PASSOVER

"Unleavened bread shall be eaten seven days; and there shall no leavened bread be seen with thee neither shall be there leaven seen with thee in all thy quarters!"—Exodus chap. xiii., verse 7.

Following out this command, Jews throughout the world will, commencing with sundown Wednesday evening, April 12th, observe the annual Passover festival, the most outstanding, probably, of all Jewish customs. All scraps of bread, cake and the like, termed in the Bible as "leaven" will be gathered together before the evening and disposed of. This is one of the most exacting duties that the women of the househalds are called upon to do. For seven days and nights unleavened bread, known by the term of "matros", will be put on the table in the place of bread.

IN MEMORY OF EXODUS.

This command is in commemoration of the hasty departure from Egypt of the children of Israel, when no time was allowed for the natural "rising" of the bread. This unleavened bread is very plain for the most part and varies in quality considerably to suit the means of purchasers.

NEW DISHES NEEDED.

Nor is the keeping of the Passover, apart from its religious side, altogether confined to doing away with ordinary bread. No dish that has been used before can be used during this seven-day period. Many people keep the same dishes from one passover to another, although once used between times spoils them for the purpose. As a result of having to have different dishes, foods that are bought during the year cannot be bought at this time on account of the dishes they are in, or have been in. This applies in the case of milk particularly, many families going without this stimulating beverage on account of being unable to obtain any that has not be kept in the usual cans. Altogether the passover season works an entire revolution in the Jewish household.

Close Season for Lunge

The close season for lunge and bass, viz, the 15th of April, will soon be here, and as weather conditions apparently are not favorable before that date, the ardent disciples of Isak Walton will have to be content and await the opening on June 16th.

CABINET TO VISIT LONDON CITY

There will be a general exodus of Ontario Cabinet Ministers to England this summer by the appearance of things at present. The Prime Minister and Lady Whitney have been invited to attend the coronation and ll leave about the first of June. The Provincial Treasurer, Col. Matheson, will go to England in connection with the flotation of the loan of three and a half millions authorized by the Legislature during the session just closed. Col. John S. S. Hendrie is now on the way to England, and Hon. Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission, will leave at the end of May.

POWERS ON FARMS

Hon. Adam Beck will be a judge at the Olympia Horse Show in London, and later he will visit some of the European countries, it is understood, to gather further information about the use of electric power on farms and for agricultural purposes.

Hon. J. S. Duff, Minister of Agriculture, with the other Ministers of Agriculture of the overseas dominions, has been invited to attend the Royal Stock Show and be the guest of the titled directors.

The construction of new offices for the Ontario Government on the rand may require the return of Hon. Dr. Reaume, Minister of Public Works to London. While this is not settled, it is more than probable that C. C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, will spend some weeks in England in connection with the colonization and immigration work in Britain of the Provincial Government directed by N. C. Colcock from these offices.

Not Enough Pay

"James," said his mother, "you eat and eat, and never seem satisfied. Here is one more helping of pudding, but it must be the last." James started on his pudding with delight. "Once upon a time, James," went on his mother, "there was a little boy who ate and ate, until one day he ate too much pudding and he burst.' "There ain't no such thing as too much pudding," grunted Jimmy, as he finished his helping. "Then why did the little boy burst," said his mother. "Not enough boy," replied James, and handed up his plate for a fifth helping.

EAST WARD LADY WAS POISONED
MIXED CANDIES BLAMED FOR TROUBLE

From Monday's Post.

On Saturday evening Mr. Fred Faulkner, son of Mrs. Thos. Faulkner, Caroline-st., purchased a consignment of mixed candies at a local store. That evening, together with his mother, he ate a number of the candies without experiencing any unpleasant results, but on Sunday Mrs. Faulkner, after again sampling the sweets, was seized with a peculiar sensation Her tongue became discolored and portions of her body became numb. She went to see a physician about 1.30 o'clock in the afternoon, as she was suffering from a burning sensation in her throat and stomach. The doctor pronounced her suffering from slow poison. During the afternoon she went into a heavy sleep, and it was with some difficulty that she was roused from her slumbers.

This morning her body was still benumbed, and it will be some time before she is fully recovered.

The poisoning was no doubt caused by some ingredient used for coloring cheap candies, which is said by those qualified to judge, to be injurious to the system.

C.P.R. Sends Seeds To Employsee

Over 100,000 packages of flower seeds are being sent out this spring by the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. Floral Department to the agents, sectionmen and other employees of the company.

After nearly twenty years' existence, this department of the grand railway system has reached colossal proportions, and as the thirty-six different varities of flower seeds are brought from the four quarters of the globe, their purity and quality, are the best procurable.

The steady expansion of this department is owing to the love of culturing flowers, and the keen desire to beautifying their surroundings, which has been inculcated into Canadian Pacific Railway employees by these opportunities for indulging in them, and the result has been most gratifying.

Prizes were given for the best flower gardens last year, and the competition was very close. This additional incentive will be continued this year, and prizes will be given for the best photographs of gardens on the line of the railway.

The Irrigation and Forestery Departments of the company in west are taking warm interest in the work and, in addition to growing flowers many western agents raise vegetables and have practically created miniature experimental farms of their own.

The effective work of the Canadian Pacific Railway Floral Department, has had wide reaching beneficial effects, not only in encouraging a love of flowers amongst its army of employees, and in beautifying its long lines of rails, which is highly appreciated by those who travel by the companyjs trains, but in showing the world that all the corporations are not after the almighty dollar always.

NO HAREM SKIRT FOR KINGSTON

Kingston Standard—This morning, the person who was to have appeared on the street yesterany, in the harem skirt, but who was prevented by the police, asked for a special permission from Mayor Graham The permission was not granted.

A large number of people who were on Princess street, yesterday afternoon, for the express purpose of gazing at the harem skirt, which, it was said, would be worn were sadly disappointed. The only opportunity, the people of the city had to see this much talked of dress was at the Orpheum, where it was demonstrated at night.

The man left for Ottawa at noon today, where he will remain for a week.

PROGRAMME FOR WOMAN MAYOR

Hunnewell, Kas., April 5.—It may seem strange enough to have a woman for Mayor, but what about a woman for chief of police, too? Yet Mrs. Ella Wilson, the first woman to be ever elected to a mayoralty, says she proposes to make such an appointment in her effort to make the town "dry."

Her programme includes prohibition of liquor traffic; prohibitive tax on pool rooms; purification of water supply; appointment of medical officer to compel proper ventilation of stores and factories and public buildings of all kinds; provision of proper places of amusement for the young and the encouragement of healthy athletics for young men.

She will name Mrs. Osborne a candidate for judgeship, for chief of police.

Small Fire At Victoria Creamery

This afternoon at 1.25 o'clock, a fire was discovered in the roof of the Victoria Creamery The fire brigade responded promptly, and the blaze extinguished before any damage resulted. The fire was caused by a spark from the chimney.

RECENT LIQUOR LAW INFRACTIONS

Bobcaygeon Independent—Mr. Lithgow, the License Inspector, has been engaged lately at Fenelon Falls and Kinmount, with infractions of the Liquor Act. Two men were lately brought up for being drunk, one of them being on the Indian list The latter was fined $10 and some $7, costs for being drunk. The story he gave was that he and his companion found a bottle of whiskey in the wood pile at the Chemical Works After an adjournment for consideration it was admitted that the companio furnished the bottle, and he was fined $20 and costs.

At Kinmount, two young fellows were summoned for drunkenness, and it appears that they went along the Monck road and got their drubk, bringing a bottle with them to the village. While in the village they got in with some others who had been to Lindsay and obtained bottles. A whole batch of charges will result from the mix up, and two magistrates will be involved as the Monck road charges were in the County of Haliburton.

ACTION TO SET ASIDE A WILL

Messrs Weeks and Hopkins have issued a writ against William J. Heard, on behalf of the widow and othee members of the family of the late Joseph Heard of Fenelon Falls, to set aside his will on the ground of undue influence, and that he was not capable of making a will at the time.

Negotiations to settle the matter have been pending for some time, but failed, hence the writ.

Messrs McLaughlin, Peel, Fulton, and Stinson are acting for defendant.

We understand an estate of $40,000 is at stake, and that the case will be tried before The Hon. Mr. Justice Teetzel at the High Court Sittings on the 15th of May next.

New Residence

Mr. M. H. McGeough, contractor, commenced operations this morning, on a modern brick residence for Mr. Daniel Twohey on St. Lawrence-st. between Mrs. W. F. O'Boyle's and Mr. N. Brady's property.

MOTOR BOATING IN LOCAL WATERS LAUNCH OWNERS PREPARING FOR SUMMER

This season motor boating has a bright outlook, especially in the speedy runabout style and the racer. The family launch is still in the market and is purchased by the man who desires only to be on the water, and is not particular about breaking records travelling about. Since 1902 when the first gasoline launch race was held on the Kawartha Lakes at Sturgeon Point, the speed of this variety of pleasure craft has been steadily increasing and the limit ha not yet been reached. At that time the swiftest lauch made 5½ or 6 mile an hour; to-day double, or treble as much is realized.

About four years ago the Miss Fidgety started the extreme speed mania by making a tour through the lakes and defeating all the local boats by a disheartening margin. She was supposed to make 22½ miles an hour, and really looked as if she were travelling at that rate, but now, when fast launches are more common, the general opinion is that 18 miles was her limit. Three summer ago, an American designed craft, the Blue Streak called after the Toronto flyer, was brought to Fenelon Falls by Mr Cliff Scott, and with this 22-footer, equipped with a 6 h.p. motor, he easily won the championship of the lakes. The following winter he sold this outfit and purchased a 30-foot 10 h.p. which was built by J. Perrin of town from plans furnished by American designers. That summer not a single launch on the whole Kawartha chain of lakes had the slightest chance against him.

Last summer several boat builders tried their best to place a winning racer on the water, so the contest was very keen. At Stoney Lake regatta there were three particularly fast boats, the Avis, the Black Arrow, and a French speed craft. The Avis was a 22-footer, with 12 h.p. Ferro engine and was built and driven by the Gordon Boat Building Co., of Bobcaygeon; the Black Arrow was built by a Peterboro firm and a 22½-h.p. Schofield Holden motor used; the other boat had a four cylinder French engine. In the race the Avis dropped out on account of engine trouble when leading and the finish was a dead heat between the other two, but in the final race the Black Arrow won by a boat length. At Sturgeon Point the Black Arrow was not in condition to run on account of a minor break, so the flag was contested by Mr. G. H. Hopkins' new launch, Viking 2nd and the Avis. Although several others entered the race was between these two. The Viking 2nd won quite handily, (the Avis claiming engine trouble), thus winning the championship of the lakes. However, there was a discussion as to whether Scott's Thief could defeat it, so in September a race was arranged, and another scalp was added to the Viking's belt. This season, however, there will be many new fast runabouts and racers which should make an interesting event at the regattas. One unusually fine launch will be a thirty-foot, five feet beam racy runabout, just built to the order of Dr. Cavan of Toronto. It will have a 25 h.p. Buffalo motor installed in the bow under a hood and controlled from the steering wheel entirely. A speed of 14½ to 17 miles is expected. Mr. Cliff Scott anticipates having a faster launch than ever, probably obtaining something over twenty miles. The Toronto Marine Construction Co. are contemplating placing a high speed demonstrator on the Kawartha Lakes.

Mr. Felix Forbert is having a 22-foot cabin cruiser with a 6-8 h.p. Robinson motor, built at the Lindsay Launch Works.

Mr. Jos. Grozelle is building a small runabout for himself and intends to put in a Robinson motor.

As soon as navigation opens the Black Arrow will be brought up to town by the new owner, Mr. W. Flavelle.

Mr. W. Lloyd Wood, of Toronto is having a canopy top placed over the after part of his launch.

The details af a racer that is expected to win fame this year will be given in a few days, as well as a list of the present launch owners.

Hydro-Electric Asked to Negotiate

From Friday's Post.

At last night's special meeting of the Council called to consider the report of Mr. Acre, of the Hydro-Electric Commission on the local power situation, the following resolution was passed unanimously :—

"Moved by Aldermen McCrea and Babcock: That the municipal Council of the Corporation of the Town of Lindsay, having heard the report of the physical condition and earning capacity of the Lindsay Light, Heat & Power Co. of Lindsay, Limitd, as submitted by Mr. Acres, hereby authorize the Hydro-Electric Commission to negotiate on behalf of the Municipality of Lindsay with the Light Heat & Power Company, of Lindsay, and secure an option for the purchase of said company's assets on behalf of the municipality.'

The session of the Council was a private one. His Worship Mayor Beal was present for a while, but was obliged to leave on account of illness.

Mr. Acre before presenting his report, said the Hydro-Electric Commission had made a detailed investigation into the plant of the Lindsay Light, Heat & Power Co, who gave access to their books, records, etc. and information re cost of plant when installed, and when installed, and what it was worth to-day as a growing concern. A statement of the value of the plant as well as the offer of of the public was contained in the report. The question was whether the standing of the Company was such as to permit of the Commission entering into negotiations regarding the purchase of the plant. Although the proposition looked favorable to the Commission, there were some points yet to be considered.

Mr. Acre suggested that the Council meet to consider the report privately. The report was prepared as the Hydro Electric saw conditions, but there might be some changes suggested which it would perhaps be better to make before the report was made public.

Mr. Acre informed the Post this morning that the public would be giver all the information at any early date concerning the nature of the report as well as the result of the negotiations entered into between the commission and the local company.

SPOILED BALLOTS DO NOT COUNT

Telegram: Chancellor Boyd has giver a judgment in connection with the East Flamborough local option by-law that will prove a great source of comfort to the temperance party. The effect of the judgment is that all spoiled ballots are not to be counted as against the by-law.

Bernard Brown made the application to quash the by-law, which the Chancellor has dismissed with costs. On the vote, 352 were for the by-law, and 216 against. There were 26 spoil-counted the vote for the by-law lacks four of being the required three-fifths.

Chancellor Boyd says that, taking a common sense view, effect would not be given to the spoiled ballots unless coerced thereto by the language of the statute, which required three-fifths of those voting on the by-law.

COUNT THOSE WHO VOTE.

He says: "The dealing is with legal votes, not with spoiled ballots; the electors to be reckoned are those who have expressed intelligibly on the face of the ballot paper their approval or disapproval of the by-law.

"The statute requires three-fifths of the electors voting that is to say, three-fifths of the votes actually cast at the election and this means votes validly cast, and does not refer to votes spoiled or wasted by improper ballots, or such bad votes are the same as if they'd never been cast."

UPHOLD THOROLD'S BY-LAW.

Mr. Justice Sutherland, in the case of the application to quash the local option by-law of Thorold, this morning indicated his intention to dismiss the application, but reserved his decision to give a written opinion for purposes of appeal.

The objection in this case is that the ballot was printed for and against the by-law instead of for and against local option, as the statute required.

"There were a lot of stupid Englishmen who were misled and who thought in voting for the by-law they were voting for the public house," declared James Haverson, K. C., for the applicant.

Fenelon Falls Board of Trade

Fenelon Falls, April 7.—The regular meeting of the Fenelon Falls Board of Trade was held on Tuesday evening. A discussion took place regarding the advertising of the Falls as a summer resort. Mr. A. J. Gould, as chairman of the committee, who had chaege of the matter, reported that nothing definite had yet been done, but that the committee would have a full report with a copy of the literature to be circulated to present at the meeting to be held on the 19th inst. A suggestion was made that the assistance of the ladies of the town be enlisted by the formation of a civic improvement league. Such organizations had made a great improvement in the appearance of other towns, and would do the same here. The Board hold the opinion that the G.T. R. is not doing the fair thing by the town or district and ceiticized the G. T.R. station here, particularly the change recentlo effected of turning the two waiting rooms into one, which is considered as the reverse of an improvement. The meeting adjourned until Wednesday, the 19th inst. when a full attendance is requested.

CHASTISED BY A CANDID FRIEND.

Mr. Andrew Broder, the Conservative member for Dundas, who contributed to the reciprocity debate in the Commons yesterday, declared there was "nothing in all this annexation and and anti-loyalty talk: one political party is as loyal as the other, though each wants to let off all the fireworks."

He also harrowed the feelings of many of his Colleagues on his Opposition side with his condemnation of the personal attacks on Hon. Messrs. Fielding and Patterson, who conducted the trade negotiations for this country. Canadians, he said, should stand by the men who for the time represented them, and not cast aspersions upon their own ambassadors.

Finally, although opposing the trade agreement, he was the first member of the Opposition to discuss it on economic grounds.

WOMEN MAY AVOID OPERATIONS

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will prove how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for seven months without much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. ORVILLE ROCK, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women. Why don't you try it?

Pittsburg, Pa., April, 6.—Physicians' prescriptions which make it possible for the thirsty to get liquor at drug stotes must be endorsed by the mother or wife of the bearer, if the aid of the Protective League for families of drunkards is invoked by the family. The members of the league are church women, who have organized in an attempt to force the observance of the liquor laws.

Twenty-five women detectives have been employed to enlist the aid of constables of the county in serving notice on saloonkeepers and druggists to refuse to serve certain men. Thousands of blank forms to be filled in by the wife or mother have been printed by the League, and failure on the part of druggists or saloonkeepers to heed the notice will be called to the attention of the license court in an attempt at revocation or refusal of a license.

ENDLESS PRAYERS GOING ROUNDS

It was supposed the "endless prayer" was by this time extinct, but a subscriber informed the Post to-day that it is again in circulation about town. Nothing is harder to kill than superstition. The text has varied a little from what it was the last time we saw it, but the sentiment is as idiotic as ever. Here is the latest revised version:

An Ancient Prayer.

March 30, 1911.

"O Lord Jesus, I implore Thee to bless all mankind and keep us from evil and take us to dwell with Thee eternally. This prayer was sent to me, and is being sent all over the world. Copy and see what will happen. It was said in Jesus' time that all who will write this prayer and pass it on will be delivered from all calamity, but those who don't write it will meet with some great misfortune. Those who copy it within nine days and send it to nine of their friends will on the ninth day r?ceives some great joy. Do not break the chain. Sign no name, but state day received."

YOUTH LEFT BOUND AND GAGGED A PREY TO THE DEVOURING FLAMES

Colborne, Ont., April 17.—Interrupted in his work of robbing the office of the Colborne Express, a burglar seized his disturber, Leslie Burt, gagged and bound him, and then set fire to the premises, leaving the boy helpless in the midst of the flames.

A few minutes later, the youth was rescued from his terrible situation by a liveryman, but not before he had suffered terrible burns. The entire block was destroyed.

Police officers and citizens are scouring the neighborhood in search of the fiend, who attempted to add murder to his crimes of robbery, and incendiarism.

The boy describes the stranger as being tall and about 30 years of age, with a black moustache.

ONE ARREST MADE

A stranger was arrested while the fire was in progress and locked up on suspicion, but he was able to clear himself when questioned this morning.

The burned premises were—The Express, owned by Geo. Keyes & Son; bramch of the Toronto Bank; Chase Bros., nursery stock; McCrackan's hardware store; and E. R. Wilsons insurance office. The premises were entirely destroyed, and the loss is estimated at $10,000.

According to the story of Leslie Burt, he was passing the Express Office, atqabout 1.30 this morning when he saw the burglar moving about inside. He entered to investigate, and was at omce seized and thrown to the floor. His hands and feet were tied fast, renderibg him entirely helpless. Burt was also gagged. The stranger then set fire to the papers and cleared out.

The youth was found in this condition by the liveryman, who was the first to be attracted to the scene, by belching smoke and flames.

Leslie is a printer and has been in Colborne only two weeks. He is said to hail from Picton.

All the burned premises were insured.

SUPT. CARROL AROUND AGAIN

The many friends of Mr. T. D. Carroll, Superintendent of C. P. R. construction work, near Cambray, will be pleased to learn that he was able to resume his duties this morning.

Mr. Carroll, it will be remembered, is the gentleman, whom a man named Gorman assaulted at the work on Monday.

PETERBORO MAN SUICIDES IN WEST

Edmonton, April, 13.—Unable to swallow because of a cut tonsil and finding sleep impossible because of pains in his throat, Reginald N. Hendren, of Peterboro, Ont., was came here with two brothers a few days ago, walked into the Twin City baggage and express company's office here this morning, and securing a revolver from a trunk he had there, shot himself in the right temple, death resulting immediately. Hendren left a letter directed to the police, asking that his body be turned over to Anderson's undertaking rooms, and that his remains be embalmed and sent to Peterborough. The letter also gave as the reason for suicide, the fact that tonsilitis kept him from eating. Six trunks for the deceased and his brothers, George and Fred, are now at the Twin City express awaiting claimants. They arrived in the city on April 10, and from indications, they were evidently bent on homesteading.

Hydro-Electric Commission Gets Option On Plant of Local Power Company

The Hydro Electric Commission secured an option on the local Light, Heat and Power Co.'s plant and the equipment, and it has been received by the Town Clerk, together with the report of the Commission Engineer on the Company's plant. The documents have not been made public as yet, but it is understood that the price quoted is less than what had been mentioned when negotiations were first started.

A meeting of the council, will, in all probability be held at the beginning of the week when the option will be considered and in all likelihood steps will be taken to submit a bylaw to the ratepayers for the ratifications of the agreement.

The Globe says: An option on the Lindsay Power & Light Company's plant and equipment has been secured by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission and was forwarded to the Town Council yesterday. It is understood that the price quoted is considerably less than the town had hoped for, when on the authorization of ratepayers it was decided to open negotiations with the company. The Town Council secured the co-operation of the Hydro-Electric Commission in the matter, and in addition to the option have been furnished with the reports of the Commission Engineers on the Company's plant, which at the present time develops 2,000 horse-power at Fenelon Falls, and transmits to Lindsay. is anticipated that the town will now make an offer to the Company on the figure quoted in the option.

The Commission has also secured for the city of Peterboro an option on the Otonabee Power Company's development and transmission plant now supplying 3,000 horse-power from locks four and five on the Trent Canal. Hon. Adam Beck presented this option to a meeting of the Citizen's Committee at Peterboro on Wednesday night. He was able to tell them that by carrying out the proposition they would be able to secure a 24-hour service at from $16 to $17 per horse-power, a most advantageous price. They would also be in a position if the city closes on the option of having an immediate service, free from competition.

The following is from the Mail: "Notification was sent to Lindsay yesterday by the Hon. Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission, of the terms made by the commission with the Lindsay Light, Heat and Power Co. The municipality will submit a by-law to the ratepayers for the ratification of the agreement, and there is no doubt but that it will pass, as the commission has made the terms by which the town will save about $20,000. The town will take about 2,000 horse power, and soon will be in the Hydro Electric zone.

The question of a supply of cheap power for Peterboro was discussed there by the Hon. Adam Beck and the Citizens' Committee. The engineers of the commission have looked over the situation and presented a report, and if the city acts on the report, Peterboro will be in a position independent of the power merger which generates power on the Trent River. The city will get power from the Otonabee Power Co.

Midland and Penetang will vote next week on by-laws authorizing the towns to make contracts with the commission. Penetang will buy out the existing plant, and both places, together with Waubaushene, will take power supplied by the commission through the Simcoe Light & Power Co.

FREE LIBRARIES NEEDED FOR ALL IDEAL SUBMITTED BY A. W. CAMERON

"There is need of a provincial public library, whose volumes are accessible to everyone in this province a system of country libraries and to exercise supervision over them, and such provision as will make it possible for townships and even sections of them to organize so as to secure free public library facilities."

This was the emphatic declaration of Mr. A. W. Cameron, B.A., president of the Ontario Library Association, in the course of the annual presidential address at this afternoon's session of that body's eleventh annual meeting, which opened in the public library, Toronto, Monday morning. His subject was, "A Provincial Library System."

ONE HUNDRED IN ATTENDANCE.

About one hundred members of the Association—over half of them ladies—were in attendance.

"Free education will not be wholly attained in this province," continued Mr. Cameron, "until it is possible for every sincere studtnt to obtain the material for his legitimate study and research from some of our public libraries."

Library work in small centres throughout Ontario, said the president, was being sadly neglected, simply because the Provincial Inspector of Libraries had too much work upon his shoulders. Many of the smaller libraries were not cognizant of what the Department of Education was willing to do for them in the matter of annual grants. Surely this sufficed to establish the need for more thorough library inspection.

MORE AID FROM GOVERNMENT.

"The past year has in the aggregate surpassed any of its predecessors," said the report of the Secretary, Mr. E. A. Hardy, B.A., presented at this morning's session. MrHardy has been secretary of the Association continuously since its organization 11 years ago.

His report, which reviewed at length, the work of the year, began by recommending an increase in the Government grant to the association, as central office expenses were increasing at a very rapid rate.

OVER $88,000 FROM MR CARNEGIE

Mr. Andrew Carnegie's grants to libraries in the Province during the year aggregated $88,900, distributed among 13 towns — Beaverton, Dundas, Elora, Hespeler, Leamington, Midland, New Liskeard, Orillia, Owen Sound, Port Arthur, Preston, Simcoe and Grimsby.

Commenting upon the work which awaited the summer library school, the secretary briefly referred to the methods of library training in vogue in Great Britain and the United States.

Mr. D. M. Grant, B.A., of Sarnia, presented the report of the committee on Technical Education and the Public Library. According to this report 25 towns and cities had applied for technical libraries during the year. The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $233.09.

HAVE ARRESTED THE YOUTH WHO SAYS HE WAS GAGGED AND BOUND

Colborne, Ont., April, 13, Leslie Burks, of Blenheim, who came here eight weeks ago to work at the Express newspaper office, and who told the remarkable story of being tied to a chair and left bound in the burning building, was today arrested by Chief Constable Jarvis, of Bowmanville and taken to Colborne. This action was the result of the investigation of Detective Miller, of the Provincial force.

Burks was found near the back door of the Express office 8with his arms tied and rolling on the floor, bya liveryman named Goheen, while the building was in flames. He was immediately cut loose and taken to a hotel, where a doctor attended to him. His face and gair were considerably scorched, and he appeared to be hysterical or delirious from the fright.

BURKS' OWN STORY.

This is the story told by Burks of his experiences: "I was returning home about a quarter after eleven, and saw a light in the Express office, and I went in by the side door, my usual way, and into the front office A man was sitting at Mr. Keyes' desk (Mr. Keyes being the editor) with papers strewn around and on the floor. I asked him what he wanted here. He replied 'What do you want?' and with that we made for one another.

KNOCKED INSENSIBLE.

"The man got me down and hit me between the eyes and knocked me insensible. When I came to, I was lying on the sofa, bound and gagged. Just as I came to, the clock was striking twelve, and the man was standing in front of the safe He said: "D—n it. if I can't find the paper, I will burn the place up!" With that he went out into the back office, came back with a can of coal oil, sprinkled oil on the floor and on the papers, and set fire to them.

"He drew me out to the back office near the stove. I tried to wriggle out after he had gone, and got caught some way in the stove or stoveboard, and tore my overcoat getting loose. I managed to get to the back door, which had been left open by the man when he went. By this time the fire had broken through the partition between the two offices, and the place was going up quick. I cried for help and Mr. Goheen came and released me."

The entire block, including the Bank of Toronto branch office, was destroyed at a loss of $25,000.

Mr. Keyes says Burks was a good workman and he has no fault to with him. He knows of no possible reason why anybody should burn his place down or desire any documents in his possession, either as editor, or Division Court Clerk.

Burks was brought before the local magistrate and remanded for a week Startling developments are looked for.

AMOUNT WAS WRITTEN OFF

From Wednesday's Post.

Mrs. McKay appeared before the council last evening in reference to arrearages in taxes, which she claimed she paid the late clerk and treasurer. When her house was partially destroyed by fire she lost all her receipts. She asked for a credit of $24.52 on her last year taxes.

Mrs. McKay said she had a small book in which she entered all payments, and her tax payment was included. She showed this to the Special Auditor, and he stated her case was a just one.

Mr. Babcock moved that balance of Mrs. McKay's taxes for 1907 be written off. Mr. Clark seconded the motion, which carried, as it was the opinion of the council that the taxes had been paid.

TRUE BILL FOR WIFE MURDER

Peterboro, April, 18.—The Spring Assizes opened here today, Mr. Justice Teetzel presiding, and Mr. E. Meredith, K.C., as Crown prosecutor The docket is very light, only one civil case, and one criminal, Hugh Deline, charged with the murder of his wife in the township of Belmont last autumn. He claimed to have found his wife dead in his home on his return from work. His contradictory stories led to the charge of murder. This afternoon, the Grand Jury returned a true bill and the trik; will proceed tomorrow.

SOLICITORS WILL BE INTERVIEWED

From Wednesday's Post.

At last night's meeting of the Finance Committee of the Council Mr. L. R. Knight appeared before the Council regarding arrears of taxes charged on east part of lot 20, south of Lindsay-st.

Mr. L. V. O'Connor appeared on behalf of W. E. Baker re claim for arrears of taxes on West part of lot 21, north of Wellington-st.,

Both gentlemen address the Council at some length pointing out that they had been assured by the late Clerk and Treasurer that there was nothing against the properties, for which a clear deed has been secured.

Before taking action the Council decided to get the advice of the town solicitor on the matter.

Improving the Woodville Cemetery

In last week's issue an unfortunate error occurred in the article referring to the Presbyterian cemetery funds, which we regret exceedingly. The article was sent in by an esteemed correspondent but the printer failed to correct the errors made in setting it in type, and it went into the paper uncorrected. We tender our apologies to the writer and those connected with the laudable work of improving "the city of the dead." It must indeed be a source of satisfaction to all to know that the appeal for funds has met with a hearty response, as the amounts asked for have been doubled in many instances.

WHAT CONSERVATIVES FEAR

Vancouver Province, (Con.): To stand any possibility of obtaining the Western support which he hopes for, and must have, Sir Wilfrid Laurier must defer dissolution until the redistribution measure, based on the census returns, has been enacted. As soon as that is done, he will be ready for a general election.

Windsor, Ont., Record: Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia, made the statement in Montreal that it would not be long before there was a general election and that it would be fought out on the question of reciprocity pact. What alarms the Conservatives is that reciprocity may come into force in time to give the people an opportunity to see its advantages.

NEWSPAPER SACRIFICE

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review.)

Every reputable newspaper in Canada sacrifices large sums of money every year in the pursuit of its editorial policy, or by refusing business propositions which its holds not to be in the interests of its readers. The newspaper which adopts in the interests of the public a policy to govern its editorial and business columns must expect to pay the price in loss of revenue. It should have a right to look to the public for at least a measure of appreciation and compensation.

ACQUIRE LAND ESTATES

Lord Dundonald is proposing that all the capital centres in Britain should acquire large estates in Canada and the other dominions for the relief of the unemployed problem. Lloyd George and Mr. Joseph Fels have shown a better way. The decreasing number of the unemployed in Britain indicates the success of their plan. The taxing of great estates in Britain into the market, will solve the problem without the necessity of cities and town going into the real estate markets of the colonies.

CHICAGO VICE COMMISSION

(Montreal Star)

The most important aspect of the report is its direction of the public mind to the fact that the social evil is the phase of the social problem in the broadest and deepest sense. The older attitude towards the social evil was the religious or moral attitude It is well we should understand that poverty is the prolific mother of vice. The inadequate wage not only starves the body. It denies the natural needs of human beings for common, comforts, for decency, for food, raiment, warmth, social intercourse, It denies the instinct of happiness. It breaks down the will and throws every temptation into the path of the young.

CURIOUS LOGIC

Montreal Gazette.

Because the Ontario Legislature imposed a tax on bar receipts the Toronto hotelmen have resolved to increase the rates for rooms by from fifty cents to a dollar a day. It is an accepted economical doctrine that whoever may first pay a tax, the burden, with additions, falls ultimately on the man who uses the taxed article or service. There are variations in the process of course, and few can be more curious than this Ontario one, which is to make the man who uses a hotel sleeping room pay for what is consumed by the man who inhabits the bar room.

FIGURES THAT TELL

The final count in the post-card voting on the reciprocity pact carried on by the Canadian Farm of Toronto was as herewith shown:

	In favor.	Agst.	Maj.
Ontario	662	514	148
Quebec	32	14	18
New Brunswick	148	96	52
Nova Scotia	132	52	80
Prince Edward	56	2	54
Manitoba	122	28	94
Saskatchewan	194	36	158
Alberta	192	34	158
British Columbia	26	54	28
Address unknown.	24	10	14
	1,588	840	748

It is only a straw but it shows how the wind is blowing in the country districts. Every test which has been made of rural opinion has shown a substantial preponderance in favor of reciprocity.

FOOLING THE FARMERS

The arguments being made in Canada against the effectuation of the reciprocity agreement bear a striking resemblance to those used on this side of the border. The fruit and vegetables and dairy men of Ontario are being told that they will be overwhelmed by American competition. It appears that the Canadian, having freight to pay, can sell in the United States for less than the American and that the American, likewise having freight to pay, can sell cheaper in Canada than the Canadian.

This sort of thing passes for argument among the spokesmen for the agricultural interest in both countries. The rule of logic that teaches when two propositions are contradictory both cannot be true is solemnly ignored. Yet there is difficulty about the business. Common sense and hard headedness distinguish the farmer and the American farmer is put on inquiry when he learns what is being preached to the Canadian farmer and the Canadian farmer is put on inquiry when he learns what is being preached to the American farmer. The opponents of reciprocity should make arrangements for an embargo on information between Canada and the United States.—Tribune, Terre Haute, Ind.

ANOTHER PLAN

Watertown Times.

Lockport, N.Y., has a plan for city government, which, it claims is an improvement on the commission of treating a city as a corporation system. It is based on the principle system. The stockholders, (the people) elect a board of five directors (city council.) These directors who are not expected to give their whole time to the city, get no pay. They are vested with complete legislative power, but have nothing to do with administration, except that they elect the general manager —the city manager, as he is called. The manager need not be a citizen of the town. He may hail from any where in the country. He is to receive a large salary, he appoints every city officer; he has full power and responsibility, but he may be removed by the council at any old time.

Lockport, as an exchange puts it, believes this is the way to get absolutely competent service in running its affairs. It goes on the theory—plenty of evidence to support it, they say,—that the comparatively small salaries paid under commission government will not attract trained ability, but that the best citizens will serve for the honor of the thing, when entirely relieved of administrative detail and asked only to meet occasionally for legislative purposes.

FUTURE OF PEAT

The Canadian Peat Society has a very influential membership says the Montreal Witness, and at its first annual meeting in Ottawa last week there was a large and representative gathering from all parts of the Dominion. It was shown at the meeting, that, in some localities, more and more householders are using peat fuel, and that at last, after generations of melancholy failure, it is being manufactured, by modern methods, in such a manner, that it can be used with ease and economy. Sir. Rich. Scott referred to efforts he made thirty years ago to interest the government in the utilization of the peat bogs of Canada, but such efforts failed owing to the primitive methods then in vogue in the attempts to manufacture peat fuel. The history of that enterprise was paralleled by that of many others. Now, however, the government has a peat fuel testing plant, and a peat gas power plant in operation. The Canadian Peat Society was naturally much interested in this plant; and the superintendent among other things, explained to members, that with fuel costing two dollars for production at the bog, the tests made had shown that power from peat gas can be successfully produced at seven dollars and fifty cents per horse power for a ten hour day. The success of the first meeting of the society augurs well for its future, and the peat areas of Canada are so vast, that those who can bring peat economically into general use for fuel will deserve well of their country. We note, with regret however, that the meeting considered the question of approaching the government to ask for a bounty on the production of peat fuel, and that it was referred to the society's own board of directors for investigation and such action as might appear to be best for the interests of the industry. The government seems to be doing a government's part with economic experiments. It will prove nothing for the industry that it should succeed out of government money, but that a new burden has been laid upon the people. We should be surprised if a bounty was granted on peat, anyway, as in a little more than two years, all the present bounties will expire, and the government as well as the people will probably be heartily glad to get rid of them, as it has notoriously been sick of them for a long while.

WILD LEAP OF AN AUTOMOBILE

London, April 17.—Rushing past the winding post at a nintey-mile-an-hour clip a racing automobile at the Brookland track this evening took the bit in its teeth and instead of slowing down and swerving to the left, as it should have done, dashed up the steep banking of the course, took a prodigious leap in the air to disappear beyond the boundaries. Hurrying to the spot the race track officials found the car, after clearing a chasm thirty or forty feet wide, had plunged like a connon shot in a thicket of trees cutting a wide swath and tearing branches from the trunks to a height of thirty feet, and had then plunged to the earth several feet beyond. The driver of the car, Wilkinson, was found unconscious and bleeding among the underbrush. His condition was extremely critical.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY

A Pointer to House Keepers

Look at the financial side of Zam-Buk's use. A cut sustained in the home, the store, or the workshop, a sore which is unattended, results say in festering or blood poisoning. You have to lay off for a day or two. and what does that mean when pay day comes around? Zam-Buk insures you against that loss. A little Zam-Buk applied to such an injury prevents all danger of blood-poisoning, takes out the smarting and heals.

Heads of Families know how costly doctoring is. Be wise and act on the preventive line. A box of Zam-Buk in the home is so all-round useful. The baby's rashes the older children's cut and bruises, the inevitable burn, cut or scald—for all these, as well as for more serious ailments, such as piles, ulcers, eczema, ringworm, etc., Zam-Buk is without a rival.

Dangers of Shaving—You get a cut at the barber's shop. A little Zam-Buk on the wound prevents all danger. If any ailment has been contracted, Zam-Buk cures. Mr. George Hobden, 108 Manitoba street, St. Thomas Ont., says: "I contracted barber's rash, and the whole of my left cheek broke out in one mass of red, watery pimples and sores. These spread to the other parts of my face until face and neck were covered with running sores. How far the disease would have spread had it not been for Zam-Buk I don't know. I applied this balm and in a short time Zam-Buk effected a complete cure."

Zam-Buk Soap is as good as the balm, but in a different way. Washed in Zam-Buk Soap the skin is disinfected and disease germs lying upon it are killed. Mothers will find it unequalled for baby's bath.

PROTECTED CHILDHOOD

A protected childhood has always been felt by every community to be the chief essential of normal development and progress, remarks the St. John Telegraph. How to secure that has always been a problem. The failure of parents in ability to care for their offspring, the cruelty and maltreatment by natural guardians, has given rise to many social institutions for the protection of childhood. These have developed alongside the family, which is, of course, the fundamental institution for the protection of childhood, and to-day we have the foster home, the orphan asylum and the humane society supplementing the home.

Toronto has made a new departure in the method of caring for children who, under former methods, would be placed in some institution. Children in families where the surrounding might be expected to be evil or degrading, or in families where they are so numerous that parents cannot earn enough to support them they are taken and placed in homes willing to receive them. The law gives them legally into the charge of those who extend this friendly help. The result is a benefit in every way, a benefit to the child who is saved from hunger and feebleness and pauperism in its parents' home, and from being institutionalized by public or private charity, and a benefit to the new home, which is thus brightened by the presence of children. There seems to be no particular reason why this course could not be followed anywhere. There are in every community families which would be glad to receive children in this way, and families who on account of necessity, would be glad to dispose of some of their children, under the assurance of such superior advantages for them.

Nothing can take fully the place of the home in the training of the child. It holds a distinct and unique place among social institutions and there can be no substitute for it. It has its origin in the simple, direct, and primitive attraction of men and women for each other, and in the vague parental instinct which yearns for the presence of children, and which protects and nourishes them when they come into life. There are hundreds of families who crave children to protect and nourish, and who would extend this nourishment and protection to children who become theirs by process of law.

Every child has a right to a protected childhood. In a great number of cases that is not given, and this is the fruitful cause of vice, crimes and pauperism. Sickness and feebleness, or drunkenness and immorality reduce a family to poverty and beggary, The children are driven forth to beg or they grow up in an atmosphere of bad example and foul, moral odors. These children, in turn, rear families under similar conditions, so we have an endless reciprocity do- has in the product in the scale of citizenship and moral fibre. In savage times parents who could not supply their offspring killed them or sold them as slaves. Modern morality will not permit this, but it permits irresponsible parents to retain the care of children, when it is practically impossible that these should ever break through the vicious circle of inefficiency. Enlightened public opinion will agree that the Toronto plan is better than any other in sight to secure a protected childhood.

FOUR MOUNTED POLICE PERISH

Halifax, April, 17.—A despatch was received this evening by Mrs. John Fitzgerald, of this city, conveying the sad news of the death of her son, Frank, who was Inspector, of the Northwest Mounted Police. The despatch was from A. B. Perry, Commissioner for the Mounted Police at Regina. Commissioner Perry states that Inspector Fitzgerald's death occurred last January, near Fort McPherson, while making a patrol to Dawson, and that three other members of the party met death at the same time. The Commissioner says that he will forward details when received, and the he extends his sincere sympathy, the force having lost one of its most valued officers.

Inspector Fitzgerald had been with the Northwest Mounted Police for nineteen or twenty years and made a splendid name for himself. He was the first man to make his way to Dawson over the trail, on which he met his death. The rank of Inspector is equivalent to that of Major in the army.

HON. MR. GRAHAM IS BEREAVED

Brockville, April 17.—The home of the Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways, was thrown into deep sorrow this morning by the death of his second son, Perry M. Graham, from an acute attack of jaundice. The young man, who, was twenty-four years of age, has been on the staff of the Brockville Evening Recorder during the past eight years, and this winter was the paper's Parliamentary correspondent in the Press Gallery at Ottawa. About ten days ago he was taken ill, and came home to Brockville. The disease took a serious turn, on Saturday and his father was summoned from Ottawa. The young man was removed to the hospital last evening, after having been unconscious all day, and expired early this morning. He is survived by his father and mother, and one brother, Wm. N. Graham, of Ottawa.

All Brockville feels the bereavement keenly, as Mr. Perry Graham was one of the best known and best liked young men in the town. He was unmarried. He was an ardent devotee of sport, and figured prominently in amateur hockey, football, and base ball. He leaves a wide circle of friends in the journalistic profession, as well as his many friends in Brockville who feel a personal loss in his unexpected death.

The Red Year

STORY OF THE INDIAN MUTINY

BY LOUIS TRACY

"Speak, sug," he said. "What of Fattehpore and Allahabad, and be sure thou hast spent thy last hour if thou liest."

"Sahib, God knoweth that I can tell thee naught of Allahabad, but the budmashes at Fattehpore have risen, and Tucker-sahib is dead. They killed him, I have heard, after a fight on the roof of the cutcherry."

Malcolm guessed rightly that Mr. Tucker was the judge at that station, but he must not betray ignorance.

"And the others—they who fled? What of them?" he said, knowing that the scenes enacted elsewhere must have had their counterpart at Fattehpore.

"Wow!" The kneeling man flinched as the sword pricked him again. "There are two mems in a house near the ghat. They alone remain of those who crossed. And I saved them, sahib. I swear it, by the Kaaba, I saved them."

"They are young, doubtless, and good-looking?"

A new fear shone in the Mohammedan's eyes, and he did not answer. Frank's gorge rose with a deadly disgust, and it is hard to say that his sword would not have gone home in another instant had not Chumru interfered:

"Kill him not yet, sahib. He may be useful. Bind him and the other slave back to back. Then I shall help you to truss them properly."

Chumru soon showed that he meant business. When he was free to replace the pistol in the holster, which he did all the more readily since he had never used a fire-arm in his life, he gagged master and man with skill, tied them to a tree, and then unfolded the plan which the ekka-driver's story had suggested.

The fever of rebellion had spread along the whole of the left bank of the Ganges as far as Allahabad. A party of fugitives from Fattehpore who had taken to a boat were pursued, captured and slain. Two girls who had managed to cross the river unseen were now lodged in a go-down, or warehouse, belonging to the very man whom chance had made Malcolm's prisoner. He was keeping them to curry favor with a local rajah who headed the outbreak at Fattehpore. It was true that there were no boats left on this side of the river: they were all on the opposite bank, being loaded with loot, and the two Englishwomen were merely awaiting the return of the zemindar's budgerow to be sent to a fate worse than death.

Chumru, a Mohammedan himself, was not greatly concerned about the misfortunes of a couple of women, but he saw plainly that Malcolm could no more hope to escape under the present conditions than the poor creatures whose whereabouts had just become known. This was precisely the blend of intrigue and adventure that appealed to his alert intelligence. In wriggling through a mesh of difficulties he was lithe as a snake, and the proposal he now made was certainly bold enough to commend itself to the most daring.

He drew Malcolm and the trembling ryot apart.

"Listen, friend," said he to the latter. "Thou art, indeed, lost if that fat hog sees thee again. He will harry thee and thy wife and all thy family to death for having helped us, and it will be in vain to protest that thou hadst no mind in the matter, for behold, thou didst not lift a finger when I threatened him with the pistol."

"Protector of the poor, what was one to do?" whined the ryot.

"I am not thy protector. 'Tis the sahib here to whom thou must look for counsel. Attend, now, and I will show thee a road to safety and riches. Art thou known to either of those men?"

"I have not seen them before, for I come this way but seldom."

"'Tis well. The sahib shall sit in the ekka, with the curtains drawn, while I give it out that I go with my wife to take the miss-sahibs across the river, for which purpose the worthy zemindar will presently hand us a written order, as he hath ink, paper, and pen in the ekka. Thou shalt be driver and come with us on the boat, and when we are in mid-stream, and the sahib appears at my signal, see that thou hast a cudgel handy if it be needed. Then, when we reach Allahabad, God willing, the sahib will give thee many rupees and none will be the wiser. What say'st thou?"

"I am a poor man—"

"Ay, keep to that. 'Tis ever a safe answer. Do you like my notion, sahib? Otherwise, we must take our chance and wander in the jungle."

The fact that Chumru's scheme included the rescue of the unhappy girls imprisoned in the go-down caused Malcolm to approve it without reserve. The zemindar's gag was removed and he was asked his name.

"Hossein Beg," said he.

"Be assured, then," said Malcolm, sternly, "that thy life depends on the fulfilment of the instructions I now require of thee. See to it, therefore, that they are written in such wise as to insure success, and I, for my part, promise to send thee succor ere night falls. Write on this tablet that the miss-sahibs are to be delivered to the charge of Rissaldar Ali Khan and his wife, for conveyance to Fattehpore, and bid thy servants help the rissaldar in every possible way. Believe me, if aught miscarries in this matter, thou shalt rot to death in thy bonds."

"Let my servant go with your honor, so that all things may be done according to your honor's wishes."

"What then? Wouldst thou juggle with the favor I have shown thee?"

This time the sword impinged on the Adam's apple in Hossein Beg's throat, and he shrank as far as his bonds would permit.

"Say not so, Khudawand," he gurgled. "I swear by my father's bones I meant no ill."

"Mayhap. Nevertheless, I shall take care thy intent is honest, Hossein Beg. Write now and pay heed to thy words, else jackals shall rend thee ere tomorrow's dawn."

By this time the man was reduced to a state of abject submission. Possibly his offer of the ekka-wallah's services was made in good faith, but Malcolm liked the looks of the man as little as he liked the looks of his master, and he preferred to trust Chumru's nimble wits rather than the stupid contriving of a peasant, no matter how willing the latter might be.

The zemindar, having written, was gagged again, and the pair were left to that torture of silence and doubt they had not scrupled to inflict on those who had done them no wrong. They were tied to a tree-trunk in the heart of a clump, and a hundred men might pass in that lonely place without discovering them, whereas Hossein Beg and his subordinate could see easily enough through the leafy screen that enveloped their open-air prison.

Half an hour later, Hossein Beg's ekka arrived on the open space that adjoined the village ghat. At one end was a mosque—at the other a temple. In the centre, at a little distance from the bank, was a square modern building, evidently the warehouse in which the English ladies were pent.

With the ekka came a rissaldar of cavalry, riding one horse and leading two others. When he dismounted a scabbard clattered at his heels, for Malcolm now had the pistols between his knees as he sat behind the tightly drawn curtains of the vehicle.

"Mohammed Rasul!" shouted the rissaldar, loudly. "Where is Mohammed Rasul? I must discourse with him instantly."

A man came running.

"Ohe, sirdar," he cried. "Behold, I come!"

A note was thrust into the runner's hands.

"Read, and quickly,' was the imperious order. "I have affairs at Fattehpore and cannot wait here long. Is there a boat to be hired?"

"A budgerow is even now approaching, leader of the faithful."

"Good. There is some disposition to be made of two Feringhi women. Read that which Hossein Beg hath written, and make haste, I pray thee, brother."

Perhaps Mohammed Rasul wondered why his employer wrote in such imploring strain that he was to obey the worshipful "Ali Khan's" slightest word, and bestow him and his belongings, together with the two prisoners, on board a boat for Fattehpore with the utmost speed. However that may be, he lost no time. The budgerow was warped close to the ghat, her contents, mostly European furniture, as Malcolm could see through a fold in the curtain, were promptly unloaded, and preparations made for the return journey. First the horses were led on board and secured. Then two pallid girls, only half clothed, their eyes red with weeping and their cheeks haggard with misery, were led from the go-down.

"Ali Khan" was about to guide the ekka along the rough gangway when Mohammed Rasul interfered.

"My master says naught concerning the ekka and pony," said he. "He hath detained Copi, and this driver is unknown to me. Who will bring them back when they have served your needs, sirdar?"

"I will attend to that," replied Chumru, gruffly, and Hossein Beg's factotum had perforce to be content with the undertaking.

But fate, which had certainly favored Malcolm and his native comrade thus far, played them what looked like a jade's trick at the very moment when success was within their grasp. The ekka pony, frightened by the lap of the swift-flowing water against the steps beneath, shied, backed, and strove to reach the shore. Not all Chumru's wiry strength, aided by the alarmed ryot, could prevent the brute from turning. A wheel slipped off the staging, the narrow vehicle toppled over, and the amazed spectators saw a booted and spurred British officer of cavalry sprawling on the ghat instead of the veiled Mohammedan woman who ought to have made her appearance in this undignified manner.

Malcolm was on his feet in a second.

"Come on, Chumru!' he cried, as he leaped on board the budgerow. He saw one of the crew take an extra turn of a rope round a cat-head, and fired at him. Hit or miss, the fellow tumbled overboard, and his mates followed. Chumru, assisted by the ryot, who elected at this twelfth hour to throw in his lot with that of the sahib, began to cast off the cables. Even the two dazed girls helped, once they knew that an Englishman was fighting in their behalf.

To add to the excitement on shore, Malcolm fired the second pistol at the men nearest the boat, which was already beginning to slip away with the current. Then he rushed to the helm, unlashed it, and turned the boat's head toward the channel, while Chumru and the ryot, helped by the girls, hauled at the heavy mat sail.

Having lashed the helm again in order to keep the budgerow on the starboard tack, Malcolm was about to lend a hand, despite his wound, when a spurt of firing from the bank took him by surprise, because he had seen neither gun nor pistol in the hands of the loungers on the ghat, and the coolies were certainly unarmed.

Glancing back he saw a man whom he had last seen in the moulvie's company at Rai Bareilly gesticulating fiercely as he directed the target practice of a number of men. A group of lathered horses behind them showed that they had ridden far and fast, so the accident, which nearly led to his undoing, had really helped to save him and his companions, else the fusillade to which they were now subjected must have taken place while the boat was still tied to the wharf.

"Lie flat on the deck," he shouted in English, and repeated the words in Hindustani. He flung himself down by Chumru's side.

"Haul away!" he gasped. "We will soon be out of range."

Thus while the cumbrous sail creaked and groaned as it slowly climbed the mast, and bullets cut through the matting or were imbedded in the stout woodwork, the latest argosy of Malcolm's fortunes thrust herself with ever-increasing speed into the ample breast of Mother Ganga. Soon the firing ceased. Malcolm raised his head. The excited mob on the shore was already a horde of Lilliputians, and the placid swish of the river around the roomy craft told him that he was actually free, and on the way to Allahabad once more.

CHAPTER XII.

The Swing of the Pendulum

Malcolm's first measured thought was an unpleasant one. It was his intent to land one of the budgerow's crew at the earliest opportunity with a written message, which the bearer would probably be unable to read, addressed to Mohammed Rasul, bidding him go to the assistance of the unlucky Hossein Beg. That plan was now impracticable. The crew had bolted. He could neither send the ryot ashore nor trust to the help of any neighboring village, since men were already galloping along the left bank with obviously hostile designs.

As there was a favorable breeze and the current was swift and strong, he wondered why these pursuers strove to keep the boat in sight. Then it was borne in on him that they had a definite object. Could it be possible that they knew of the presence of other craft, lower down the river?—that he might be called on within the hour to make a last stand against irresistible odds on the deck of the budgerow? Rather than meet certain death in that way he would head boldly for the opposite shore, and trust again to his tired horses for escape to the jungle and the night. Yet, some plan must be devised to keep faith with that wretched zemindar. The man would not die if left where he was for another forty-eight hours, or even longer. But the word of a sahib was a sacred thing. Whatever the difficulty of communicating with Mohammed Rasul, he must overcome it somehow.

In his perplexity, his eyes fell on the two girls. Being ladies from Fyzabad, they might be able to help him with some knowledge of the locality. Summoning Chumru to take the helm he went forward and spoke to them.

Now it is an enduring fact that a woman's regard for her personal appearance will engross her mind when graver topics might well be to the fore. No sooner did these sorrow-laden daughters of Eve realize that they were in a position of comparative safety, and in the company of a good-looking young man of their own race, than they attempted to effect some change in their toilette. A handkerchief dipped in the river, a few twists and coilings of refractory hair, a slight readjustment of disordered bodices and crumpled skirts—above all, the gleam of the magic lamp of hope that illumined an abyss of despair—and the amazing result was that Malcolm found two pretty, shy, tremulous maidens awaiting him, instead of the disheveled, woe-begone women he had seen pushed down the steps of the ghat.

He introduced himself with the well-mannered courtesy of the period, and in response the elder of the pair raised her blue eyes to his and told him that since the 16th of June until the previous day they had been hiding in the hut of a native woman, mother of their ayah.

"My dear father was killed by Mr. Tucker's side," said she. "He was the deputy commissioner of Fattehpore. Keene is our name—I am Harriet, this is my sister Grace. We only came out from England last cold weather—"

A sudden recollection brought a cry of surprise from Frank.

"Why," he said, "you were fellow-passengers on the Assaye with Miss Winifred Mayne?'

"Yes, do you know her? What has become of her? We were told that everyone at Meerut was killed."

"Thank Heaven, she was alive and well when I last saw her three days ago."

"And her uncle? Is he living? She was very much attached to him. How did she escape from Meerut?" broke in Grace, eagerly.

"I wish they had never left Meerut. The Mutiny at that station collapsed in a couple of hours. Unfortunately, they are now both penned up in the Residency at Lucknow, which is surrounded by goodness only knows how many thousands of rebels. But I must give you Winifred's recent history at another time. I want you to tell me something about this neighborhood. What is the nearest town on the river, and which bank is it on?"

"Unfortunately, our acquaintance with this part of India is very slight."

It's a Libel on The Men

Some self-accredited "student of human nature" recently stated that men were bad buyers when it came to purchasing articles for personal use.

We don't believe it. Our experience has been that men as a rule, are shrewd buyers, and point to the steadily increasing demand for "PROGRESS BRAND" CLOTHING as proof of our side of the argument.

Men recognize the kind of quality they always get in a "PROGRESS BRAND" Suit or Overcoat.

They know that the "PROGRESS BRAND" Label (shown above) stands for guaranteed value. And they look for this trademark in every garment they buy.

If you want to know more about these reliable clothes, ask to see the new spring styles in "PROGRESS BRAND" Suits and Overcoats.

Peerless Wire Fencing

"THE BEST FENCE AND THE GREATEST VALUE"

Why Pay Two Prices For Your Fencing ?

Wise buying of anything consists of getting the best possible value for your money. Peerless Fencing is heavier, stiffer and stronger, made of higher grade wire, of larger gauge. 10 to 15 per cent on cost could be saved by using a little under sized wire, and it would be scarcely noticed. In buying Peerless you get a high grade fence. Hundreds of miles of Peerless Fence are in use by our Canadian Railways. Over 500 Peerless Gates were sold to the G.T.R. last year. Compare the following prices with what you have been paying, and then call at Canadian Swensons Office, Phone 208, or write us at Box 174, Lindsay, for the wire you expect to use this summer. Inolculate Your Alfalfa

The high feeding value of Alfalfa and its importance to the Ontario farmer as a cheap and nutritious roughage for all the classes of farm stock, is evidenced by its rapidly increasing acreage. a few hints regarding its cultivation may be seasonable.

Sow pure seed at the rate of 20 lb per acre on clean well drained land This will give the best result but Alfalfa will grow on poor land provided it is not too weedy and is well drained.

Undrained land, prevalence of weeds especially native grasses, close pasturing and the lack of the proper kind of bacteria are some of the most common causes of failure in alfalfa growing.

Bear in mind that alfalfa is a crop which men once established will last for a number of years yielding two or three cuttings each year, consequently the cost of seeding is not so high as it would appear at first thought.

Experiments all over the Province, have shown that the catch of alfalfa is generally benefited by innoculation or treatment of seed with a culture containing the bacteria found on the roots of Alfalfa, This culture can be obtained from the Department of Bacteriology of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, or by applying to D. A. MacKenzie, the local representative, for the small sum of twenty-five cents per bottle. Each bottle contains sufficient to treat one bushel of seed. The treatment may not be necessary in every case but it insures a liberal supply of the proper bacteria when the plant is becaming established.

The young lady officers of the Salvation Army in Fenelon Falls held the meeting here on Easter Sunday, our captain having gone to the Falls to attend the meetings there.

There was a good turnout Sunday night and they all seemed well pleased with the lady officers and I am sure they all join in wishing they will soon find time to come again, when they will be welcomed by all.

SERVICES OF AN ENGINEER

From Wednesday's Post.

At last night's meeting of the Board of Works Committee of the Council Town Clerk Ray notified the members that Engineer Smith, of the firm of Smith & Smith, Engineers and Land Surveyors, had written the Council offering his services during a portion of the year in connection with civic undertakings.

Mr. Naylor felt that the Council should secure the services of such an official, and instanced the crooked manner in which some of the sewers were laid as proof of his contention.

The Council felt, however, that the question could not be considered at present. It was accordingly held over

CURED OF CONSTIPATON

Mr. Andrews praises Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Mr. George Andrews of Halifax, N.S., writes:

"For many years I have been troubled with chronic Constipation. This ailment never comes single-handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train. Medicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. It seemed that nothing would expel from me the one ailment that caused so much trouble, yet at last I read about these Indian Root Pills.

That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed with the statements made that I determined to give them a fair trial.

They have regulated my stomach and bowels. I am cured of constipation, and I claim they have no equal as a medicine."

For over half a century Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have been curing constipation and clogged, inactive kidneys, with all the ailments which result from them. They cleanse the whole system and purify the blood. Sold everywhere at 25c. a box. 2

DOUBLE FUNERAL WAS A LARGE ONE

Mr. Wm. Thornbury was in Hartley yesterday attending the double funeral of John and Donald McFadyen, sons of Ronald McFadyen, of Hartley.

The funeral, which was the largest ever held in the district, took place to Centre Eldon cemetery under L.O.L. auspices.

The circumstances surrounding the death of the young men are particularly sad. On Good Friday when Mr. Ronald McFadyen returned from Calgary, with the remains of his son John he found that a younger son, Donald, was in a critical condition.

Mr. McFadyen left home some days ago, having heard of his son's serious illness in the general hospital, Calgary, Alta., and left Donald in good health. During his absence Donald contracted a serious attack of the mumps and died the same evening, that his father arrived from Calgary.

Two brothers, Ronald in British Columbia and Lorne attending the Collegiate in Lindsay, are left with one sister, Margaret at home, to mourn the loss of two loving brothers.

A Good Medicine For the Spring

Do not Use Harsh Purgatives-- A Tonic Is All You Need

Not exactly sick—but not feeling quite well. That's the way most people feel in the spring. Easily tired appetite fickle, sometimes headaches, and a feeling of depression. Pimples or eruptions may appear on the skin or there may be twinges of rheumatism or neuralgia. Any of these indicate that the blood is out of order; that the indoor life of winter has left its mark upon you and may easily develop into more serious trouble.

Dont dose yourself with pergatives as so many people do in the hope you can put your blood right. Purgatives gallop through the system and weaken instead of giving strength. Any doctor will tell you that this is true. What you need in the spring is a tonic that will make new blood and build up the nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the only medicine that can do is the only medicine that can do this speedily and surely. Every dose of this medicine helps to make new blood which clears the skin, strengthens the appetite and makes tired men women and children bright and active and strong. Mr. B. Martin Deuff Rivieres, Que. says,; About a year ago I was all run down. I was pale weak and had but little appetite I also suffered from a severe pain in the back and although I tried several medicines nothing helped me until I began to use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and these soon fully restored me my health. I can strongly reccommend these pills to every weak person.

Sold only by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for 2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville Ont.

ECHO OF THE BANK SMASH

Review: Tales of intense dissatisfaction reach here from the northern part of the county of Peterboro, especially in the direction of Galway, the most northern in the west riding. The capital of this township is Kinmount, at the polar end of the Bobcaygeon road. Here until recently was established a branch of the far-famed Farmers Bank. It is rumored that on the eve of the explosion of which so any people lost their livlihood, a very well known resident or Gallway had a dream, which some say was prompted by a friend's advice. At any rate, whether he had a dream or not, he took the overland route to Kinmount with all speed, and got his money out in time. Some of his neighbors were not so fortunate, and awoke to find the savings of years had vanished in smoke.

Cousin of Lindsay Man Writes of Mexico
Places of Interest In Great Republic

Mr. Ed. Sedentopf, of the Post staff, whose cousin, Mr. Edward Brader, is at present in Mexico, has received the following concerning the great Republic :—

"We got on board a freight-passenger steamer going to several Mexican ports for freight. Our first stop was at Coatzacoalcos at the mouth of a Mexican river of the same name. The town is small and dirty, and would be dirtier still were it not for the hundreds of vultures that wade through the dusty alleys and streets at their scavenger duties. These vultures are a small species, not much larger than the Cuban turkey buzzrads. They walk along the streets, fly into backyards, fraternize with disreputable chickens and do the general and only scavenger work of the town. Like the dogs in the streets of Constantinople which do the scavengering of that city, these vultures are protected by law, and a fine of 100 pesos $50, is the penalty for killing one of them. The town, known as Puerto Mexico, does a large export trade in coal oil and many of the fine native woods, such as rosewood, mahogany, lignum vitae etc., but the ground is very low and swampy near by and millions of mosquitoes make life miserable to any one who is not thick-skinned or coated with tar. Puerto Mexico is never really free from yellow fever — now known to be a mosquito conveyed disease. As in all these warm countries, lizards (most of them very harmless) are to be seen everywhere. One large kind, the iguana is said to make fine, tender, chicken-like eating. I was lucky enough to see one, about three feet long, basking in the sun on some rocks, but he got away before I could catch him, so I cannot speak from experience of his chicken-like quality.

VERA CRUZ

Vera Cruz, our next port, possesses the finest harbor on the Gulf of Mexico. From being a city of filth and dirt ten years ago to a remarkably clean, well-built busy and thriving city of about 40,000 inhabitants. Craft from all parts of the world are anchored in its spacious harbors. The flocks of vultures that formerly thronged the streets and alleys have been starved out by the city's cleanliness, and now only a disconsolate one here and there, is to be seen. A case o yellow fever is very rare; and since the new supply of water has been brought from the mountains there have been no cases of typhoid fever. The former name of the place was The City of the True Cross, now shortened to Vera Cruz (true cross). While, of course, the shops contain about everything that can be bought in a modern city anywhere, every alternate shop, it seemed to me, was for the sale of Panama hats and Mexican cigars. The price of real panamas ranged from $3 to $300, according to the price of bar silver. At the present time a Canadian dollar is worth just two Mexican dollars. Hence it seemed rather peculiar to me when I handed over an American quarter to pay for a one-cent box of matches and got back 40 cents in change. Vera Cruz is very hot, even in winter, but it is also a very pleasant place for a short stay.

THE START FOR MEXICO CITY.

We left the boat at Vera Cruz and went by train to Mexico City, the capital of the now distressful country. Of course, the seat of the active insurrection is many miles north of Mexico City, but there is unrest and smoldering insurrection everywhere. Having brushed up my Spanish before I left home I had a better opportunity than some of learning the feeling of disquiet and rebellion that is rampant every where in Mexico. From Vera Cruz to Mexico is only 252 miles as the crow flies; but in crossing the Cordillera range that lies between the two places, the track rises at the highest point nearly two miles. This steep grade and the winding courses among the mountains make the journey twelve to fourteen hours long. Twenty years ago before this road was built, the only communication between Mexico city and its sea-port, Vera Cruz, was by stage on the level portions and by pack-mules in the mountains. A firm of contractors agreed with the Mexican government for a certain sum to build and equip a railway from Mexico to Vera Cruz. Naturally the contractors began the work by getting all needed supplies which had to be imported, piled up at Vera Cruz and began? work at that end of the line intending to push their supplies to the front as the new tracks were laid. After a few miles of track were laid and the contractors had gone to a great expense in laying ties rails etc., they were informed that the contract called for the building of the road from Mexico city to Vera Cruz and not from Vera Cruz to Mexico City. However, as they had begun at the wrong end, contrary to the agreement they would be allowed to finish the road at one half the former contract price. What could they do? They built the road and built it well For forty.five miles through the mountains, along the sloping sides of the precipices through the wildest and most magnificient scenery, the narrow single track runs till it comes to the top of the rim that surrounds the plateau on which stands the city of Mexico, over 6,000 feet above the sea-level. The journey through the mountains is sufficiently "scarey" at any time but just now new terrors are added to it. We did not learn of it until afterwards, but the train that passed through just before we did was fired upon by a band of insurrectors and the sleeping cars riddled . No one was hurt. We were enabled however to account for the number of armed soldiers on our train, when we heard what happened to the previous train. As we sped on towards the city of Mexico we passed through miles and miles of maguey plantations with here and there mud villages—the homes of the poor who worked the plantations- and here and there a cluster of fine buildings — the home of hacienda of the owner of the plantations. Some of these owners are immensely rich, but all of the laborers, or peones are miserably poor. They are supposed to be paid wages by the planters but the wages are never in money, but in food and clothing and only enough of that to keep off starvation. 5The insurrectors are recruited from the more intelligent peones, as well as from the middle class between the very poor and rich.

THE MAGUEY PLANT

The maygue plant is a variety of so called century plant. The root-stock grows about three feet high, and from ten to twelve inches in diameter. Around this stock grows twenty to thirty thick tough leaves two to three feet long. When the plant is about seven years old it shows signs of preparing to blossom It is then tapped; that is, a pail-like hollow is scooped out of the top of the root-stock. This hollow fils with the juice of the plant. The juice is gathered twice a day for several weeks when the plant dies and a new one is put in its place. Each plant will yield about two barrels of juice worth two or three dollars per barrel. About 2,000 plante are put to the acre. This juice is called pulque (pool-kay) and is very refreshing and nutritious, if used before it is twenty-four hours old. It contains about as much nourishment as a mixture of half water and half sweet milk, and tastes not unlike fresh whey. After twenty hours it begins to ferment, and up to two weeks old is slightly intoxicating. When it gets older still, it develops an odor a few degrees ahead of the primest limberger, and gives a peon a drunk that will last him three days. It is against the Mexican law to sell pulque when more than a day old, but what difference does that make? So great is the demand in the city of Mexico for fresh pulque that one railway station alone delivers in the city every morning from fifty to sixty carloads of pulque.

OLD PYRAMIDS.

A few years ago the attention of the Mexican Government was called to a large number of hills, like immense haystacks from 50 to 500 feet high; scattered throughout the plain over which we were travelling; and one of these so called hills, close by the station at which we halted, has been uncovered and found to be a pyramid, nearly 200 feet high, in an excellent state of preservation. A large number of idols, and many pieces of pottery were found in a chamber in the pyramid. Who built these pyramids, which the winds and the dust of centuries have covered with a coating ten to twenty feet thick? No one knows. They are the remains of a forgotten civilization. It is hoped that when all the pyramids are uncovered much valuable information of the lost people will be learned.

NEARING THE CITY

All along the railroad at every station, the car windows were beseiged by swarming natives anxious to sell tortillas (a kind of corn pancake), bread, fruit, cakes, candy, flowers, carved caves, small clay models of the idols found in the aforesaid pyramids, the everywhere present pulque and as the auctioneers have it, other things too numerous to mention.

Just before we came to Mexico City we passed Fly Lake, a large shallow pond some five miles across. In the summer this pond is the abode of millions of flies—large, sluggish harmless and fat. Hundreds of men and boys make a living by netting the flies, drying them and pressing them into cakes. They are used to feed caged birds, and are mostly shipped to Germany. The Germans are very fond of collecting insects to feed their caged birds. I have seen for sale in Nuremburg pans full of whitish objects like shrivelled grains of wheat. They were the eggs of the wood-ant, and were bought to feed singing birds."

In another letter I will make reference to other points of interest, more especially of Mexico City."

HOUSE OF REFUGE SERVICE OF SONG

From Monday's Post.

Yesterday afternoon, the inmates of the House of Refuge were treated to a service of song by the members of St. Andrew's church choir. The service was made up entirely of Easter hymns, and the choir under the leadership of Mr. Peter Wilson, rendered three Easter anthems Mr. Alex Jackson read an appropriate passage of scripture, dealing with the resurrection and also made a few remarks on this timely theme. Mr. Hamilton officiated at the organ in his usual able manner. The old folks were well pleased and joined heartily in the hymns.

RUSHING C. P. R. NEAR BETHANY

The C.P.R. is busy shipping machinery trucks, etc. into Bethany and points south of the town. On Thursday an official of the C.P.R. was in the village and engaged nine men to unload a carload of dump cars and rails to be used in constructing the new railroad. Two or more carloads of supplies are expected next week, when the contractors will begin to build the camp and proceed with the work of construction.

WONDERFUL FREAK OF NATURE

Mr. James Davey, of Scugog, possesses a ewe that recently gave birth to twin lambs, one of which, however, was far from being a model of perfection of the meek little animal it represented It was perfection to its hind quarters, to which, however, were attached five legs, six feet and two tails. Its life was short of duration. It doubtless would have survived the multiplicity of legs and feet, but the tails to tell were too much for one so young. His little sister, however, survives and gives promise to become, at some day, a valuable sheep.

TRAMPS ARE MAKING SPRING VISITS AND MAKE THEMSELVES OFFENSIVE

Lindsay is again confronted with the tramp nuisance, and already complaints have reached the Post of the visits of "weary willies" to different homes, where they have become obnoxious and abusive.

Yesterday afternoon a well known north ward citizen called up the Post and narrated a case where a tramp called at his residence, and practically ordered his wife to give him a "hand out.' Of couse the lady became alarmed at the man's demeanor and after he had decamped, she telephoned to her husband.

Another house was visited in the north ward by a drunken loafer, who proceeded to run things to suit himself.

This morning another citizen had a story to tell of a "knight of the road," who not only wanted food, but also money. When the latter was refused him he commenced to curse and swear like an old "salt."

The authorities should show no mercy to the tramp element. They are with very few exceptions, whiskey soaked bums, and should be ordered out of town or given a term in Central Prison. The practice of giving them shelter over night should be discouraged. Some of them have very plausible stories to tell of "being out of work," or "of going to work on the railroad," but these should be taken with the usual allowance of salt. They are all booze fighters, and the money given them does not go for food but for drink. drink.

If an example was made of one or two of them it would tend to serve as a hint to others. to give Lindsay a wide birth. They should not be allowed to visit residences, frightening ladies and children by their isolent and insulting demands.

COL. SYLVESTER'S TIME EXTENDED

Lieut.-Col. Sylvester, whose term as Commander of the Forty-Fifth Regiment expired last year, will be officer in command for another year. The officers of the Regiment some time ago sent a requisition to the Militia Department asking that the Colonel be left in charge another year. This request has been acceded too, information to this effect having been received on Thursday.

Colonel Sylvester is immensely popular with the rank and file of the Regiment and the announcement that he will be commanding officer for another season will be hailed with delight.

When his term expires, it is understood Major W. Healey, next in command, will be gazetted. Lieut.-Col.

THAT ACCIDENT NEAR HASTINGS

Examiner—A broken rail was the cause of a small though very inconvenient accident on the G. T. R. about three miles east of Hastings this morning when a long freight was wending her way towards Belleville Three cars of grain were de-railed, but not badly smashed as far as can be learned. The Northern division auxiliary was despatched from Lindsay, and the cars were put on the track. Traffic was somewhat disabled this morning especially for the passenger trains. The Belleville train due here at 8.10 did not arrive until 9.40. The Port Hope Toronto train was one hour late owing to having to make connections with the main line trains. It was fortunate that the freight was not running very fast when the accident occurred, otherwise it might and probably would have been more serious. As it was not a person was hurt, and the damage to rolling stock was not very great.

NEW CHURCH FOR FENELON FALLS

Fenelon Falls Gazette : On Tuesday work was commenced on the site of the new Methodist church to be erected this summer. The building will be solid brick, 52x78 feet, and will cost in the neighborhood of $10,000. Mr. Tayles, of Barrie, who has designed and built about thirty-five churches, is the architect, and will superintend the construction, which is expected to be completed about October 1st. The foundation will be of stone. The Church will have a gallery and other modern improvements.

BANK MANAGER HAS DISAPPEARED

Guelph, Ont., April. 12.—William Duthie, manager of the Union Bank at Hillsboro, has disappeared under very peculiar circumstances. He left the village on April 4th and has not been heard of since. He left for Toronto on business and intended to return the following day. His wife is almost distracted and cannot account for his leaving home.

The bank inspector has examined the books and Duthie's accounts have been found correct. He was an active member in the English church, lived quietly and so far as the people know had no bad habits. Mr. Duthie was highly respected by all who knew him, and much sympathy is felt for his distracted wife and little children. Search parties of his friends have scoured the surrounding country, but to no purpose, as not a sign of him has been found.

A brother works in the same bank.

Cheese Factory Burned

CAVAN, APRIL, 12.—The Cavan cheese factory was totally destroyed by a disastrous fire which broke out last night at 11.30 o clock. The building and the contents were wiped out by the blaze and the loss will be about $8,000, which is fully covered by insurance. The circumstances point to the fire being the work of an incendiary. It is not likely that the factory will be re-built.

ALL DEPENDS ON THE OPPOSITION

Ottawa, Ont., April 12.—The renewed report that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, has abandoned his proposed trip to England in May to attend the Imperial Conference is no more well founded to-day than it was on Monday. The situation remains as it did then The Premier has booked a passage by the Virginian, which sails from Quebec on May 12 and if the business of Parliament shows any sign of being wound up within a reasonable time thereafter, he will cross the ocean; but if the reciprocity resolutions are still hanging fire he will not go to the conference, and the Conservative party will have to take the responsibility for the failure of Canada being represented at the conference by its Premier.

In view of the record of four years ago, when the Opposition openly pressed upon the Premier in the House of Commons that it was his duty to attend the Conference and an agreement was reached that the business of Parliament should be wound up, it is hardly conceivable that Mr. Borden would be a party to a policy which would prevent Sir Wilfrid going. An imperial conference without Sir Wilfrid would resemble a presentation of "Hamlet" with the Prince of Denmark omitted, and such a gap in the ranks of the Empire:s Premiers would be greatly resented by the people of Canada, and it is hard to imagine that the "Truly Loyal" Conservative party of Canada would allow itself to be placed in the position of preventing Laurier's presence there, especially in Coronation year.

"UP TO" THE OPPOSITION

However, the whole thing is in abeyance and nothing will be decided until after Easter recess. When the members get back next week, they will have felt the pulse of their constituents, and it will then be possible to guess how long the reciprocity talk will last. But one thing is certain, The reciprocity question must be got out of the way or Sir Wilfrid stays at home. If it is disposed of by the 10th of May and an agreement is made by which the rest of the House can be wound up by the first week in June, then he will go. It's up to the Coronation to decide.

EMPIRE DAY TO BE PERMAMENT

Ottawa, Ont., April 12.—The proclamation of June 3 as a public holiday, which will be gazetted this week, is understood to have been ordered at the personal request of the King, but there is no likelihood that it will have any effect upon the observance of Victoria Day, which is so dear to the people of Canada.

Any proposal to abandon the celebration on the twenty-fourth of May would create considerable antagonism It may be bad for business for two holidays to come so soon together but business will have to settle that for itself.

It is, of course, possible that the recognition of the King's birthday may be confined to official circles but time will have to prove that.

Coronation Day, June 22 will, of course, be a holiday for this year only.

Cobwebs in the Morning.

Cobwebs in the head on rising in the morning is the result of a Lazy Liver, one or two mornings in succession and sick headache follows.

Father Morrisey's Liver Pills will clear the Brain.

These Pills are a purely vegetable compound prepared with great care, and are without doubt the very best pills for general use, on the market. The greatest care has been given to selecting the ingredients, and being entirely vegetable, they act upon the liver and bowels in such a manner as not to disturb the other functions of the body as many pills do.

As a Liver Invigorator, Blood Purifier and General System Renovator, they are unequalled. Sick headache is invariably brought on by a sluggish liver, constipation or irregular bowels; these pills are a cure for sick headache in any form.

Pimples, eruptions and yellow skin are often caused by a lazy liver; one pill three times a week, will soon clear the complexion.—Price 25c. per box.

LITIGATION OVER EMILY CREEK WORK

Bobcaygeon Independent: There is much talk over the mix-up over the work and bridge over the Emily Creek on the fourteenth line of Emily. A grant of $2,900 was got from the Government, and Messrs. Tiers and John McMullen, on instructions from the Government, filled in the swamp on each side of the creek, the one side being 1,700 rods of filling. The Government were going to pay over the money for the filling, but asked the Emily Council to undertake the complet on of the bridge and then came the trouble. It seems the Council had other views regarding the expenditure of the money and there was a balk. The men who had done the filling by this time wanted their money and as Tiers and McMullen employed them, they naturally looked to them. Tiers and McMullen, on the other hand, had no intention of building swamp roads out of their own pockets, and the consequence is that the men have sued Tiers and McMullen. There will likely be some doings over the business, and Emily Township Council will hear what is thought about it.

AGED MISSION WORKER NEED NOT KEEP WIFE

Toronto Star: George Buskin, the sailor's missionary, appeared before Judge Denton in the County Judge's Criminal Court this morning, charged with non-support of his wife, Ellen Buskin.

Mrs. Buskin said she had been married previously in England and went to Kansas with her husband and he afterwards left her and wrote saying he had obtained a divorce. Later she met Mr. Buskin at a missionary depot on King street and was employed by him as a housekeeper at $5 a week and her support. About two years ago she married the accused. There were many disagreements, and finally he left her, saying he believed her former husband was still alive. She afterwards heard that her husband was dead.

Buskin promised to support her if she could prove this, but had not done so.

In cross examination Mrs Buskin denied that she had ever "banged the accused's head against the door," "blacked his eye," or chased him with a carving knife. She said she had never wanted to marry him but thought that "perhaps God had called her to do a little toward helping in the good work."

In answer to a question she said women had come to her and cried and told her bad things about him. She admitted that when Mr. Buskin came back and was living with his children on O'Hara avenue, she went up there and demanded money.

Asked if her marriage to Buskin had injured her in any way, she said: "Yes, I am a moral, physical and spiritual wreck to what I was before I knew him."

Mrs. Buskin said she was suffering from nervous breakdown and this was due to what had been said and done to her by accused.

His Honor ruled that the case did not come under the statute as any ill effects experienced by Mrs. Buskin were not due to the fact that she had not been supported properly but on her own showing, to what had been said and done to her and therefore dismissed the case. Mr. Buskin was not, therefore, given any opportunity to refute his wife's statements

BRIGHT FUTURE FOR HALIBURTON MINES AMERICAN CAPITALISTS ARE INTERESTED

The following correspondence appeared in the Toronto World:

"Interest in the Ontario mineral fields is just now centred in Porcupine and Cobalt, but it is expected renewed operations in Haliburton and Peterboro counties, where rich iron graphite and mica deposits are known to exist, will do much to bring this section of the Province well before the public in the near future.

"It is not generally known that extensive development operations are in progress in this section at the present time. It is estimated that over $100,000 has been expended in the village of Wilberforce alone. At this point a graphite mill, which will treat about one hundred tons a day, has been erected by the Virginia Graphite Co., of New York, and sufficient power has been assured to enable the company to increase the capacity at a later date.

Considerable activity will be witnessed this spring on properties in the vicinity of Wilberforce. The English Land Company are opening up a molybdenite mine about two miles away, and the extensive plant recently installed would indicate that they intend getting after the ore in earnest. The North American Exploration and Development Company, of Toronto, have taken on large interests, and have grouped their properties so as to cut down the cost of mining. They have taken over claims with excellent showing of mica, graphite and magnetic iron, all of which will be agressively worked. Dwyer and Elliott have a gang of men working on their magnetic iron ore properties, having two shafts down 25 feet. They have trenched and sunk pits at intervals over an area of 250 wide and 1800 feet long and have traced the iron ore for a distance of over a mile on their 300 acres.

The district is also an excellent prospect as a gold mining proposition. Findley and Anderson have a large quartz vein on their claims and it is stated that assays of $40 to the ton gold have been obtained. They will recommence work this summer.

This section of the Province has received little publicity, but should the present plans be carried out, it is likely the results will do much to awaken interest in the rich mineral products that are known to exist there. Wilberforce is in Haliburton county, about 75 miles north of Trenton. The Central Ontario Railway passes through the district.

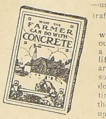
Concrete Sidewalks are Safe, Sightly and Everlasting

LUMBER used in damp places and on wet ground—as, for instance, in walks—has a very short life. It requires almost constant repairing and, in a few years, needs replacing.

Concrete, on the other hand, improves with age, and the very dampness which destroys lumber calls out the best qualities of the cement by making it harder and harder—until neither time nor traffic can affect it.



The best of wooden walks keep getting out of repair, and are a continual menace to life and limb. They are also a frequent source of expensive doctor bills and lost time. Then again, they are likely to eat up the original cost in repairs before they are replaced.

Concrete walks are sightly, everlasting and safe. They cost less to build and need no repairing nor painting.

Write for our free book, "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete."

It tells in plain, simple language, how you can save money on farm construction by using cement for Barns, Dairies, Foundations, Fence Posts, Troughs, Feeding Floors, Hitching Posts, Stalls, Silos, Stairs, and so forth. The Book is well illustrated with photographs, plans and diagrams. Fill out the coupon or send a postal to-day.

HOLIDAYS GALORE THIS SUMMER

There is a good time in store for the small boy this spring and summer. Count the holidays! Why school will hardly seem to keep at all. First Good Friday and then Easter Monday, with Saturday and Sunday between—four days out of school all in one group. Then before he knows it along will come the 24th of May, the birthday of the late Queen Victoria, who reigned so long. The "Queen's Birthday" has become a fixture. Now comes the proclamation of King George's birthday as a statutory holiday on June 3 and Coronation Day on June 22. By that time Johnny will be ready and well prepared to stand two months' siege of holidays while school closes up altogether, opening in time to close again about Labor Day in September.

MOVING PICTURE MAN "MOVED"

Kingston, April 11.—(Special)—S. Simms, Toronto, for the past few months manager of the Bijou Theatre has shaken the dust of Kingston off his feet. He left for parts unknown, leaving behind him a host of sorrowing creditors, Simms' liabilities amount to about $600 and his assets, which remain in the theatre, are represented by everything which was not moveable. Among other things, Simms took the moving picture machine with him. He left presumably for the States.

Saturday night Simms paid his staff two weeks' wages by cheque on a local bank, and on Monday when these were presented they were refused, there being no funds. A few days ago the police pressed Simms for payment of his license, which amounts to $50 a year. He promised to pay it this week.

JUDGMENT DEALS A SERIOUS BLOW TO THE FOES OF LOCAL OPTION

An important judgment was given Thursday by Mr. Justice Middleton, in the case of the West Lorne local option vote in which he stated that persons who vote improperly cannot be given the protection of the statutes concerning the secrecy of the ballot, and their ballots cast improperly, are only waste paper and impede the counting of the votes.

The result of the polling in West Lorne on the local option bylaw was 141 in favor of it and 92 against. Judge Colter in scrutinizing the poll found there was an additional vote for the bylaw, but he also found that five men had voted who had no right to vote. Had Judge Colter followed the custom he would have subtracted the five invalid votes from the poll in favor of the bylaw, and declare the bylaw defeated, but by Judge Middleton's judgment, Judge Colter cannot declare that the local option has not carried until he finds out how the five men marked their ballot papers. He must first investigate the matter to find out actual facts.

"The papers cast as ballots," said Judge Middleton, "by those not entitled to vote are not really ballot at all, and it is the duty of the Judge to eliminate from the real votes the spurious ballots mingled with the true by the inadvertent admission to the polling booth of those not entitled to exercise the franchise.

CUT OFF HER HUSBAND'S HEAD TO EVEN UP AN OLD SCORE

Sault Ste Marie, Ont., April 16. — Peter Napolitina, an Italian, living near James-st., Little Italy, known here as Peter Naplesik, was killed this evening by his wife, Margery. The woman admits having committed the murder, and is now in jail.

Napolitina was employed on the night shift at the steel plant and was asleep in bed when his wife attacked him with an axe. The first blow struck him on the forehead and nearly severed the crown of his head. Four blows followed, the last one all but severing the head from the body. The woman then proceeded out on to the street and told passers-by what she had done.

The murder is the echo of the case last Fall, when Napolitina returned home unexpectedly and stabbed her several times. She was for some months in the hospital. It seems she had awaited the opportunity to get even.

An inquest will be opened to-morrow. The dead man was 40 years of age and had four children, the eldest seven, who have been placed in charge of the Children's Aid Society.

The woman expresses no remorse and does not seem to realize her position.

Miss McCordick, of Keswick, who has been supplying in our school for some time left on Saturday to spend Easter with friends at Gooderham, and goes from there to her school near Kinmount. Her many friends here wish her every success.

The members and adherents of the Methodist church, presented the organist, Miss Maggie Skuce, with an address, and a beautifully engraved silver tray, and silver tea service, as a token of their esteem for her and good wishes for her happiness in her married life. Mrs. Moore read the address and Mrs. Jackson made the presentation.

Mrs. Flett, of Oakwood, and Mrs. Southam, of Bury's Green have been visiting their parents here for the past week.

The public school pupils treated their teacher and themselves to a maple taffy pull on the closing day of school.

Mr. R. Nugent is shingling and otherwise improving his house.

Messrs Wm. and Wesley Skuce and Jos. McGahey, were in Peterboro a couple of days.

DID NOT MURDER DEAF MUTE MATTHEWS IS ACQUITTED AT COBOURG

Cobourg, Ont., April 16.—Henry I. Matthews, of Lakeport, charged with the murder of Johanna Brimacombe, the deaf mute domestic in the hotel at Colborne, was last night acquitted of the crime. The case was given to the jury at a quarter to seven and a few minutes after eleven o'clock they returned with a verdict of "Not Guilty." Matthews was then discharged from custody.

Ex-Reeve Henry Bicks, who on Friday night swore to having seen the dead girl in the hotel shortly after nine o'clock, whereas Matthews, according to the evidence, left the hotel before that time, was recalled and subjected to a rigid cross-examination He stuck to his statement. Miss Brimacombe, he said, was neatly dressed, and was wearing her glasses. When he saw her she was folding linen or washing dishes. He was not short-sighted. He had not discussed the case with anyone.

After some further questions he admitted that he had told John Reeves that he had not been subpoenaed but that he had received five dollars and was going to testify.

Mr. E. Guss Porter, counsel for defence commenced his address to the jury shortly after two o'clock and made a strong plea for acquittal, declaring that the evidence adduced by the crown was in many points contradictory, purely circumstantial, and altogether insufficient to warrant a conviction.

Mr. Peter White, Crown Prosecutor followed, and stated that if the jury were morally certain that the prisoner was not guilty of the extreme crime of murder, but guilty of a less serious crime, it was possible that the court would say that they might return a verdict of manslaughter.

SKETCH OF LIFE OF J. KEENAN

The following from the Sioux City, South Dakota, Leader, refers to the late John Keenan, whose death was recorded on Saturday:

"John H. Keenan, one of the best known residents of Sioux Falls, and one of the very oldest travelling men making this section, passed away at 4 o'clock this morning at the family residence, corner of Eleventh-st. and Prairie avenue. The above announcement will bring sorrow to the hearts of many residents of this city, but is no surprise to the relatives and immediate friends, who have known of Mr. Keenan's condition for some time past.

Up to four years ago, "Jack," Keenan, as he was known by everybody, was the perfect picture of health. He was as rugged as they made them and everyone would have predicted a long life. However, an insiduous disease was at work, and about four years ago he first showed signs of a breakdown. Local physicians were consulted and he visited several sanitariums and noted physicians in search of relief. He was told by different physicians that he had different ailments, but it is the general opinion that Mr Keenan was a victim of Bright's disease.

About the holidays Mr. Keenan, accompanied by his wife, started out on a health seeking trip. They first went to Mineral Springs, Texas. After a sojourn of some weeks there they started for California, but Mr. Keenan's condition was such that it was deemed best to return to Sioux Falls This they did, and Mr. Keenan took to his bed, where he remained until the final summons came as stated above.

Jack Keenan was one of God's noble men. He counted his friends by his circle of acquaintances. He was a hale fellow well met and whenever he made an acquaintance he made a friend.

He was 59 years of age on April 4, Thirty-two years of his life he spent as a travelling salesman and twenty-seven years of this time he travelled for one house, David Alder & Sons of Milwaukee. That is a recommendation for any man. When a person can hold down one position for twenty-seven years he is certainly doing business.

Twenty-two years ago the Keenan family moved to Sioux Falls and shortly afterwards Mr. Keenan purchased the property at the corner of Prairie avenue and Eleventh street, where he erected a fine home and there the family has resided ever since.

Deceased is survived by a wife, one daughter, Mrs. Charles McDonald, six brothers, Robert and Charles, of Sioux City, Frank, of Watertown, Alec, of South Omaha, William, of North Dakota, Edmund of California and one sister, Mrs. Cowper, of Los Angeles.

He was born at Lindsay, Canada, but moved to the United States when a boy, and has since been a true son of the United States.

Mr. Keenan was a charter member of the Sioux Falls lodge of Elks, He passed through the chairs and held the position of exalted ruler for one term, and was one of the board of trustees for several years. Besides he was on the building committee, and it was through his untiring efforts and persistent boosting, ably assisted by the other members of the building committee, that the Elks were enabled to erect their splendid home in the city. He was also a prominent member of the local branch of the Knights of Columbus.

Jack Keenan will be missed probably as much as any other resident The funeral will take place from St. Michael's pro-cathedral Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the interment will be made in the Catholic cemetery northeast of this city."

UNWRITTEN LAW IN THE PORCUPINE HUSBAND TRIED TO KILL HIS WIFE

Sudbury, Ont., Apr.l 25.—At the Spring Assizes here before Chief Justice Falconbridge the first indictable case from Porcupine was heard, when John Paget was charged with the attempted murder of his wife in February last. The story unfolded started with the marriage of the couple eight years ago in London, England, where Paget drove a baker's wagon: of their emigration to Canada five years ago and Paget securing work as a farm laborer at Manotick, near Ottawa, their infant child dying while there and of Mrs. Paget leaving the farm to reside int the village. It was not long before Mrs. Paget grew weary of the apparent monotony of the village life and left for Ottawa, where she secured work as a waitress in several hotels. From there she drifted into the north country. For a year and a half no correspondence passed between them, but was then resumed by the wife and last Christmas she returned to live once more with Paget at Ignace, Ont. where he had secured employment as a machinist's helper. In less than a month the restive spirit again exhibited itself and Mrs. Paget left once more for the north country, and she had Paget follow in February. Apparently not until Paget reached Porcupine did the book of the past five years completely unfold itself. Comments on his wife's character were common in Porcupine. She was conducting a small restaurant, a blind pig, etc., and when on Feb. 11th last he discovered his wife, as he thought, embracing the bartender, Wm. Reise there was a row. The quarrel was resumed in the rooms and grew so loud that Reise went up to interfere. As he opened the door of the room he found Paget holding his wife with one hand and drawing a revolver from his hip with the other. The opening of the door attracted the attention of both for the moment, and Mrs. Paget escaped, while Reise grappled with the accused. Two shots were fired in the direction of the fleeing woman, one of which went through the roof and the other plowed the cheek and ear of Reise.

Mrs. Paget at the trial swore she did not know whether he had intended to kill her or kill himself.

R. R. McKessock, in asking for acquittal, admitted the shooting and said the majority of the men in the north, and also, he thought, in the jury, would have been handier with the gun and had a better aim and still would have thought their act amply justified under the circumstances.

The Chief Justice said the law could neither condone or justify the act of Paget, but the verdict could be reduced to that of intent to do bodily harm or of common assault. A verdict was returned on the least minor charge of common assault and the accused was sentenced to ten days in jail.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MR. CHAS. FAIRBAIRN PASSED AWAY IN TORONTO TO-DAY

From Wednesday's Post.

The citizens of Lindsay were shocked this morning to hear the announcement that Chas. Fairbairn had been found dead in his bed in Toronto. The news spread like wildfire, and on all sides were heard expressions of profound regret at the demise of one who figured so prominently in the history of this county.

It was only last week that Mr. Fairbairn was seen on the streets of Lindsay and left for Toronto Tuesday evening last. He was in excellent health and chatted with his many friends in the same jovial and lighthearted manner that has always characterized his bearing.

Charles Fairbairn was one of Nature's noblemen. He alwyas wore his heart on his sleeve and possessed qualities which gained for him a host of friends throughout the country. He was a big-hearted citizen, bubbling over with genuine good humour and with a warmth and sincerity in his actions which made him most agreeable. He had a kind word for everyone, and was sympathetic and charitable towards the unfortunate.

The late Mr. Fairbairn was in his seventy-fourth year and was born near Lakefield, Smith township, Peterboro county. He was a son of Andrew Fairbairn, and at an early age moved to Verulam township. He married Esther Fee in Omemee, who still survives him. As a resident of Verulam township he took an active part in municipal affairs, and served in the capacity of Councillor and Reeve for a number of years. He was also a member of the County Council and was Warden of the County Council in 1879. He was recognized as a most capable Warden, as well as an authority on municipal matters.

Mr. Fairbairn was a Presbyterian in religion, and was a member of the L.O.L. and the A.F. & A.M. Two years ago Mr. and Mrs. Fairbairn removed from Verulam to Lindsay, and resided at 25 Wellington-st.

The late Mr. Fairbairn leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife, three sons, four daughters and three sisters and four brothers. The sons are Thomas, of Bobcaygeon; Milton of Massey; James, of Daniels, P. I.; the daughters, Mrs. Andrew Braden, Bobcaygeon; Mrs. Lizzie Kelly, Lindsay; Mrs. Carlton Bellamy, Lindsay; Mrs. G. H. Magee, Omemee. His brothers are John, Andrew and Alexander Fairbairn, of Lakefield, and Nicholas, of Webbwood. His sisters, Mrs. Geo. Johnston, Lakefield; Mrs. Wm. Falls, Lindsay; Mrs. James Falls, of Bobcaygeon. He had seven grandsons and two granddaughters.

The late Mr. Fairbairn was attached to the Reading Room of the Provincial Legislature, and while in Toronto resided at 65 Grosvenor street, where his sad death took place.

The late Mr. Fairbairn also took an active part in Federal and Provincial politics. In 1882 the deceased ran against Mr. D. J., (now Judge McIntyre), and was defeated by 36 votes. In the fall of 1890 South Victoria was declared vacant owing to the death of the sitting member, the late Adam Hudspeth. Mr. Wm Lownsborough was nominated in the Liberal interests, while the late Mr. Fairbairn was the Conservative nominee He carried the riding by about 200 of a majority. However, before he took his seat in the House there was a general election (1891) when Mr. Fairbairn again contested the riding, defeating Mr. Thos. Walters by 24 votes. He was unseated on a protest but on the bye-election again carried the riding by 230 of a majority. He represented the riding until May 1896 when Dr. Vrooman was nominated as the standard bearer of the Liberal-Conservatives.

Peterboro, April 25.—(Special).—A by-law to authorize the loan by the city of $40,000 to the Independent Tire Company of Toronto to assist in establishment of a factory here, was voted on to-day with this result: 1,231 for and 97 against; about 400 short of the legal requirement.

WEST IS STRONG FOR RECIPROCITY

Ottawa, April, 25.—"There is no change in the West with regard to the reciprocity situation," declared Mr. Roderick MacKenzie, Secretary of the Grain Growers' Association, who returned to Ottawa this morning, after spending several weeks in that country.

"The agreement," he said, "is endorsed by more than three quarters of the people, but an increased preference and free agricultural implements are also desired. During the recess some of the Opposition members have been holding meetings but they were essentially party affairs. Beyond a doubt, they all have many friends, who will, for political reasons, stand by them, but there is no questioning the fact that reciprocity is strongly favored all over the West."

MRS. M. MEEHAN DIED IN BOSTON

From Wednesday's Post.

The funeral took place this morning from the early C.P.R. train of a former Lindsay resident in the person of Mrs. M. Meehan, who passed away in Boston a few days ago. Interment took place in the Roman Catholic cemetery.

The deceased lady was a daughter of the late Michael Cahill, who was at one time a resident of the East Ward. She is survived by her husband, (who on account of illness was unable to accompany the remains) Lina, a daughter, and Messrs. Cobill and Albert, his sons. Miss Lina Meehan and her brother, Albert, accompanied the remains to Lindsay. A sister of the deceased, Mrs. Gray, who resides in the Ottawa district, arrived in town on the 9.15 G.T.R. train.

Mr. M. Meehan is a brother of Messrs. John and Joseph Meehan, of Lindsay, and is well-known throughout the district.

"GREEN GOODS" MAN WORKING IN ONTARIO

A warning is issued to the public by the Provincial Police Department against a system of swindling which is being operated in various parts of Ontario by men who are commonly known as "green goods men." A large number of communications have been received by the department in the last few months from men, chiefly farmers, who have had letters sent them by some person in the United States offering to sell bundles of counterfeit bank notes, which, the writer said, he had made.

The writer of these letters has represented himself to be an expert engraver, formerly employed by one of the bank note companies, and that he had produced plates duplicating one five, and ten dollar bills. He would try to make an appointment with his intended victim. Should he succeed in doing so the procedure is for the writer of the letter to meet his victim at some place over the line, and show him a genuine bank note as a sample of his work. If the victim decides to purchase a quantity of these so-called "duplicate notes", he is shown a package of genuine bills or a package faced with a genuine bill which is afterwards exchanged for another package of worthless paper.

In the event of this game succeeding there is no redress for the victim as it an offence against the law for a person to attempt to purchase counterfeit money. The fact is that the green goods man conducts his operations from points outside of Canada covers his trail very completely, and makes it almost impossible for the police to secure an arrest.

The Provincial police wish any persons receiving communications of this nature to mail them immediately to the Superintendent of Provincial Police at Toronto, being careful to send the envelope in which the letter was received.

Bishop were appointed a committee to correspond with the G.T.R. regarding better train service. The improvement of the grounds near the wharf was admitted to be necessary and the subject was discussed at some length. Messrs. A. J. Gould, M. H. McCallum and Dr. Johnstone were delegated to lay the matter before the Council.

WINTER FAIR WILL BE HELD DEC. 19 SPLENDID MEETING HELD LAST EVENING

From Wednesday's Post.

A most enthusiastic meeting of those interested in the Winter Fair was held last night in the Council Chamber. Over fifty business men, representing all the important interests of the town were present and those who had come to the meeting a trifle skeptical as to the good derived from the Fair were impressed with the fact that everyone of them benefitted in one way or another. It was unanimously decided to hold the fair again next winter on December 19 or the first Tuesday before Christmas. Mr. John Williamson occupied the chair.

The old officers who still retain their positions are as follows:

President—John Carew.

Vice-President—J. A. Williamson.

Sec.—D. A. McKenzie.

Board of Directors—Jas. Begg, R. L. McLean, W. W. Jordan, W. Galbraith, Geo. Jordan, E. H. Hopkins, W. Channon, Jos. Hickson, A. Robertson.

The discussion which took place during the evening emphasized the very important fact that the fair was of the utmost value to the town. The merchants present bore strong testimony to its importance as a business bringer. It attracted not only large numbers from the county, but Peterboro and other centres contributed their quota of visitors. Other places had inaugurated winter fairs, and there was not a case on record where they had been discontinued. The amount of money left in town on fair day was enormous, and the whole town benefitted greatly from the enterprise.

FORMER LINDSAY CITIZEN PAYS A TRIBUTE TO THEATRICAL ABILITY OF JOHN MEEHAN

Niles, Ohio, April 24.

To the Lindsay Post:

"When one is absent from Lindsay Town eighteen years, as I have been, it renews within you fond recollections of your boyhood days to meet some one who has also been raised there.

"Such was my experience during the past week, when I had the pleasure of meeting the peerless John Meehan, a former Lindsayite, who has made good, and is recognized as one of the leading American actors of today. To gaze in a retrospective mood upon the past, it is certainly refreshing to have a sociable chat with a native of your home town and discuss conditions as one has met and mastered them.

"Departing from the home of his parents, as John Meehan did when quite young, he showed a determined attitude to do for himself and if possible to rise to a place of prominence in the world.

"The fact that he has been successful gives opportunity for additional praise due this young man for having arrived at the goal of his ambition and obtaining for himself a reputation in his chosen profession which the greatest of the country might well envy.

"Mr. Meehan informed me at our last meeting at Youngstown that he was scheduled to appear with "The Man on the Box" Co. in Lindsay on May 2nd, and I hope that the people of Victoria county will turn out enmasse and pay a worthy tribute to this young man of whom Lindsay may well be proud.

MASONIC CASE UP AT HOUSE

Ottawa, April, 25.—Before the orders of the day were called in Parliament yesterday, Col. Hughes told the House that he had received a visit from the counsel who defended the man accused of stealing the Masonic papers at Montreal. The latter had come to see the Colonel anent the latter's comments on the case in the House recently, and explained that he had not in any way sought to incite the passions of the jury as had been suggested, but had merely sought to illustrate the condition of his client's mind, and thereby show that there was no malicious intent. Col. Hughes thought the explanation was due to the counsel.

A WARM ONE

(Peterboro Examiner)

The London Advertiser, without the fear of lese majestic before its eyes, calls Col. Sam Hughes "an Ottawa nuisance." Not so; Col Sam, is the effervescent powder that gives fizz and sparkle to the ditch water dullness into which parliament often subsides-

PROGRESS OF VETO BILL

The persistency and firmness with which Premier Asquith is dealing with the Veto Bill in the British House of Commons, sets at rest all rumors to the effect that a compromise would be arrived at. The Tories are hopelessly divided, while the Liberals present a solid front. The veto will pass the House of Commons in spite of the obstruction tactics of the Tories. The hand writing is on the wall, and it means much to the House of Lords.

THE BELLEVILLE ONTARIO

One of the brightest and best daily papers coming to our sanctum is the Belleville Ontario. It has just completed its first year under new management, and the great change wrought is a distinct tribute to those responsible. Its editorial page is in the hands of a most capable writer, while the news columns are always filled with newsy items of city and district. The Post congratulates the Ontario on its success. It is a pleasure to peruse its pages.

CONSERVATIVE PAPER SLATES BORDEN

(From the Week, Conservative, B. C.)

Mr. Borden is a most estimable man, of the most mediocre attainments. He could never lead a corporal's guard to victory, much less a large party. He has none of the instincts and none of the magnetism of a leader. He has missed every great opportunity of making a stand against the policy of the Laurier Government and, in some instances, notably that of the Grand Trunk Railway policy, he literally made a hash of matters through not knowing his own mind. His stand on the naval question was vacillating, and on the present great reciprocity question feeble and featureless. In no sense does he lead the party at the present time.

The leaders of the Liberal party resort to every device to keep him in his position; they successively and successfully arouse his personal pride and his jealousy in order to render it impossible for any concerted movement to secure his removal. In a political sense he is the "easiest thing" in Opposition leaders that a government ever had to deal with, so no wonder they do their best to keep him there. A man who, however, estimable his character, has failed through ten years of leadership to impress on the party or the country should resign just once more and stay with his resignation. Whatever the immediate effect on the party might be, the ultimate effect could hardly fail to hasten the return of that party to power. The country is face to face with a great issue, involving not merely a commercial but national and Imperial interests. Mr. Borden has utterly failed to rise to the occasion, and in the opinion of not a few thinking Conservatives the phychological moment for his final retirement has arrived.

CLEAN THE BACK PREMISES

The following from the Peterboro Examiner applies with equal force to conditions existing here:

It is a truism that the majority of our calamities come from careless ness or some form of neglect or pre caution. Ottawa has had 1196 cases of typhoid since January 1st, 1911, and the cause was bad water, owing to carelessness in allowing the city water supply to be polluted with sewage, something that could, with proper precaution, have been prevented. The outbreak, primarily due to bad water, was aggravated, and continued by the neglect of preventable sanitary precautions. Now is time of year that ought to be devoted to a thorough clean sing of our town; and, to insure a summer of sanitary conditions, all decaying rubbish should be removed from private premises and public places. The attention of the Board of Health is directed to the lanes in the central part of the town, which are in a veritably ghastly condition of filth and untidiness. Prompt action is demanded in the interests of the public health and comfort. By making the city clean in every part we shall be protecting the public health and discouraging the house fly, which, as one of the most sporadic agents of disease, dissemination breeds joyously in household filth apt to fester in the hot sun of early spring and summer. If the Board of Health does not wish to earn the title of Board of Disease it must act promptly.

A BEAVER COINAGE

(Montreal Herald)

Is it not about time the Canadian mint had evolved a distinctively Canadian gold coinage? It is true, no doubt, that the nature of business in Canada does not call for a very extensive use of gold as yet, and yet there is a good deal of it here, what with English sovereigns, American eagles, and the fractions thereof. The mint is popularly supposed to be coining sovereigns. Why not coin some beavers?

There is a first rate historical basis for the adoption of the beaver as the emblem of a national coinage. Coin collectors know that there is already a beaver coinage that is very much prized. The old Northwest Company issued beaver tokens as a convenience in their dealings with the Indian trappers. The Hudson Bay Company also issued a set of tokens in terms of many beaver skins, the denominations being one, a half, a quarter and an eighth. Why not adopt the same momenclature for the coinage of a century which puts the beaver in its coat of arms? Make the beaver twenty dollars, with tens and fives, and it would not be very long before the coinage would serve as one more excellent advertisement of the growing strength of this country. There need be no fear of Canadian gold coinage being treated with indifference or suspicion as Canadian silver coinage frequently is. Gold is gold, the world over, and the value of the coin is the value of the metal in it. It was right and proper to establish a Canadian mint; once established it should be turning Canadian gold into distinctively Canadian coins.

WHAT IS RECIPROCITY?

In his recent speech in the House of Commons, Col. Hughes denied that an interchange of free natural products could properly be described as a reciprocity arrangement; and went on to say:

"In Sir John McDonald's time I remember distinctly his explaining to us what he meant by reciprocity. By reciprocity he said, he meant not free trade in natural products, but that if the United States would admit our barley free, which they wanted, they would let in something from them in return free which we required. They would let in free of duty what they required, and we would allow in free of customs what we required. There was no intention in the slightest degree—and I knew Sir John intimately from 1885 onwards—on his part to have free trade in natural products, but what he wanted was reciprocity in natural products and not free trade."

The records, argues the Winnipeg Free Press, do not, however, agree with Col. Hughes' recollections. Sir John's reciprocity offer to the United States is set forth explicitly in the tariff law of 1879—the National Policy Act—in these terms (section 6):

"Any or all the following things, that is to say, animals of all kinds, green fruit, hay, straw, bran, seeds of all kinds, vegetables (including potatoes and other roots), plants, trees wheat, pease and beans, barley, rye, oats, Indian corn, buckwheat and all other grain, flour of wheat and flour of rye, Indian meal and oatmeal, and flour and meal of any other grain, butter, cheese, fish (salted, smoked or fresh), and lumber, may be imported into Canada free of duty, or at a less rate of duty than is provided by this Act, upon proclamation of the Governor in Council which may be issued whenever it appears to his satisfaction that similar articles from Canada may be imported into the United States free of duty, not exceeding that payable on the same under such proclamation when imported into Canada."

That is to say, like things for like—barley for barley, wheat for wheat coal for coal, etc. Pretty much the same arrangement, in fact, that is now awaiting ratification at Ottawa. Moreover, Mr. Hughes will please note that Sir John A. Macdonald took power to affect this interchange by order-in-council. He had the power to put it through in a single afternoon, without consulting Parliament at all.

GOOD ROADS---THE MUD TAX

More than sixty-five per cent of the whole population of Canada is rural. The farmer does not escape a heavy road tax, even if not a dollar is spent on the public highways

The "mud tax" is heavier than that imposed by the county or municipality, for it is paid in the time lost in going to market with half loads, in driving with a team when one horse might be left at home to do farm work if the road were smooth and hard as it should be; in wasting time in the spring waiting for the sun to make the road passable; in wearing out waggon harness and horses wallowing through mud with a fraction of a load. It is a heavy tax in this province, and is, more than any other one item, responsible for the unsatisfactory bad roads; the debelopment of business and trade is interfered with; the interchange of courtesies and the growth of ideas and fellowship prevented, the prosperity of schools interfered with, and all other interests retarded and discouraged through the condition of our highways.

Hon. Edward Burrough, president of the board of agriculture in New Jersey, is reported as saying that on a new stone road from Merchantville to Camden his teams haul from eighty-five to one hundred baskets of potatoes, where they formerly hauled twenty-five. One of the counties in that state issued about $450,000 of four per cent bonds and put down sixty miles of stone roads averaging sixteen feet wide; and though they pay taxes to meet the interests on these bonds, their taxrate is no lower than it was before the road was built.

It is easy to see how that result would be brought about. The increased value of property, and the enhanced returns from product at lower expense for marketing make it a highly profitable investment. A very seasonable, progressive, and scientific road policy in this province, would do more towards increasing the value of farms and all property throughout our rural districts than anything else that could be undertaken. The Liberal party in New Brunswick should prepare and promulgate a modern road policy.

WOMEN'S RIGHTS

A woman writing to the Toronto Globe quotes the statement of a gentleman, who declared that Canadian women are not fit to vote. There are not two hundred women in Ontario that take an intelligent interest in public affairs, and if you gave the rest the vote today, they would not use it.

The lady put in a plea for the loyalist women who had done much noble work in laying the foundations of Canada. Whereupon, her very frank, if not brutal opponent burst, out: "The loyalist women, indeed; their time died out a long while ago—our present Canadian women are not fit to tie the shoe-laces of these women—I know them better than you do."

The latter part of this speech, need not be taken too seriously, adds a woman writer in a western exchange. There is always a disposition to place the Golden Age in the past. The scenes of our own childhood are proverbially dear. It must be remembered, too, that grand daughters and great grand daughters of the women who were pioneers in Eastern Canada are bravely facing conditions in the west and north of the country, which require as much heroism as tried the courage of their forbears.

But the assertion that Canadian women are not fit to vote is another matter! It is no argument to say that there are thousands of ignorant and corrupt men who vote at every election. It is true, no doubt, that many women are ignorant of the great issues of politics, It is, however, certain that if they are entrusted with political power they will prepare themselves to exercise it intelligently. He would be a very ignorant man who would say that women could not study political economy as well as the men. Whether the majority of women in Canada will be wise to devote their time to this pursuit is another question.

COL. HUGHES' BROADSIDE

Winnipeg Free Press.

Hansard is to hand with the official report of Col. Hughes' interminable deliverance upon reciprocity We quote for the particular interest of the Western Grain Growers his reference to the leaders of that movement, as they appear in the official record.

Mr. Hughes: This gang of leaders, this Grain Growers Association from the northwest that came down here the same sort of fellow we find popping up in blacksmith statesmanship.

Mr. Lancaster: Grit organizers.

Mr. Hughes: Every one of them a grit organizer and heeler; not the rank and file of the farmers of Canada, but the men who try to push themselves to the front, and whose wives are at home wearing long boots and cleaning out the cow stables and the horse stables, while these fellows are hanging around the blacksmith shop spouting statesmanship for the world over.

Again, at a later period in his speech, the valiant Colonel said:

Speaking of the association of Grain Growers, I wish to say a word about the leaders of that association. I may be possibly a little too ardent, but I know the gang, and they are the same as those who fought long years ago. I do not believe that one of them is honest at heart. They are today, as they were formerly, in the pay of the Liberal party. It will require more than the declarations of that gang to convince me that they are not in the pay of Jim Hill, and the Yankees or the great Liberal party of this Dominion. At all the events their actions are along these lines."

When it is recalled that the head and front of the delegation, the bell weather, chief spokesman, fugleman, and prophet was none other than D W. McCuaig, chairman of the Manitoba Elevator Commission, a hard shell Tory, of the most pronounced type, the Colonel's diatribe takes on a humorous complexion.

This attack upon the western grain growers—because this insult to the chosen leaders is of necessity a reflection upon the whole association, though Col. Hughes strove hard to make a distinction in this respect—is nothing short of scandalous. The demands made upon the Dominion Government in December were an embarrassment to it, as every one recognized at the time; and the apparent result of the delegation's interview was perceptibly to weaken the government's hold upon the rural constituencies The leaders of the movement were therefore treated with much consideration by Conservative public men and newspapers generally, though it must be admitted that Col. Hughes is consistent to this extent that, at that time he subjected them to strong criticism in an interview, which he gave the Free Press.

That by an unexpected strategical feat Government has escaped from the position of danger in which it was put last December by the farmers' demands, and that the opposition has ensconced itself in the hole from which the Government emerged are important political developments; but no responsibility therefor attaches to the grain growers. They had nothing to do with the kaleidoscopic political transformation which made them willy nilly supporters of the Governments policy.

SPRING SKIN TROUBLES

Pimples Eruptions and Spotty Complexions

At this season, scores of people,—girls and young women especially,—find their faces disfigured by pimples, dark spots, eruptions, etc. The skin needs attention—needs renovating after the trying time it has passed through during the passed winter.

Just think what it has passed through! You have been out in the rain, sleet and snow. You have been at one moment perspiring from skating, or some other exertion. Then you have stood to cool off. You have spent hours of the day inside at a temperature equal to summer heat. Then you have covered up your skin—except your face— and gone out into a temperature away below zero! No wonder that, with all these changes, the skin of the face and neck shows signs of needing attention.

Zam-Buk and Zam-Buk Soap are the remedies. Smear Zam-Buk lightly over the spots, the eruptions, the sallow patches, at night, and wash with Zam-Buk Soap, only 25c per tablet, each day. Then notice how quickly your appearance improves. As the rich, refined, herbal essences sink deep into the tissue, the hard, scurfy-like patches are removed. Better color results. The cells of the skin become transparent. The blood beneath is liable to impart its proper coloring to the tissue, and the delicate bloom of health replaces the sallowness and pallor of disease.

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure or skin injuries and diseases. Eczema, ulcers, ringworm, yield to its use. For cuts, burns, bruises, childrens rashes, etc., it is unequalled, and for piles. Mothers will find Zam-Buk soap best for baby's bath. All druggists and stores at 50c. box for Zam-Buk, and 25c. tablet (or 3 for 70c) for the soap. If you have any difficulty in obtaining, order from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, and send price.

ADVERTISE IN THE POST

The Red Year

STORY OF THE INDIAN MUTINY

BY LOUIS TRACY

said Miss Harriet Keene, sadly. "We remained at Calcutta four months with our mother, who died there, without having seen our dear father after a separation of five years. We came up country in March, and were going to Naini Tal when the Mutiny broke out. We only saw the Ganges three or four times before our ayah brought us across on that terrible night when father was murdered."

Malcolm had heard many such tensely dramatic stories from fugitives who had reached Lucknow during July. Phrases of pity or consolation were powerless in face of these tragedies. But he could not forbear asking one question:

"How did you come to fall into the hands of Hossein Beg?"

"We were betrayed by some children," was the simple answer. "They saw our ayah's mother baking chupatties, day after day, sufficient for four people. My sister and I lived nearly three weeks in a cow-byre, never daring, of course, to approach even the door. The children made some talk about the lavish food supply in the old woman's hut, and the story reached the ears of their father. He, like all the other natives here, seems to hate Europeans as though they were his deadliest enemies. He spied on us, discovered our whereabouts, and yesterday morning we were dragged forth, while the poor creatures to whom we owed our lives were beaten to death before our very eyes."

The speaker was a fair English girl of twenty. Her sister was eighteen, and their previous experience of the storm and fret of existence was drawn from an uneventful childhood in India, four years in a Brighton school, and a twelvemonth in a Brussels convent!

Malcolm choked back the hard words that rose to his lips, and sought such local information as the ryot could give. It was little. The tiller of the Indian fields lives and dies in his village and has no interests beyond the horizon. This man visited the Ganges once a year on a religious feast, and perhaps twice in the same period in connection with the shipping of grain on his brother's boat. To that extent, but no further, did his store of general knowledge pass beyond the narrower limits of those who dwelt far from a river highway.

Yet it was he who first espied a new and most active peril.

"Look, huzoor," he cried suddenly. "They have made signs to the Fattehpore ghat. Two boats are following us."

And then Malcolm found that the real danger came from the opposite shore. It was a case of falling on Scylla when trying to avoid Charybdis. He learnt afterwards that the rebels had organized a code of signals from bank to bank, owing to the number of the craft with Europeans on board that sought safety in flight down the river. That some device must have drawn pursuit from the right bank was obvious. A couple of roomy budgerows with sails set were racing after him, and the long sweeps on board each boat were being propelled by willing arms.

It must be confessed that a feeling of bitter resentment against this last stroke of ill-luck rose in Malcolm's breast for an instant. He conquered it. He recalled Lawrence's bold advice, "Never Surrender," and that inspiriting memory brought strength.

At that point the Ganges was about a mile and a quarter in width. The budgerow was some six hundred yards distant from the left bank. Three miles ahead the river curved to the left round a steep promontory. The farther shore was marsh-land, so it might be assumed that a hidden barrier of rock flung off the deep current there, while the one chance of escape that presented itself was to steer for that very spot and effect a landing before the enemy could head off the budgerow and force it under the fire of the horsemen. The Fattehpore boats were a mile in the rear, but that advantage would be greatly lessened if Malcolm crossed the stream, and perhaps altogether effaced by the powerful sweeps at their command.

However, to cross was the only way, and the only way is ever the best way. Having once made up his mind Frank coolly reviewed the situation. Food was the first essential. The boat itself, having been used for carrying hay, contained sufficient sweepings to feed the horses, and he set the ryot to work on gathering the odds and ends of forage. A brief search brought to light a quantity of ghee, boiled rice and dried peas. He divided the store into five portions, and set a good example to the others by compelling himself to eat his share of the cooked food at once, while the peas went into his pockets to be crushed or chewed at leisure.

Chumru kept the budgerow steadily on her course, and ere many minutes elapsed it was plain to be seen that the rebels were alive to the tactics of their quarry. Fresh gangs manned the sweeps and the riders on the eastern bank eased their pace to a walk. The space between pursuers and pursued began to decrease. At the outset Frank thought that this was the natural outcome of his plan, and gave no heed to it beyond the ever-growing anxiety of the time problem. But at the end of the first mile he was seriously concerned at finding that the mutineers were gaining on him in an incomprehensble manner. The boat was then seemingly in mid-stream, while the enemy kept close to the shore, and they were certainly traveling half as fast again, a difference in speed that the use of the oars hardly accounted for.

He kept on grimly, however, never deviating from his perspective, which was the swampy ground on the outer curve of the bend. It was not until another mile was covered and the mutineers were almost abreast in the true line of the river, that he knew why they were making such heart-breaking progress as compared with his own craft. The Ganges, after the vagrom fashion of all giant rivers, was cutting a new bed through the sunken reefs towards the low-lying marsh. At the wide elbow there were really two channels and he was now sailing along the comparatively motionless water between them!

Side by side with this terrifying discovery was the certain fact that his awkwardly built craft would gain little by manoeuvring. There was a new danger, too. At any instant she might run ashore on the shoal that was surely forming in the centre of the river. At all costs that must be avoided.

With a smile and a few confident words to the girls, he went aft, took the helm from Chumru and bade him help the ryot in putting out the port sweep. The effect was quickly apparent. The budgerow ran into the second channel, but she allowed her dangerous rivals to approach so close that the natives opened fire with long-range dropping shots.

It was now a matter of minutes ere the rebel marksmen would render the deck uninhabitable. To beach the boat, land the horses, and get the young ladies ashore in safety, had become an absolute impossibility. Then it occurred to Frank that the Fattehpore men could not know for certain that there were Englishwomen on board. They could see Chumru, the ryot, the horses, and of course, the steersman, but the girls were seated in the well amidships, these river craft being only partly decked fore and aft.

A modification of his scheme flashed through his brain, and he decided to adapt it forthwith. First asking Miss Keene and her sister not to reveal their presence, no matter what happened, he told Chumru to stand by the horses and help him to make them leap into the water when he gave the order. With difficulty he induced the scared ryot to take the rudder while he explained the new project. It had that element of daring in it that is worthy of success, being nothing less than an attempt to draw the rebel's attention entirely to himself and Chumru by making a dash for the shore, while the ryot was to allow the boat to continue her course down stream with, apparently, no other tenant than himself.

Malcolm's theory was that, if he and Chumru made good their landing, they would hug the river until the budgerow was sufficiently ahead of pursuit to permit of her being run ashore. Though the plan savored of deserting the helpless girls, yet was he strong-minded enough to adopt it. It substituted a forlorn hope for imminent and unavoidable death or capture, and it gave one last avenue of achievement to the mission on which he had come from Lucknow.

At the final moment he communicated it to the two sisters. They agreed to abide by his decision, and the elder one said with a calm serenity that lent to her words the symbolism of a prayer:

"We are all in God's hands, Mr. Malcolm. Whether we live or die we are assured that you have done and will do all that lies in the power of a Christian gentleman to save us."

"I don't like leaving you," he murmured, "but our only weapons are a sword and a brace of empty pistols. If we run on another half mile we shall be shot down where we stand without any means of defending ourselves. On the other hand—"

Then the budgerow struck a submerged rock with a violence that must have pitched him overboard were he not holding Nejdi's headstall at the moment. She careened so badly that the girls shrieked and Malcolm himself thought she would turn turtle. But she swung clear, righted herself, and lay broadside on to the current. Another crash, less violent but even more disastrous, tore away the rudder and wrenched the spar pulley out of the top of the mast. The heavy sail fell of course, but by some miracle left the occupants of the boat uninjured.

And now the maimed craft was carried along sluggishly, drifting back towards the centre of the river, while the men in the other boats set up a fiendish yell of delight at the catastrophe that had overtaken the doomed Feringhis. Their skilled boatmen evidently knew of this reef. They stood away towards the shore, but the triumphant jeering that came from the crowded decks showed that they meant to pass their dismantled quarry and wait in safer waters until it lumbered down upon them.

Malcolm suddenly became aware of his wounded arm. With a curious fatalism he began to dissect his emotions. He arrived at the conclusion that the drop from the nervous tension of hope to the relaxation of sheer despair had dulled his brain and weakened his physical powers. This, then, was the end. There could be no doubt about it. He quieted the startled horses with a word or two and spoke to the girls again.

"You may as well come on deck now," he said. "It is all up with us. If a friendly bullet puts us out of our misery, so much the better. Otherwise my advice to you both is to leap into the river rather than be recaptured."

Grace was sobbing hysterically, but Harriet, clasping her fondly in her arms, looked up at him.

"No," she said, "we must not do that. Our lives are not our own. The Lord gave and the Lord taketh away. Blessed be the name of the Lord!"

Frank winced in his anguish. To a puissant man there is nothing so galling as helplessness ; what a game of battledore and shuttlecock had been played with him and those bound up with his fortunes since the moulvie's man-trap brought him headlong to the earth in the main street of Rai Bareilly!

"Huzoor!" yelled Chumru, excitedly. "Look! There below! A smoke ship! And see! Those sons of pigs are making for the bank!"

Malcolm could scarce believe his eyes when they rested on a small steamer with the British flag flying from the masthead, coming round the bend. Yet there could be no mistake about it. British officers in white uniforms were standing on her bridge, the muzzles of a couple of guns showed black and business-like over her bows, while her forward deck was packed with men in the uniform of the Madras Fusiliers. Her commander seemed to take in the exact position of affairs at a glance, and, indeed, the half-wrecked and almost empty boat in mid-stream, so eagerly followed by two thickly crowed craft now close hauled and putting forth desperate efforts to reach the bank, presented a riddle easy to read.

That twinge of pain quitted Frank's arm as speedily as it had made its presence felt. He helped the girls to the raised deck, so that the people on the steamer could see them. It was not necessary. An officer waved a hand to them as the sturdy little vessel dashed past, raising a mighty spume of white froth with her paddles, and soon her guns were busy. There was no question of quarter. Captain Spurgin had been with Neill at Allahabad. He knew the story of Massacre Ghat, of Delhi, of Sitapur, Maradabad, Bereilly, and a score of other stations in Oudh and the Northwest. His gunners pelted the unwieldy budgerows with round shot until they began to sink. Then he used grape and rifle fire, until five minutes after the Warren Hastings came on the scene, there was nought left of the Fattehpore navy save some shattered wreckage and a few wretches who strove to swim amidst a hail of lead and in a river infested with crocodiles.

When the steamer dropped down stream and picked up the fugitives, Malcolm learnt that Spurgin was co-operating with Renaud. The one cleared the river, the other was hanging men on nearly every tree that lined the Grand Trunk Road. And Havelock, nobly aided by Neill, was moving heaven and earth to equip a strong force at Allahabad to avenge Cawnpore and raise the expected siege of Lucknow.

As Malcolm himself brought the earliest news of the investment, he and Chumru were put ashore with a small escort, in order that they might join Major Renaud's column, and hurry to Havelock with his thrilling tidings. Spurgin promised to visit the village on the east bank, release Hossein Beg, and make him a hostage for the ryot's welfare. As for Harriet and Grace Keene, they would be sent south as soon as a carriage could be procured.

The two girls bade Frank farewell with a gratitude which was embarrassing, but Grace, more mercurial than Harriet, ventured to say:

"I suppose you are longing to see Winifred again, Mr. Malcolm?"

"Yes," he replied, well knowing the thought that lay behind the words. "You are her friend, so there is no reason why I should not tell you that she is my promised wife."

"Then you are both to be congratulated," put in the elder sister, "for she is quite the most charming girl we know, and our opinion of you is not likely to be a poor one after to-day's experiences."

"What? After an hour's acquaintance?"

"An hour! There are some hours that are half a lifetime. Good-by, may heaven guard and watch over you!"

Renaud despatched Lawrence's messenger to the south in a dak-gharry, or post-carriage. Chumru would have taken the servant's usual perch beside the driver, but Malcolm would not hear of it. His faithful attendant was almost as worn with fatigue as he himself; master and man shared the comfort of the roomy vehicle; and slept for many hours while it rumbled along the road.

At dawn on the 4th of July they entered Allahabad. But the driver had his orders and did not stop in the city. They passed through a sullen bazaar, and were gazed at by a mob that wore the aspect of a cageful of tigers in which order has just been induced by the liberal use of red-hot irons. The travelers were nodding asleep again when the sharp summons of a British sentry gladdened Malcolm's ears.

"Who goes there?"

How alert it sounded! How reminiscent of the old days! How full of promise of the days that were to come!

He leaned out and smiled as he told a stolid private of the 64th that he was "a friend." His uniform acted as a passport, the dak-gharry crossed the drawbridge and crept through a narrow tunnel, and he found himself standing in the great inner parade-ground of the fort. A young officer approached.

"Do you wish to see the general? Whom shall I report?" he asked, eyeing the worn appearance and torn and blood-stained uniforms of Englishman and native.

"I am here from Lucknow," said Frank. "Will you kindly tell General Havelock that Captain Malcolm of the 3rd Cavalry has brought him a message from Sir Henry Lawrence?"

... the first time he had des-

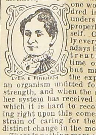
Facts About Motherhood



LYDIA E. PINKHAM

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at the time of child-birth, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when the strain is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

It isn't as though the experience came upon them unawares. They have ample time in which to prepare, but they, for the most part, trust to chance and pay the penalty.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy, and strong.

Any woman who would like special advice in regard to this matter is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. Her letter will be held in strict confidence.

The funeral took place on Saturday at one o'clock to the Carnarvon cemetery.

A very serious accident occurred at Mr. Peter Eastman's Thursday last, which not only greatly endangered the lives of his two sons, scar and disfiguse them for life, but will in all probability impair the sight of Elmer, the younger.

The young men were engaged in blasting large stones in the field, had placed a charge of explosives and were filling the hole with sand to exclude the air, using a broken drill for that purpose. William was sitting on the stone and Elmer had his feet against it. Both were immediately over the charge when it ignited with a report heard two miles away. The stone was blown into a thousand pieces, only one piece remaining in the hole. that upon which Wm. sat. Elmer was thrown back several yards and both suffered severe lacerations of the hands and face from the powder and fine splinters of rock. No bones were broken, and it is considered a miracle that both are alive and able to walk to the house, aided by their father.

Wm. could see a little at first, but soon became quite blind. Elmer saw nothing after the accident and neither of them have seen anything since, although their physician seems quite confident he can save their sight.

After the first two treatments they were brought to the village, where they would be convenient to the eye of the doctor, and where they are progressing favorably, cared for by their father and Miss Florence Vincent.

FRANKLIN

(Special to the Post.)

Mrs. S. Nugent, and daughter, Lottie, were in Midland, last Monday and Tuesday, attending the funeral of Mrs. Nugent's aunt.

The Rev. Mr. Wilson, of the Pontypool circuit, occupied the pulpit here on Sunday last, speaking in the interest of the church union. Mr. Wilson took for his text Eph. 5, and the 26th and 27th verses He pointed very plainly much good that would follow the union of three great Protestant church, viz, Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational. Everyone went home much pleased with the discourse.

On Sunday next we expect the Rev. Clarry, of Cavanville, to speak to us on the question of Temperance and Moral Reform.

Our choir, which was reinforced by some new faces on Sunday last, rendered a very fine voluntary.

On Monday evening last, a meeting was held at the church, to consider the advisability of organizing a Sabbath school for the summer. At first it looked as if Rev. Mr. Williams' efforts to organize, would be futile, as some who in former years had shouldered some of the responsibility were not in the neighborhood at present, and others who, no doubt, had very vivid recollections of the trials and troubles of former summers objected very strenuously to giving their services this summer while still others were so arduously employed during the week with other duties which were so incumbent on them, that they did got care to sacrifice their Sunday morning nap, to attend Sabbath school at the early hour of ten o'clock. However, after much persuasion on the part of Mr. Williams it was agreed to organize, with Mr. Joseph Gardiner, as Superintendent and Mr. William Falkis, assistant Superintendent and Rev. Mr. Williams, as Bible class teacher and Mrs. R. Grandy teacher of the infant class, Mrs. Jos. Gardiner, was assigned the girl's class. Miss Annie Anderson was appointed organist, with Miss Ella Kerr, as the assistant, while Mrs. F. Anderson, was appointed Sec.-Treas.

SISTERHOOD GRADUATE OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

Among the names of the graduates of Queen's University just announced is that Rev. Sr. Mary Pauline, of the Diocese of Peterboro, who obtained the degree of Bachelor of Arts at the examination just closed.

The Sister is to be complimented and congratulated on her success.

There are other nuns in Ontario who are university graduates, but they obtained their degrees before entering religious life; there is also a very considerable number of Sisters who are under-graduates, and who will obtain degrees in the near future at Toronto, Queen's or Ottawa Universities, but Sister Pauline is the first nun in Ontario to proceed to a University degree in the regular way by attending at lectures in University College during the religious life. She is very reticient and refuses to say anything regarding herself in her work, but she is known to have taken part of her course extramurally and to have been in regular attendance at Queen's during the past two years. She speaks highly of the kindness and courtesy of the Faculty of Queen's, and with unmistakable gratitude for the assistance and encouragement given her in the various stages of her work.

It is understood that Sr. Pauline will now be attached to the staff of St. Joseph's Academy at Lindsay, an institution which, during the past twenty years has done much for the education of young ladies, particularly in the training of teachers and the preparation of candidates for Normal, Entrance, Matriculaeion and other examinations.

GRAIN HAULED FROM VICTORIA HARBOR THROUGH HERE BEFORE SNOW FLIES

Globe: Engineers have been instructed to begin at once on the location of the Canadian Pacific Railway line from Gentay, sixteen miles west of Smith's Falls, to Toronto, and it is expected that this railroad will be in operation in about two years.

Steel will be laid on the new railway from Victoria Harbor to Bethany, near Peterboro, this year, and before the snow flies it is expected that wheat will be hauled from that harbor.

In July C. P. R. upper lake steamers will be run from Victoria Harbor to the head of Lake Superior and if this route proves a success Owen Sound will be either partially or wholly abandoned as a port of the company.

The foregoing announcements were made to the Globe by Mr. D. McNicoll, Vice-President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, at the King Edward Hotel last night.

LOCATION OF NEW LINE

In speaking of the new line from Glentay to Toronto, Mr. McNicoll said that the location would extend from Glentay southwest to Belleville, thence along the lake shore to a point of Leaside Jct. It would then work up to Leaside The Company will have a grade of about four-tenths of one per cent per mile.

ENGINEERS TO START FROM TORONTO

"I shall send out some engineers on the location work from Toronto," said Mr. McNicoll, "and they will meet the parties working from the east, so before long I hope to have the line located."

A FAST PASSENGER LINE

The line will be a fast passenger line. It will be on the level and as Scarboro has a high elevation it will be avoided.

The total mileage by this line to Montreal will not vary five miles from the mileage of the present main line.

It was at one time planned to start the new line from Bathurst but Glentay has been finally chosen as the junction. Double tracking from Smith's Falls to this point is now proceeding.

"Will the new road be double-tracked from the start?" Mr. Mccol was asked.

FAVORS SINGLE TRACK

"I do not know," he replied. "My idea is to have a single track at first and when the business warrants lay the double track. I would sooner have a single track through a flat country than a double track up and down dale. The bridges of this line," he added, "might be made so that it would be convenient to lay a second track at any time."

GRAND TRUNK RAILS

An Order for 40,000 Tons Placed at Sydney, N.S.

The Grand Trunk Railway has placed an order for 40,000 tons of steel rails for delivery this season in western Ontario. These will make twenty miles of 80-pound to the yard track and 240 miles of 100-pound track. The cost will amount to considerably over one million dollars. The company will ship 209 miles of its displaced track for use by the Grand Trunk Pacific in constructing yards and sidings in the west. Some of these rails have been in use since 1869 and are still good. They were imported from England at that time for the lines in Ontario. As they are only of 56 and 65-pound weight, to the yard, they are considered too light for the heavy locomotives now in use on the main lines. All the present order of rails will be filled by the Sydney, Cape Breton, mills.

DAIRYING TO TOBACCO CULTURE

Belleville, April, 24.—Because so many head of milch cows have been sold, due to a scarcity of farm help to attend to the milking, the output of cheese from this district will show a falling off this season in some sections farmers are turning their attention to the growing of tobacco. The experiment will be watched with interest, and it is claimed more money can be made growing tobacco with less work, than in the dairy business.

HOLIDAYS IN RURAL SCHOOLS

Will be the Same as in the City Schools in Future

The Legislature decided that rural school children are entitled to the same holidays as children in the towns and cities. The matter was brought up in the House by Mr. Phil Bowyer, and the expression of opinion then was so strong that the principle of the bill was adopted and incorporated in the statute law amendment act. The country children get an extra two weeks' holidays, all schools opening now on September 1.

Exhibition of the Ugly.

Amsterdam has just opened its fifth annual exhibition of the ugly. It is organized by a group which devotes itself to educating the art tastes of the people. Anything that modern art or manufacture produces which is an offence to the eye and good taste is collected, grouped, and labelled under different classifications as "faulty material," "faulty construction," "faulty and bad decoration."

Nervous Diseases In The Spring

Can Be Removed By Toning Up the Blood Thus Strengthening the Nerves

Nervous diseases are more common and more serious that at any other time of the year. This is the opinion of the best medical authorities, after long observation. Vital changes in the system after long winter months may cause much more than spring weakness, and the familiar weariness and achings. Official records prove that in April and May neuralgia, St. Vitus dance epilepsy and various forms of nerve disturbances are at their worst, especially among those who have not reached middle age.

The antiquated custom of taking purgatives in the spring is useless, for the system really needs strengthening while purgatives make you weaker. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, have a special action on the blood and nerves, for they give strength, and have cured not only many forms of nervous disorders, but also other spring troubles, such as headaches, weakness in the limbs, loss of appetite, trembling of the hands as well as unsightly pimples, and skin troubles. They do this, because they actually make new, rich red blood, which means a return to perfect health.

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

STAPLES—MURCHISON

On Wednesday, April the nineteenth Miss Alma Gertrude Staples, daughter of Mr. Robt. A. Staples, of Eldon, was united in marriage, to Mr. Colin Murchison, of Moose-aw, formerly of Glenarm. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. W. Jones, of Victoria Road. The happy couple left on the evening train for their new home in Moosejaw carrying with them the best wishes of their many friends.

HUTTON—HICKEY.

St. Mary's church was the scene of a very pretty wedding this morning when two most popular young people of the parish were united in the holy bonds of matrimony in the person of Miss Ellen Loretta Hutton, daughter of Mrs. Thos. Hutton, and Mr. Jas. J. Hickey, of the International Harvester Co. The ceremony was witnessed by a large gathering of relatives and friends.

Nuptial mass was celebrated by Ven. Archdeacon Casey, who also performed the marriage ceremony. —The bride entered the Church to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Mary Brady, organist of the church. She was attired in a seal-gray tailor-made suit, with hat to match and carried a white prayer book and rosary.

The bridesmaid, Miss Annie Hutton sister of the bride, was gowned in a taupe shade, tailor-made suit, with large black hat.

Mr. John Hickey, brother of the groom, officiated as best man.

After the nuptial mass the couple repaired to the residence of the bride mother, Sussex-st., where a dainty dejeuner was served and where they received the congratulations of their many friends.

The popularity of the bride was attested by the many beautiful presents received.

Mr. and Mrs. Hickey left on the afternoon C.P.R. train for Toronto and Hamilton, and on their return will reside in Lindsay-st north, where their many friends will wish them many years of happy wedded life.

SCORER—McGILL.

Winnipeg, April 22.—One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence of Mr. and Mrs J. McGill when their only daughter, Bernice Irene, was united in marriage to Frederick Scorer. Rev. G. K. B. Adams, of Young Methodist Church, officiated, the ceremony being performed at an altar formed of palms and lilies under a large bell of flowers.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was gowned in a beautiful white duchesse satin dress with panel of Irish lace, the bodice being finished with seed pearl trimmings, wearing the customary veil and orange blossoms, and carrying white roses, her only ornament being a pearl necklace, the gift of the groom. Miss Gertrude Staples, of Carman, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Henry Scorer, brother of the groom, acted as best man. At the close of the ceremony refreshments were served from a table decorated with roses, smilax, and satin ribbon. Miss Staples, the bridesmaid, was dressed in a pale blue duchesse satin with a large picture hat of the same shade and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mrs. McGill, mother of the bride, wore a white and black silk dress with a floral hat to match. Mrs. Scorer, mother of the groom, wore pearl silk with a white and black toque. Mrs. Coddington, sister of the groom, wore pale blue silk eoline and black picture hat. Miss Kathleen Scorer, sister of the groom, wore champagne satin and cream picture hat.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl ring, to the best man a ruby tie pin and to Mrs. Coddington, the pianist, a set of pearl blouse pins. The bride's travelling costume was a navy blue diagonal serge, the coat opening on a blouse of navy blue satin, veiled with navy blue and tan ginoa; her toque of tuscan turban was trimmed with a collar of darker velvet, embroidered in various colored beads

Mr. and Mrs. Scorer left on the Soo line train for Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Chicago, Michigan, and on their return will take up their residence in Winnipeg.

Warning to Parents

During the past few days a large number of children have been noticed disporting themselves along the river, and more especially in the vicinity of the new bridge and town wharf. The river is rather high at present and parents cannot exercise too much caution in seeing that their children do not endanger their lives. A drowning accident will surely result if children persist in haunting the river bank.

STORMY WEATHER PREDICTED FOR MAY FORECAST FURNISHED BY REV. IRL HICKS

A regular storm period, having its beginning g April, will reach its culmination, in eastern parts of the country, the first two or three days in May. A siesmic period also reaches in o the same days. A wave of higher barometric pressure will follow from west and north, bringing cooler weather behind the storm The Mercury period, which comes into May from April, will last until after the 10th, causing prolonged cloudiness, and intensifying regular and reactionary storms which fall under its influence.

A reactionary storm period will culminate on and touching ?he 4th and 5th, and this period, being under the influence of the Mercury equinox, will bring storms of rain, with continuation of cloudy, threatening weather for several days. Under ?tress of the Mercury period, and solar conditions peculiar to this month, very severe storms are probable, at this and other May periods. High barometer, with very cool weather with probable frosts northward, will be the natural order from about the 5th to the 8th—first to the west and north, advancing eastward and southward.

A regular storm period covers the 9th to the 14th, with moon on the celestial equator on the 9th and full on the 13th. High temperature falling barometer and electrical storms will appear about the 9th in western extremes, and from Wednesday, the 10th, to Sunday the 14th, these conditions will progress to the eastward, causing general and violent storms in many localities. From the 10th to the 16th constitutes a period of seismic strain, that will very probably cause earthquake shocks and shivers in many parts of the globe. A marked change to high barometer and ?ooler, with probable frosts at night northward, should be no surprise from about the 13th to the 16th.

A reactionary storm period will bring return of warm weather, folling barometer and storms, on and touchigg the 17th and 18th. Lhose who have followed us for years tell us that the solar eye is focused along the central parallels of the northern hemisphere during May, and hence violent electrical and tornadic storms often reach a maximum at this season. There is no special indication of such storms at this period, at the same time, approaching storms should be calmly and carefully scanned. Expect change to much cooler after these storme for several days.

A regular storm period falls from the 20th to the 25th, being central on the 22nd. This period will culminate in very high temperature, a dtop of the thermometer, and forceful storms of rain, wind and thunder, on and next to Tuesday, the 23rd. Dashes of heavy hail will be most natural at this time, with probability of a tornada, coming upon the unwary in scattering localities. Cycles of rain, wind and thunder storms may repeat themselves in afternoons and evenings for several days at this period, or until the barometer rises, attended by westerly winds and much cooler.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 27th, 28th and 29th. The New Moon is near perigee, and near north declination, falls on the 28th calling for low barometer, change to very warm and resulting in vicious storms of thunder, wind and rain. Earthquakes from 26th to 30th.

HUSBAND MAY SLAP HIS WIFE

Providence, R.I., April 24.—A man is justified in slapping his wife for going through his pockets, in the opinion of Mr. Justice Lee, of the Superior Court, Judge Lee made this ruling today in a divorce suit that was brought by Elizabeth England, of Pawtucket, against her husband John E. ESTABLISHED LAZY MAN'S PARADISE

Omaha, Neb., April 25.—Richard Baxter, a gardner living on the outskirts of the city, an electrician of no mean ability, has demonstrated that electricity is just the thing for a lazy man. Baxter has carried his devices to such an extent that now he is making electricity do most of the chores about the premises. It feeds his hogs and waters his cows; it lets the chickens out of the pens in the mornings and houses them up.

The premises of Baxter are a network of electric wires, dozens of them running from his house to the barn, the hog yard, the chicken coops, and the grain bins. In his house he has a den, and this is the seat of his electrical experiments. In the morning when he desires to do the chores, instead of slipping into old clothes and going out to the barn he goes into his den and sits down opposite the switch board. By pressing a button a plug down at the barn is pulled, and a feed of grain sifts down from a bin above into the boxes in the mangers in front of his horses. Then pushing another button a gate is lifted and the mangers are filled with hay.

Baxter's best invention for a lazy man is his fire starter. Wires run through the kitchen range. The kindling is put in the night before and in the morning, when he awakes, all he has to do is to push a button. A few moments later there is a roaring fire in the range.

AIN'T THAT AWFUL !

It has remained for a daughter of Inspector Hughes, and, of course, a niece of the gallant Col. Sam Hughes, M.P., to get the most space in the newspapers so far. Her press agent worked overtime in the New York Herald, and the particular theme was baseball.

CONSERVATIVES AND THE PREFERENCE

Joseph Martin, M.P., recently declared in the British House of Commons that "the British preference depended entirely upon the continuance in office of the Laberal party in Canada." This was met by cries of "No! No!" from the Unionist benches. "The Conservative party in Canada Mr. Martin continued, "and the manufacturers had constantly opposed the preference policy." That both the Conservatives and the manufacturers have opposed the preference in the past can easily be demonstrated. Whether given the opportunity now, the Conservatives would repeal it is doubtful, but the old feeling of hostility still lingers in the party and finds expression upon occasion. Thus Wm. Thoburn, M.P. for North Lanark, a woolen manufacturer, said in the House of Commons on December 13 last :

"Is the Hon. minister not aware that the reason why Canadian manufacturers are not able to consume the wool produced by the farmers of Ontario is because, owing to the tariff, large importations are allowed into this country of woollens which take the place of goods we could manufacture out of Canadian wool, especially since the preferential clause went into effect? As I tried to explain two years ago, the effect has been to close up all the smaller mills in the Dominion that were using Canadian wool. I can well remember the time when all these mills used Canadian wool, and when the price of Canadian wool was 30 cents to 32 cents per pound. But as the result of that preferential clause, the figure has come down to its present figure."

CANNOT BUY PISTOL OR DAGGER WITHOUT PERMIT FROM THE POLICE

As a result of the Italian murder in Toronto on Good Friday evening and the increase in the number of crimes among foreigners in the province generally, the Government has decided that on and after tomorrow the sale of offensive weapons in the province is to be strictly regulated, and in some cases entirely prohibited. Commencing tomorrow, any person who exposes for sale or sells any bowie-knife, dirk, dagger, stiletto, metal knuckles, skull cracker, or sling-shot, or who sells a revolver, pistol, or air-gun to any person other than a holder of a certificate from the Provincial or other police, stating that he is entitled to purchase any of those things, is liable to a fine of from $20 to $200. The purchaser is equally liable under the act.

Records must be kept of all sales made with name of purchaser, and failure to comply involves a fine of from $25 to $200. A furthee penalty of $50 is provided for failure to report sales every three months to the Provincial Police.

AMALGAMATION WITH LARGER CONCERN BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR SYLVESTER CO.

The communication from Mr. F. J. Lynch, of the G.T.R., re the removal of the Sylvester siding, was considered by the Finance Committee of the Council last night. Mr. Lynch wrote the Council to obtain its approval of its removal of the siding before any action was taken. The committee last night approved of the removal, but proper planking must be laid between the tracks, in order that traffic along Victoria avenue at this point would not be endangered.

Coupled with the communication was a request that the Sylvester Co. be allowed to build a six foot platform projecting from the foundry. The committee could not see its way clear to approving the erection of such a structure, which, it was felt, might be erected at the Company's own risk. It is likely that the committee will investigate the site before any action is taken.

Mr. Fielding, representing the Sylvester Company, was present at the committee meeting, and made an important announcement regarding the future prospects of the Company. Those who were interested in placing this industry on a good strong basis had confronted difficulties which, he was happy to say were being rapidly overcome. The present condition of affairs existing were only of a temporary nature, and there was good prospects of the Company amalgamating with a larger and more important industry which meant that the local concern would be operated on a more extensive scale than had been anticipated.

Different members of the Council expressed themselves as being highly pleased to hear such an announcement.

LIBERALS READY TO FACE OBSTRUCTION OPPOSITION CAN DO ALL TALKING

Ottawa, April 20.—At a largely attended Liberal caucus this morning it was decided on the suggestion of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, that the debate on reciprocity from the Liberal side of the House could wisely be cut short in the firm belief that the agreement needs little further advocacy before the country. The onus of continuing the debate and thus delaying prorogation will be left with the Opposition speakers, but it is expected they will not continue the fight much longer, and a vigorous effort will be made to reach a vote on the issue early next month, and wind up the remaining business of the session before May 24th.

There will only be three or four additional Liberal speakers in support of the agreement, the final conclusion of the debate being left to Mr. Fielding. There was no question as to dropping the agreement for this session, and the members present were enthusiastically in support of forcing the vote on an issue and securing a ratification of the proposals at the earliest possible moment.

There was a discussion of the question of renewal of the bounties on iron and steel rods for eighteen months from July 1, when according to the present legislation, they will expire. The Nova Scotia members were strongly in favor of this extension in view of the fact that under the reciprocity agreement no tariff protection is possible, and with a view to meeting what they believe is the reasonable request from the iron and steel companies for a short extension of the bounties until arrangements can be made by the companies for continuing business in the wire-rod plants on a permanent basis of profit. The question was left for decision, and it is not improbable that some measure of temporary assistance will be granted along the lines suggested.

The question of subsidies for the leasing of branch lines feeding the Intercolonial Railway in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, and of the construction as a part of the Intercolonial system of new branch lines, and particularly on a line through the eastern portion of Nova Scotia connecting Halifax and Pictou, were also discussed, and the recommendation of the Minister of Railways giving effect to these proposals were endorsed.

Reciprocity Wins the First Round

Washington, April, 21.—President Taft won a substantial victory tonight when the House of Representatives passed a Canadian reciprocity agreement by a vote of 266 to 89. The bill got 45 more votes than it did in the last session, the vote on its former introduction having been 221 to 92. Seventy-eight Republicans today voted against the measure- Sixty-four Republicans upheld the hand of the Administration. Eleven Democrats voted against the bill. The followers of Dr. Cannon expected that at least 100 Republicans would vote against the bill. The Republicans who stood by the bill included the main body of the insurgents. Fifteen Republicans were not recorded.

Improvements at Victoria Creamery

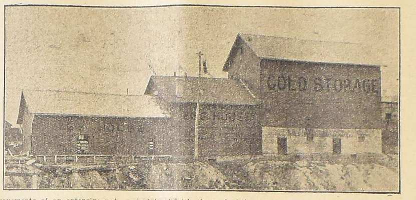
Important improvements have been made at the Victoria Creamery during the past fortnight and as a result a complete transformation hat taken place exteriorly. A new cement floor has been laid by Mr. Thos Begg and the job was well done. During the operation a cistern was bridged over 14x20 and 8 feet deep.

The painters also had their innings and the whole interior has been touched off in white, which makes the creamery bright and attractive.

A new motor has also been installed, so that in future the plant will be run by electricity.

The Victoria Creamery is one of Lindsay's most important industries, and is experiencing busy conditians at present.

Cold Storage Plant Which is Being Enlarged



Improvements of an extensive nature are being made to Flavelles Ltd. cold storage plant, and when completed the structure, as it appears in the above cut, will be entirely changed. From the basement to the top story the building is being overhauled. A new roof was placed on the northeast corner of the building during the winter, but this will be raised level with the roof of the addition to the main part of the building, the roof of which is being raised to make room for two new floors.

When finished the most of the plant will be under one flat roof, which will add greatly to the appearance of the structure. On the ground floor, besides making the receiving room larger, the wall of the department next the railway has been removed and a partition with a row of windows is built outside af which is a wide platform that will facilitate shipping.

These changes have been imperative owing to the great growth of the Company's business, which the Post takes great pleasure in recording.

UNVEILING OF BRONZE TABLET

The Uxbridge Journal says: "Friday evening the Presbyterian Church was full to witness the unveiling of the memorial tablet to the late William and Ellen Walsh. Many friends came from a distance and members of all the town churches were present in great numbers.

The devotional service was led by the minister, Rev. J. R. Fraser who read Peter's confession and Christ's gifts to the church from the fourth chapter of Ephesians. Then the former minister, the Rev. W. G. Hanna formally presented the tablet to the church, and at his word, Mr. James Low of Lindsay drew aside the curtain uncovering a large bronze tablet on the front wall between the east window and the panel with the Lord's Prayer.

With deep and tender feeling Mr. Hanna went on to show how richly this couple were endowed with these Christian graces and how faithfully and enthusiastically they laboured for the church. He ended by reading brief appreciations of their worth from many quarters.

Rev. Edward Cockburn, now librarian of Knox College, Toronto, followed with interesting reminiscences of the early days. Beginning with November fifth, 1861, when twenty-four members took the first step towards forming the congregation he brought the history up to 1889, when his own ministry ended. Of these charter members the only remaining member Mrs. Low was present.

Liquor Case Was Dismissed

At the police court this morning, Police Magistrate Jackson dismissed the charge against Annie Wilson, of supplying liquor to Joseph Birgenaw a local Indian. Mr. L. V. O'Connor appeared for the accused and Mr. G. H. Hopkins, K.C., acted for the License Department. The evidence of the accused as well as that of Joseph Birgenaw was of such a contradictory nature that the magistrate decided on a dismissal.

SENT SAMPLES OF WESTERN WATER

Mr. Wm Silverwood of Saskatoon has forwarded to Mr. John Williamson, of Lindsay, a sample of water taken from his celebrated springs situated four miles from Saskatoon Mr. Silverwood has three springs closed in with cement, and is doing a rushing business, supplying the citizens of Saskatoon with water, which is famed for its great purity. There is a great demand at present for the water from every part of the west.

OPEN LIBRARY ON SUNDAY

The public library board of Chatham is discussing the advisability of leaving the library building open for a time on Sundays. There does not seem to be any good reason, why the reading room of a public library should not be open on Sunday, for a few hours at least, providing there is any demand for such accommodation. It is understood a similar proposal was made some time ago by a member of the local board; but nothing has been done in the matter, for the reason that there is no evidence for any public desire to use the reading room on Sunday. The board did try the experiment of opening reading room on public holidays; but there was practically no demand from the public for the accommodation thus offered.—Woodstock Sentinel Review.

There was a move made some time ago by Lindsay citizens to have the local library open on Monday but nothing came of it.

FINDING WATER WITH FORKED STICK

(St. John Telegraph).

The ancient superstition that a waterfinder or "dowser" as he is called can indicate the position of running water by walking over the place with a forked stick in his hand—the forked stick indicating its presence by either moving upwards or downwards—is given standing, local habitation and scientific name and explanation by the Dean of Clogher, in a recent number of the Hibbert Journal. His first experience in water-finding occured at Rossary Glebe, where he went as the bishop's representative on a commission of repairs. They found in a corner of an old kitchen, a small well of water. The outside well was thirty-nine feet from the ground to the surface of the water. They wished to find where the clear water came from so with Mr. Jervois, the architect, they went to look for the source.

The architect cut a forged twig of a snowberry bush shaped like a Y. Then he held his elbows close to his side, with his palms upward, the little fingers being next one another. He bent the forks of the twig outwards, gripping them at the two ends, with the point projecting horizontally before him. He held the forks bent very

HUGH DELINE GETS A LIFE TERM MOST REPULSIVE CASE EVER HEARD

Peterboro, April 20.—Hugh Deline, of Belmont Township, was sentenced this morning to life imprisonment in Kingston Penitentiary on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of his wife. The case came to a sudden termination this morning when court was opened. Ms. Justice Teetzel announced that in view of the evidence that has been submitted the prisoner and his counsel desired to withdraw the plea of not guilty of murder and plead guilty of manslaughter.

His Lordship instructed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty of murder and guilty of manslaughter.

LIKE A BEAST.

Mr. O'Connell, the prisoner's counsel, made a plea for leniency, asking His Lordship to consider the prisoner's surroundings and lack of training and the fact that there were two small children to be taken care of.

In imposing sentence Mr. Justice Teetzel said that the prisoner's conduct had been on the level of the beast of the field. "To my knowledge it is the most digusting thing that ever came before the courts of this country. While I sympathize with your mother and children, I must impose upon you a severe penalty as a warning and example."

Deline did not seem affected in the least by the sentence, and walked quickly out of the court.

SMALL BOY KILLED AT PETERBORO WAS COASTING DOWN A HILL

Examiner: Norman Routley Asling the eight-year old son of Mr. Welling Asling, George street, a shoemaker, in the employ of W. J. Carey, was painfully injured as a result of a collision between the small waggon in which he was coasting down the hill at the corner of McDonnell and Aylmer-sts, and a delivery rig. The accideat occurred at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening. The driver of the delivery rig was in no way responsible for the accident the boy shooting down the hill at full speed and colliding with the cart, the wheels of which passed over him, with the result that his leg was broken above the knee, and he sustained a severe crushing about the breast He was picked up and carried to his father's house, where Dr. Morgan was called in. The little fellow was afterwards moved to Nicholls' Hospital, in an ambulance where he died on Wednesday evening.

MILLING CONCERNS FORM BIG MERGER CANADIAN CEREAL FIGURES IN IT

Montreal, April 19.— One of the most important developments that have occured in the milling trade of Canada for some time was brought to a successful conclusion to-day when Mr. A. J. Nesbitt, the managing director of the Investment Trust Company, closed negotiations for the consolidation of the International Milling and the Canadian Cereal and Milling Companies. Through the consolidation will result an all-Canadian organization, the Canadian Cereal and Milling Company, obtaining through the International a large connection in Western Canada while in turn the International will secure the advantages of the connection of the Cereal Company in OnOntario and Eastern Canada.

With a view to carrying through the terms of the arrangement, Mr. Nesbitt said that a holding company would be formed, to be known as the International Milling Company of Canada, Limited, with an authorized capital of $3,500,000 of seven per cent cumulative preferred stock, and $2,500,000 of common stock.

MURDER TRIAL AT PETERBORO DID DELINE KILL HIS WIFE?

Peterboro, April 19.—At the opening of this morning's sittings of the Spring Assizes Hugh Deline was placed in the dock to plead to a true bill charging him with the murder of his 25-year-old wife on September 15 in a lonely and remote part of the Township of Belmont.

About 10 o'clock at night Deline, who is a farm laborer, burst in upon the home of Samuel Newhall, a neighbor, and related that he had found his wife, whom he left in good health in the morning, dead in the woodshed. Newall and another neighbor went to the house and found the body of the woman as reported by the husband. The body bore several marks upon the face, and both wrists looked as if they had been tightly bound, and all the circumstances indicated that the woman's death was the result of foul play.

Provincial Detective Reburn as the result of his enquiries, had Deline arrested, and on the Coroner's jurys finding he was committed for trial.

This morning, when arraigned, he pleaded not guilty in a firm voice and showed composure and indifference during the progress of the trial. He was neatly dressed. He had a fair appearance, is light complexioned, and does not look his age, which is about 28 years. O'Connell & Gordon appeared in his defence. The neighborhood where he lived was very primitive, and some of the witnesses were not of a very high order of intelligence, one witness, a farmer, not knowing in what township he lived. Two or three of the first witnesses examined only confirmed the story of the finding of the body, as related above.

Constable Williams testified that the day after the woman's death the prisoner told him that he had changed his clothes, after, as he says, he found his wife was dead. The trousers the prisoner wore the day before were found in the cellar and bore incriminating stains. Witness had found a cord near the house which could have caused the injury to the wrists. Much of the evidence was of too revolting a character to be repeated and seemed to criminally associate the prisoner with the conditions detailed.

The Crown evidently places its chief reliance upon the medical testimony. All the doctors examined had made or assisted at the post-mortem examination, and all testified that there were no internal nor external injuries sufficient to cause death. Dr. Kindred, of Havelock, was of the opinion that death was due to shock as a result of a struggle. Dr. Ford, of Norwood, also said death was caused by shock. Dr. Connor, pathologist of Queen's Medical Faculty, of Kingston, testified to having made a most minute physical examination of the exhumed remains forty days after death. The cord that had bound the wrists had in places caused bleeding in and under the skin. From the absence of injuries in other parts of the body and organs to cause death, he was of the opinion from the condition of the lungs, that death was due to suffocation by smothering, as there were no external marks to account for it.

A report of the analysis of the contents of the stomach showed no traces of poison. The trial will be continued to-morrow.

Serious Accident Near Minden

Echo: A very serious accident occurred at ..r. Peter Eastman's Thursday last, which not only greatly endangered the lives of his two sons, scar and disfigure them for life, but will in all probability impair the sight of Elmer, the younger.

The young men were engaged in blasting large stones in the field, had placed a charge of explosives and were filling the hole with sand to exclude the air, using a broken drill for that purpose. William was sitting on the stone and Elmer had his feet against it. Both were immediately over the charge when it ignited with a report heard two miles away. The stone was blown into a thousand pieces, only one piece remaining in the hole. that upon which Wm. sat. Elmer was thrown back several yards and both suffered severe lacerations of the hands and face from the powder and fine splinters of rock. No bones were broken, and it is considered a miracle that both are alive and able to walk to the house, aided by their father.

Wm. could see a little at first, but soon became quite blind. Elmer saw nothing after the accident and neither of them have seen anything since, although their physician seems quite confident he can save their sight.

After the first two treatments they were brought to the village, where they would be convenient to the eye of the doctor, and where they are progressing favorably, cared for by their father and Miss Florence Vincent,

Fasted 65 Days She Still Lives

Morris Plains, April, 20,—After a fast of sixty-five days, Annie Gesselli thirty years old, light of build, and not very healthy, is today partaking of food again. A half dozen glasses of milk and half an orange was all the food she had during her fast.

Miss Gesilli went to the Passic general hospital early in February for a pain in her side. On her first day she drank a glass of milk and ate half an orange. She maintained that an "angel visitors fed her. She was at first suspected of practicing some fraud, but by a close watch showed that she was actually going without food.

Early in March Miss Gesilli was transferred to the New Jersey state hospital here. She suffered no ill effects from her fast.

RAILROAD WORK AT BETHANY

Bethany, April, 14,—The C.P.R. is busy these days preparing for the reception of the laborers, mostly Italians, who, are coming to Bethany in May to build the new railroad. The Company have rented sufficient ground on the farm of Arthur Davis to erect a cookhouse, shacks, etc, necessary for the occupation of so large a gang as that which is rumored is coming to Bethany. The carpenters have bought over 15,000 feet of rough lumber, and are busy building the camp. On Saturday, a carload of horses arrived, together with the effects of about 10 men, who are preparing for the laborers. The C.P.R. have bought about twenty houses in Bethany, and the residents have been give notice to move by May 1st. Some difficulty is being experienced by these persons, as there appears to be only two or three empty houses in the village. As there appears to be no indication of a station on the plan of the proposed route for Bethany a monster petition is being signed by all the residents of the townships of Manvers and Cavan, humbly begging the C.P.R. to build station here, in Bethany, believing it will be beneficial to both the village and the railway for such a thing to take place.

BELLEVILLE EDITOR MADE HAPPY

Belleville Ontario: "When we first started out in our checkered career as a journalist, the general cussedness of human nature used to occasion us a good deal of worry. We wanted to be popular and well thought of by our neighbors. But latterly this tendency to worry has been succeeded by a sort of philosophic calm. The ill natured exposure of our defects by the fault-finder no longer keeps us awake at night. We recognize that it is all for our own good and keeps us from getting unduly conceited.

But our patrons, we are pleased to say, are not all of the fault-finding class, otherwise we might become pessimistic and quit the job. Many have spoken kindly and appreciative words.

"During the past week, however, three of our friends have shown their appreciation in a way still more practical than by mere words. A leading dairyman of Prince Edward County, forwarded, especially for the editor of this great journal, two pounds of extra choice dairy butter—that is to say, butter with that peculiar texture and delicacy of flavor which go to show that the manufacturer knows his business, and that the most scrupulous care has been observed from the feeing of the cow to moulding the print of butter.

"From the Township of Huntingdon the editor has received from two different donors jars of maple syrup. And when we say maple syrup, we don't mean any vile imitation, compounded from flavoring extracts, brown cane sugar and maple bark. We refer to that double-distilled, amber-colored nectar, that can be made out of nothing else in the world but the purest maple sap, and sap of the "first run." We have been fooled so often in buying alleged maple syrup the past few years that we had taken a dislike to everything along that line, but these two donations from Huntingdon have changed our opinion

"I COULD NOT LIVE"

WITHOUT "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Writes The Treasurer Of Caledonia Township

FENAGHVALE, ONT., Jan. 29th, 1910.

For thirty-five years (and I am now a man over seventy) I have been a terrible sufferer from Constipation.

No matter what remedy or physician I employed, the result was always the same—impossible to get a cure.

About two years ago, I read the testimonial of Hon. John Costigan regarding "Fruit-a-tives" and I decided to give this fruit medicine a trial. I have used "Fruit-a-tives" ever since. They are the first and only medicine that suited my case. If it were not for "Fruit-a-tives", I am satisfied that I could not live." JAMES PROUDFOOT.

The liver controls the bowels by giving up enough bile to make the bowels move. The only possible way to cure constipation is to make the liver active and healthy and thus store up sufficient bile to move the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" acts directly on the liver—ensures an abundance of bile—and causes the bowels to move regularly and naturally. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

back to what we held before the days of adulteration.

"We now say what we started out to say, that kind words and kindly remembrances go a long way to help us forgive and forget the general meanness and cussedness of mankind, and make us reconciled to try to go on with the daily grind in the most unpopular job in the world."

Foolish Fast Ends In Death

With but three days to go to complete a foolish fast which he had undertaken, Herbert Deverell, of 107 Chester street, Toronto, died Thursday night at his home. He had not been feeling well and was of the impression that total abstinence from food or drink would cure him. To make sure that his fast would not be interrupted he gave instructions to his wife and family that no doctor was to be called.

The fast started on the 5th of April. Deverell rose in the morning, and announced that he was not to eat nor drink for eighteen days. His wife knew that he had not been well for some time and she thought that he intended trying the fast cure as a means of recovery. The man went about the house for a couple of days attending to his various duties, but after that period spent a good part of his time in bed.

As the days went on and the gentleman absolutely refused any nourishment either in liquid or in solid form the wife became apprehensive, and wanted to send for a doctor. The husband was made aware of her intentions, but he absolutely refused the intrusion of any stranger whose object might be to stop the fast. He always kept a rigid rule about his management of the house, and the wife feared to disobey him.

MRS. JOHN BRYANS FRIGHTFULLY BURNED ACCIDENT MAY TERMINATE FATALLY

From Monday's Post.

This morning about nine o'clock, Mrs. John Bryans, residing at the corner of Albert and Colborne-sts., was so badly burned from her clothes catching fire, that there is little hope of her recovery.

The old lady, who is seventy-five years of age, was attending a grass fire in front of her home, with her granddaughter, Edna, a little girl of about three or four years, when she noticed that the fire had crept up so close to the verandah that one of the posts had caught on fire. She at once commenced to beat out the blaze with a broom, with the result that her clothing immediately broke into flames. The little girl who was with her, had run for a pail of water to put out the verandah fire. This she threw over the burning woman, but it was such a small pail that it was practically useless. By this time she was completely enveloped in flames, and screaming with the pain. Mr. Marshall, who was working across the road on Colborne-st. hearing her screams, at once jumped over the fence and came running around the house to see what was the matter. He found that it was too late to aid the burning woman, for her clothing had been burned almost completely off and she was then making her way into the house. When the flames had reached her hair, she had tried to put her head in the rain barrel. Mr. Marshall immediately summoned Dr. Rich to attend her injuries for she was in frightful pain. When he had arrived she was at once dressed, her wounds necessitating bandages from the neck to the feet. The skin on her hands and in many places was so badly charred that it simply fell off and all that was left of her clothing could be gathered up in a handful. Her burns will be dressed again tonight, and it will likely be better known whether they will prove serious or not. If help had not been so near at hand, it is beyond doubt she would have died of her injuries, for she could do nothing for herself.

STOP ABUSE OF DUMB ANIMALS

In St. Thomas a campaign is being waged to eliminate the cruelty to animals which prevails in the city. This is a complaint which is more or less general in every city, and it would be well if people all over the country would fall in line with the citizens of St. Thomas in putting a stop to the abuse of dumb animals. Any one person in a community has an opportunity to conduct a campaign all by himself, and the influence of one active person might have a very far-reaching effect if properly applied.

The Post has, on several occasions heard of cases where animals have been cruelly treated in this town and vicinity.

Blow is given the reading of the statute on questions of cruelty to animals. It should prove instructive in informing people of their rights to see that horsemen treat their dumb servants with proper respect.

THE COMING OF MERRY SPRINGTIME

None of all the seasons is more welcome in its coming than springtime. It awakens the drowsy forms of life; it revives the tender fancies of youth; it softens the cheek of nature and gives a song to the coquettish winds.

But yesterday the cold, rude northern blast swept over the bleak and frozen lands. The gales roamed thru' the leafless forests like requiems. The vagaries of the elements make one shudder at their anger. The dark clouds hurried across a cheerless sky. Winter reigned in his majesty and relentlessness. It seemed as though aspirations were forever benumbed, our bosoms as drear as the day was full of darkness, until one morning a golden sun rose earlier than was his wont from the eastern hills and with a mellow smile, kissed the valleys and woodland nooks to April glee. Abashed over its own austerity the snow hid behind tall buildings and in its stead came the violet, the bloodroot, and the buttercup.

There is no more delightful place to roam than out in the meadows and glades after a gentle rain has given its spirit call to bud and bird. Down among the long bleached grasses, if you look closely you will see a flower slowly peeking through, timid and modest lest it be rebuked for its hurry. It is the adder tongue or the columbine responding to the forces of re-juvenation. On the fence sits the robin twittering to its mate to be thrifty in building a nest near where cherries and rosy fruits will bloom. At the tips of slender branches you will notice buds opening out in all the glory and wholesomeness of birth

Across the uplands sunbeams chase the shadows. On to plashy river bank the pied frog hops to bask in the sun warmth of noonday. From the hill-side comes the twinkling of bells. You take a deep breath and muse on the times of childhood when impulses were pure and simple when all the beauties of life lay before you, and when a nodding dandelion meant more joy than an elaborate spray of classic roses express now.

RHEUMATISM AND COMMON SENSE

Father Morrisey's No. 7 Eliminates the Uric Acid.

Many treatments will relieve the aches and pains of rheumatism, but there is only one way to cure that dread disease. The common sense method is to remove the cause, and the effects will soon disappear.

Rheumatism is caused, as is well known, by the failure of the kidneys to perform their intended work of filtering the uric acid out of the blood and eliminating it from the body through the bladder. When the kidneys go on strike, the uric acid is carried to the joints and tissues, where it causes stiffening of the muscles, and the excruciating pains of rheumatism.

Father Morrisey, the learned priest-physician, after much research devised a prescription which would act directly on the kidneys, and by toning them up to vigorous action, cause them to clear the system of the uric acid. This remedy, known as No. 7, has been used successfully in thousands of cases.

Father Morrisey's Liniment will bring relief from the effects of rheumatism, while his No. 7 Tablets will get to work on the cause and in due time cure the disease.

Why suffer from this painful and troublesome affliction, when by using the common sense methods originated by Father Morrisey and successfully followed for years, it is possible to aid Nature to restore you to health?

If you are not yourself rheumatic, you doubtless know of some one who is, and who would be glad to learn of a treatment which has such a consistent record of cures. It is easy to take and sure to benefit and ultimately cure rheumatism. 50c. a box, at your dealer's, or from Father Morrisey Medicine Co., Ltd., 99

SUDDEN DEATH OF MR. H. WADDELL DECEASED WELL KNOWN IN THIS DISTRICT

The following from the Peterboro Review refers to a man who was well known in Lindsay and district. The news of his sudden death was received on Satutday with regret by all those who had the pleasure of his acquaintance:—

"Death came with startling suddenness this morning about ten o'clock to Mr. Hugh Waddell, at his famil residence, "Beechfield," Monaghan Road. He had complained of pains in the chest last night, but arose this morning as usual. Returning to his room, he lay hown on the bed and passed away shortly afterwards He wae a prominent citizen of Peterboro, a man of sterling character and his passing will be widely regretted. He was born in the township of South Monaghan 75 years ago. His parents, Robt. Waddell, and Sarah McClelland, who came of a prominent family in County Down, Ireland, were among the early settlers to this part of the country. For thirty-six years he conducted a mercantile business at Centreville. and after retiring resided at the homestead in South Monoghan. In 1878 he was married to Mary Waddell. Sixteen years ago, he came to Peterboro, and made his home at the late residence, "Beechfield."

"The late Mr. Waddeil had been a warm friend of Queen's University, where he established valuable scholar ships. He was a Presbyterian in religion, and a member of St. Andrew's church. Surviving besides his widow, is one son, Roland M. Waddeil, who is on his wedding trip to Europe, but has been communicated with. The sisters are Mrs. F. Hurdon, of Toronto, and Mrs. R. M. PLEASANT POINT

(Special to The Post)

The fine sunny weather and warm winds have dried up the fields and now the farmers have begun once more to scatter the seeds.

Mr. Harry Hamilton, organist of St. Andrew's church, Lindsay, called on friends at Riverview recently. Mr Hamilton, who is becoming quite popular for his musical productions is also developing into a long distance walker. He walked from Little Britain here, a distance of from eighteen to twenty miles, between meals.

The ice has all disappeared out of the river, but is still sound in the lake yet.

Several people are making maple syrup this year and they report a very good run.

Misses Rosie Endicott, and Lizzie Brien, and Mr. Wm. Lrien, who are attending the L.C.I., spent the Easter vacation with their parents.

Miss Haugh, of Lindsay, called on her friend, Miss Eva Green one day last week.

Mrs. Wilson Hamilton, of here, has returned after visiting relatives at Morrisburg.

The fallwheat around here seems to have withstood the winter fairly well.

Mr. Thos. Endicott was the loser of an old horse some few weeks ago. She was about thirty three or thirty four years old.

There are many trappers camped along the shores at present. The season, however is almost over, and they will have to seek some other occupation. They report that rats are fairly scarce. although some of them have had fine success.

Mr. Johnny Endicott, of Reaboro, called on friends at Lakeview last week, and Master Cleve returned home with him to spend his holidays.

HYMENEAL

O'LEARY—BIDWELL.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the residence of Venerable Archdeacon Casey this afternoon when Miss Florentine O'Leaey, daughter of His Honor Judge O'Leary, of Port Arthur, was united in marriage to Mr. L. M. Bidwell, broker, of Saskatoon.

EMMERSON—PHILP

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Philp of Manvers was the scene of pretty wedding, when their daughter Ethel Irene, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Malcolm F. Emmerson, of Cartwright. Only the immediate friends of the contracting parties were present. Rev. J.U. Robins, of Blackstock performed the ceremony.

Promptly at half past two, the bride entered the drawing room while Miss Madeline Emmerson, sister of the groom, played the wedding march.

The bride was handsomely gowned in pearl grey silk, and her travelling costume was blue broadcloth. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful gold watch, with fob attached.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmerson left on the evening train for Toronto, and will visit Erie and other points before their return. Their friends extend their congratulations, and wish them long life and prosperity.

KELLY—MASSAW.

St. Mary's church was the scene of a very pretty nuptial event this morning, when Miss Kathleen Massaw, daughter of Mr. Thos. Massaw, of Lindsay, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Percy Kelly, of Norwood.

The nuptial mass was celebrated in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends of the young couple.

The bride, who was becomingly attired in a costume of pearl gray, trimmed with Brussels net, soutache braid, with white picture hat of lingerie net, and a veil, knotted with lillies of the valley. The bridesmaid Miss Gertrude Bissette, a niece wore a cream serge suit trimmed with satin ribbon and lace. She also wore a large picture hat of cream mohair and veil. Mr. Thomas Massaw, brother of the bride, aided as best man.

After the ceremony the happy couple repaired to the residence of the bride's parents, where a dainty wedding repast was served and where an enjoyable day was spent.

The bride was the recipient of many suitable wedding presents from her circle of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly took the afternoon C.P.R. train for a trip to Toronto, London and Detroit, and on their return will reside in Lindsay, the groom being employed in the Dominion Wheel factory. Their many friends wish them many happy years of wedded life.

Chief Vincent Was Remembered

Yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock a number of citizens gathered at the Council Chamber to say farewell to Chief of Police Vincent before his departure to Sault Ste Marie. The gathering was a representative one and the different speakers voiced the sentiment of the citizens generally in their expressions of regret at the departure of the popular police officer. Chief Vincent was the recipient of a handsome gold-headed cane, suitably engraved, accompanied by an umbrella for Mrs. Vincent with her initials engraved thereon.

County Police Magistrate Moore, K. C., was voted to the chair, and he assured his hearers that he appreciated the honor of presiding at such a function.

Ex-Reeve Geo. A Jordan then addressed Mr. Vincent as follows:
Ralph C. Vincent, Esq.,

On the occasion of your departure the citizens of Lindsay deem it as their duty to pay the respect you merit. Although your tenure of office has not beem of long duration, yet during your sojourn, the people have learned not only to respect, but hold you in high esteem.

As Chief of Police you have done your duty, as a citizen, you have measured up to the real standard.

In the brief time the limited number of citizens made acquainted of this occasion, justice as to respect in which you and your family is held is not made manifest by the representatives now present.

The people join with this gathering in wishing you and Mrs. Vincent success, and Lindsay will ever rejoice in your prosperity.

You and Mrs. Vincent will kindly accept these tokens of appreciation of your citizenship, and hope you will remember Lindsay as we will remember you.

Ex-Mayor Begg was the first speaker, and he expressed his regret at the departure of Mr. Vincent. During his incumbency of the Mayor's chair Mr. Begg said he had always got along well with the Chief. He had attended to his duties faithfully, was a gentleman and a good citizen. He felt sure Chief Vincent would be successful at the Soo, and hoped Lindsay would be fortunate enough to get as good a man in his successor.

Mr. I. E. Weldon said it was a great pleasure for him to pay a tribute to Chief Vincent and he felt sure that if the function was held in the evening the hall would be crowded to overflowing with friends of the Chief. The gathering present, however was a reflex of the general opinion of the citizens. The Chief was the most courteous of citizens, and by virtue of the position an officer of this nature occupies was always open to criticism. He was pleased to say that Chief Vincent exercised a high degree of proficiency, was not too officious, but was always gentlemanly and unselfish. He leaves Lindsay bearing the highest regard and kindliest feelings of its citizens.

Mr. L. R. Knight in a neat address referred to the relations which had existed between himself and the Chief He had been associated with him in different affairs and he was always courteous and conscientious. He was sorry to see him leaving Lindsay, but was delighted to know he had received a well deserved promotion.

County Police Magistrate Moore said he wished to add his quota of praise to Chief Vincent. He was going to a better position—a position where he would be called upon to exercise a greater amount of ability. That he would prove worthy of the occasion there was no room to doubt. Mr. Moore said he wished to speak of him as a police officec. He was a gentleman particularly well fitted for such a position, possessing all the qualification such an office calls for to a remarkable degree. He desired to congratulate him on the good feeling which existed in both town and county. He was held in the highest respect by his fellow officers in the district. He was well versed in legal lore and knew a great deal more on certain legal lines than even he (Mr Moore) did. He had always conducted himself in such a creditable manner as to earn the respect of all.

Mr. Jackson, local police magistrate, was unable to be present, but he wished him to carry his best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Vincent and to express his regret at their departure. Mr. Moore said that of all the police chiefs the town had he was the one only man who thoroughly understood his duties. He had been properly trained and was better posted than even Mr. Jackson or himself. Mr. Moore desired to congratulate the police magistrate of Sault Ste Marie on securing such a capable officer, who, by virtue of his ability, would naturally relieve him of much worry and detail in the administration of his duties.

In conclusion Mr. Moore wished Chief Vincent every success in his new office. There was no doubt whatever, but that he would fill it with success. He wished Mr. and Mrs Vincent every happiness and success.

Chief Vincent was visibly affected when he arose to reply. He had, he said, on many occasions to appear before the beak, and could express himself satisfactorily and hold his head, but on this occasion he felt he could not say too much, as his heart was too full. Policemen were not supposed to have hearts, and on such an occasion as this a man should not be ashamed to feel as he did. Mrs Vincent and himself would always remember their kind friends in Lindsay

A police officer, he said, was not supposed to have friends, but he would have to confess that he had friends in Lindsay who were most loyal. His work had been criticized by some. He was not a paragon, however, but had always tried to do his duty. On many occasions he had to act the part of go-between in his efforts to keep cases out of court and in doing this he felt it to be his duty. An officer was not supposed to be always making arrests, but to exercise discretion at times. If he had not then exercised it to the liking of all, why they must grin and bear it. During his tenure of office he had endeavored to do his best, and that was all any man could do..

Not on Departmental Store List

A newspaper editor in one of the Manitoba villages had the joke on a citizen of his burg not long since. This citizen and his family are great admirers of the departmental store, and buy all their goods in Winnipeg. A few weeks ago, a daughter of the citizen got married, and the entire paraphernalia, including invitations, was purchased in the city. The day after the wedding the bride's father brought to the newspaper office, a long account of the event but when the paper appeared it contained nothing about the wedding, but an announcement of three or four lines. Next day the citizen called at the newspaper office to demand an explanation why the report of the wedding had not been printed. "Oh, that's all right, said the editor. "You'll likely find it in Eaton's spring catologue.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your NEW METHOD TREATMENT for a serious blood disease with which I had been inflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the NEW METHOD TREATMENT for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. BEAUTIFUL MEXICO CITY DESCRIBED OTHER POINTS OF INTEREST IN REPUBLIC

The following is the continuation of an interesting letter received from a relative of a Lindsay man in Mexico:

"Mexico City exceeded my expectations as to its beauty, and in many other favorable ways. It seems at first sight a dear place to live in. The better hotels charge from $3 to $12 a day for room alone, and from $1 to $3 for a table d'hote meal; but these best rooms have private baths and all conveniences, the meals are like an epicurean's dream; and the prices has to be cut in two to bring it down to American money standard. When you have eaten a delight ful one dollar dinner, you pay for it with a Mexican silver dollar or an American fifty-cent piece. So with everything you buy, you simply pay half the bill, with American money.

"From the flat-roofed top of our hotel I got a magnificent view of the city and its surroundings. Though Mexico City is about 8,000 feet above the sea level as Vera Cruz, it seems to sit in the centre of a wide valley bounded in by encircling hills two or three thousand feet higher. As there are 400 churches in the city, each with a turret, and hundreds of other buildings with towers and pinnacles, the view is like a fairy city that is, if fairies have cities. Some what to the southeast stands the volcano of Popocatepetl (Aztec for smoking mountain). It is nearly three and a half miles high, and is covered one third of the way down with perpetual snow. It is generally and irreverently spoken of as Old Popo. Seemingly a little further to the east, but in reality miles away, is another snow capped peak known as Ixtaccihuatl, which isn't so hard to pronounce as it looks. The word means in Aztec, the white woman, so called because the top, with its white snow and dark ravines, looks like a woman's face. The encircling hills, these snow-white mountains, the green foliage of the many parks, and the innumerable spires and pinnacles form a picture altogether lovely and enchanting.

"There is nothing in Canada to compare with the clean streets, fine avenues, lovely parks, shops, and magnificent public buildings of Mexico City. The Paseo de la Reforma is an avenue leading between two and three miles in length, lined on both sides with beautiful residences and mansions, and having through its centre a procession of monuments and statues, leading right up to Chapultepec, the private residence of President Diaz. Of all the avenues I have seen, it is excelled only by the Sieges Alle in the Tier Garten, Berlin. Of the public buildings in Mexico City, the post office with its inside and outside marble decorations, though not so large and grandiose as the Congressional library at Washington, is more artistic and beautiful. The new marble Grand Opera House, not yet finished, is intended to eclipse, in beauty and magnitude, anything of the kind in the world. Of the Cathedral it is not easy to say anything in a few words. I shall simply say that it cost nearly forty million Mexican dollars to build and decorate it, and let it go at that. The shops are filled with beautiful things—silk laces mantillas for the ladies, Mexican drawn work so justly celebrated for its beauty and high price, jewelery and Mexican opals cabore, some very fine and first class, and some not much better than bits of glass and quite as cheap.

SUNDAY THE GALA DAY.

"Sunday is the gala day in Mexico City, of course, there was the cathedral bull fight. I did not go. Got a centleman of our party did. There were about twenty thousand spectators—tickets $2 each and the stain were eight horses and five bulls. One afternoon I engaged a two-horse carriage with driver, at thirty-seven cents per hour, American money, and went all over the best parts of the city, including the Paseo de la Reforma and the gardens and grounds of Chapultepec. The ending "tepec" in many of the Mexican names is an Aztec for "hill." Chapultepec means "Grasshopper" hill. It is the private residence of the President. The palace is on the top of the hill reached by a spiral driveway and is on the side of the hill Mr. Montezuma's favorite palace. Though we drove to the door we were not admitted, as the President was at his other palace down the lower part of the Cathedral. Notice the Mexican spelling of Montezuma's name in "Montezuma," also, by the way, the president's name, Diaz, is pronounced "Dee-ahs" with the accent on the last syllable.

THE PEOPLE OF THE CITY

The poor people, who live in the outskirts of the city, are very poor, very ignorant and very dirty. It is not necessary to go further. The better class who live in the city proper are fine specimens of manhood and womanhood, polite and suitably clothed. One sees many fine carriages, with elegantly dressed occupants. Owing to the long time the Americans had occupied Cuba, I expected to find there that nearly everybody would speak English, good or bad. In reality, about all they could say was, "No speaka Inglies," while in Mexico I expected to find nothing but Spanish spoken, and behold, most of the shop people and the better class on the streets spoke English very well. I would like to give you a view of the Mexican dude—senorita. Canadian ladies' wide hats are not in it with them. The pointed and decorated crown is often over a foot high, sloping backwards like the smokestack of an ocean steamer, while the brim, over a foot across, rolls up slightly, and is covered with gold lace silver ornaments, and glass diamond and other less precious stones. I had the curiosity to weigh and price one of the most gorgeous in a nobbered tiends window. It weighed nearly ten pounds and could be had for only $165 Mex. or about $83 American.

NO OUTWARD SIGNS OF RE-

As to the discontent and smoldering rebellion, there was no outward signs of it, but you felt it everywhere The shop keepers, of course, know what looting and bloodshed would follow an uprising, and speak of these things only in whispers. But they acknowledged that the spirit of revolt is almost universal and just a very little below the surface. It is certain that no measures of reform will be acceptable that do not include the total overthrow of Diaz and all his crew. The climate of Mexico City is delightful, and I think it would be a most desirable place to spend the winter.

A SAND STORM.

On the way back to Vera Cruz the train was engulfed in a sand storm, and for miles you could not see a rod beyond the windows; the season has been remarkably dry. It was the hottest and driest few hours railway ride I ever had. Of course as soon as we got into the mountains and near the Orizaba snow peaks it was pleasant enough.

AT TAMPICO

From Vera Cruz we sailed to Tampico, of which little that is pleasant can be said. It is very hot and full of malaria and mosquitoes.

THE CAPITAL OF YUCATAN.

At Progreso, the chief seaport of Yucatan, we (I mean the ship) took on board 1,000 tons of sisal, the fibre of the henequen plant, used for making binder twine and cordage. While the sisal was being loaded we took the train to the interior, about twenty miles, to the capital of Merida, the capital of the Yucatan. Having a good working knowledge of Spanish, I experienced no difficulty in making myself understood any where in the Yucatan. But the Yucatan people, except those in the cities, do not speak Spanish, but Mayan.

Merida, the capital of Yucatan now a Mexican province, is a beautiful modern city of about 30,000 inhabitants. The streets are clean, and most of them asphalted; the buildings are artistic and picturesque, and in many little parks are extremely clean and well kept. But the climate, even if it were in reality, which it is not, northerner. The shade trees in the streets, parks, and gardens are very different from those of a northern city. There are many varieties of palms—the royal, cocoa, sago, silver palms, etc—bread fruit trees, cabbage palm, papaw, sapto (out of which chicle, the gum of chewing gum is made), pomegranate, orange, lemon, and many others. The natives of Yucatan are totally different in appearance from Cubans or Mexicans, being a purer Indian race. They are tall, some, sprightly, good-natured, intelligent, extremely cleanly and well dressed, many of them elegantly attired. They call themselves Mayans, and claim to be descended from the aboriginal people who built the cities and temples of Chichen and elsewhere a little south of Merida. These are the wonder of the world, will have to wait for a future time for a description. I may say here, however, that the ruins and inscriptions are so nearly the same as those in Egypt that antiquarians ascribe the works in both countries to the Phoenicians. When the Spaniards landed in Yucatan and asked the name of the country the people replied "Yucatan," which in Mayan for "what do you say?" The Spaniard took it to be the name of the country and Yucatan it has been ever since. The Mayans are of a pale, copper color, with handsome faces and straight black hair. Only a few of them are able to speak Spanish. The twenty-five miles between Merida and Progreso is almost one continuous sisal plantation. This henequen belongs to the agave family of plants and looks like those large century plants kept in a hot tube. The 'aloe' agave, henequen, maguey and pineapple all have long fibres running lengthwise of their long stiff leaves. These fibres are put to various uses; those in the pineapple are very fine, silky and strong, and a beautiful fabric is made from them, called pinapple cloth, often selling at as much as $10 a yard. But the sisal, out of which grows in the driest and rockiest soil, without cultivation, is the most valuable. There are four of the lowest leaves of each plant are cut once a year for eight or ten years. Then the plant dies and a new one is planted in its place. These long, stiff thick, green leaves are hauled to the mill, where the juice is crushed out of them by machinery and the mass of fibre, three or four feet long, and about 200 to each leaf, are dried in the sun, made up into bales and exported From Progreso alone last year more than 160,000 tons were exported. One of the sisal plantations is almost there at Progreso. I have one of its teeth as a souvenir."

tightly. In this attitude he walked across the bank sloping towards the rectory. For some time the stick remained pointing outwards; then suddenly it began to dart out, and the stick bent upwards violently, striking him on the chest. He was holding it so tightly that the parts held in his hands could not turn, and the stress broke the stick like an untwisted cord. He passed beyond the spot and then turned round (not) but going backwards or forwards, always at the same spot where the stream was running underneath the twig bended upwards. The sensation was as if someone had seized the apex of the forked branch and forcibly pulled it down. To he was no muscular movement and every doubt is persuaded that the twig was in his hand and not his hand the twig.

A large number of experiments make him believe that the phenomenon in question was connected with electricity, or at least that electricity forms a partial explanation. The rod does not move in the hands of a man who is insensitive. The inference is that the rod does not move by the force which proceeds from water as such, but from friction or other force which the water set in motion. If by a solid substance, such as the sides of a drain or water-pipe, which, according to the present theory, would be the feet and from the feet to the rod. The presence of running water, is indicated when the person is a sensitive, and when the feet are not insulated from the ground.

There are some persons in every community who have this power of locating water, and it will be somewhat of a disappointment to them to be told that it has any such simple and natural explanation. But the explanation may convince the critical who have scoffed at their powers. Yet as doubts is have been successful in finding water in places where bodies running water, such as cores and mistrals, the complete explanation of their powers may be found in something now to science. The writer of the article thinks that to explain the phenomena fully we may have to fall back on some unknown force which will bring the motion of the rod into the same category as many of the "psychic" phenomena. The practical inference for them may be a much closer connection than is at present recognized between these phenomena and the actual physical personality of the medium.
